The Compiler, in presenting this year's Manual, thinks it not improper to advert to the fact of which the proofs are evinced on all sides, that his efforts to perpetuate therein the old landmarks of our city, by engravings and historical sketches of the olden time have excited an approving sentiment in the public mind; and made the successive issues of the Manual a matter of interest to many citizens not immediately connected with the city government. This has, for many years, been anticipated by him, for he has been aware that, in no other way than by establishing a well known medium, through which the relics of the past could be presented to the public, could the many interesting memorials, hidden among the family archives of the descendants of ancient stock, be brought into public notice. It is from such individual resources that many of the views, which have never before been engraved and published, have been furnished; and he has, beside, found several gentlemen who, from love to the subject itself, have lent their active co-operation in searching out, and presenting for publication, such mementos of the past as they were able to discover. But the subject is not, by any means, exhausted; and, indeed, the Compiler has every reason to anticipate still more interesting contributions for any future number of the Manual that may be published, so that it is probable that a full series of this work will present an epitome of our early history, which could not, through any other means, be reasonably expected to be presented to the public. Taking into consideration the interest with which our local history has always been regarded by our community, and the present rapid progress of the city, which promises soon to obliterate all the natural landmarks of the island, the Compiler thinks it not inappropriate to venture his approval of suggestions which have been made in respect to the preservation of views of such localities as now present noticeable features, in the natural formation of the island, of old dwellings, farm-houses, country-seats, etc., as well as of the more prominent buildings, private as well as public, which denote the present fashions of architecture. It is providing, for future generations, what we greatly wish had been provided for us; for there are many now among us who would look upon a crude sketch of old Burgomaster Van Cortland's residence, or the Damen farm-house, or a line of dwellings in Broadway a century ago; or, indeed, of any picture of localities now obliterated, and of which not even an idea can be satisfactorily formed, than upon the finest gem of modern art. There is much satisfaction in fixing "a local habitation and a name" to those scenes where our imaginations love to wander. The photographic process will facilitate this purpose, and if a gallery of views could be established in the Historical Society, it would be a desirable bequest to the visitors of that worthy institution some ages hence. With respect to the arrangement of the Manual for this year, the Compiler thinks that it will present the list of public officers and of public institutions in an improved form; and that in the engravings and sketches of olden time the reader will find matter of interest and instruction. The views which are presented in this number, of the fortifications erected on this island during the last war, (the traces of which are, at the present time, mostly obliterated,) will be regarded with interest. An historical illustration of the events of that period will be furnished in the next issue of the Manual.

AN ACT TO AMEND

THE

CHARTER OF THE CITY OF NEW YORK.

PASSED APRIL 7, 1830.—CH. 122.

The People of the State of New York, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows :

1. The legislative power of the Corporation of the city of New York shall be vested in a Board of Aldermen and a Board of Assistants, who together shall form the Common Council of the city.

2. Each ward of the city shall be entitled to elect one person, to be denominated the Alderman of the ward, and the persons so chosen, together shall form the Board of Aldermen; and each ward shall also be entitled to elect one person, to be denominated an Assistant Alderman; and the persons so chosen, together, shall form the Board of Assistants.

3. The Aldermen and Assistant Aldermen shall be chosen for one year; and no person shall be eligible to either office, who shall not, at the time of his election, be a resident of the ward for which he is chosen.

4. The annual election for charter officers shall commence on the second Tuesday in April, and the officers elected shall be sworn into office on the second Tuesday in May, thereafter; and all the provisions of law now in force in regard to the notification, duration, and conduct of elections for Members of Assembly, and in regard to the appointment, powers and duties of the inspectors, holding the same, shall apply to the annual election of charter officers.

5. The first election for charter officers, after the passage of this law, shall take place on the second Tuesday in April, one thousand eight hundred and thirty-one; and all those persons who shall have been elected under the former laws regulating the election of charter officers, and shall be in office at the time of the passage of this law, shall continue in office until the officers elected under this law shall be entitled to be sworn into office.

6. The Board of Aldermen shall have power to direct a special election to be held, to supply the place of an Alderman whose seat shall become vacant by death, removal from the city, resignation, or otherwise; and the Board of Assistants shall also have power to direct a special election to supply any vacancy that may occur in the Board of Assistants; and in both cases, the person elected to supply the vacancy, shall hold his seat only for the residue of the term of office of his immediate predecessor.

7. The Boards shall meet in separate chambers, and a majority of each shall be a quorum to do business. Each Board shall appoint a President from its own body, and shall also choose its Clerk and other officers, determine the rules of its own proceedings, and be the judge of the qualifications of its own members. Each Board shall keep a journal of its proceedings, and the doors of each shall be kept open, except when the public welfare shall require secrecy; and all resolutions and reports of Committees which shall recommend any specific improvement involving the appropriation of public moneys, or taxing or assessing the citizens of said city, shall be published immediately after the adjournment of the Board, under the authority of the Common Council, in all the newspapers employed by the Corporation; and, whenever a vote is taken in relation thereto, the ayes and noes shall be called and published in the same manner.

8. Each Board shall have the authority to compel the attendance of absent members; to punish its members for disorderly behavior, and to expel a member, with the concurrence of two-thirds of the members elected to the Board; and the member so expelled, shall, by such expulsion, forfeit all his rights and powers as an Alderman or Assistant Alderman.

9. The stated and occasional meetings of each Board of the Common Council shall be regulated by its own ordinances; and both Boards may meet on the same or on different days, as they may severally judge expedient.

10. Any law, ordinance or resolution of the Common Council, may originate in either Board, and when it shall have passed one Board, may be rejected or amended by the other.

11. No member of either Board shall, during the period for which he was elected, be appointed to, or be competent to hold any office for which the emoluments are paid from the city treasury, or by fees, directed to be paid by any ordinance or act of the Common Council, or be directly or indirectly interested in any contract, the expenses or considerations whereof are to be paid under any ordinance of the Common Council; but this section shall not be construed to deprive any Alderman or Assistant of any emolument or fees which he is entitled to by virtue of his office.

12. Every act, ordinance or resolution, which shall have passed the two Boards of the Common Council, before it shall take effect, shall be presented, duly certified, to the Mayor of the city for his approbation. If he approve, he shall sign it; if not, he shall return it with his objections to the Board in which it originated, within ten days thereafter; or if such Board be not then in session, at its next stated meeting. The Board to which it shall be returned, shall enter the objections at large on their journal, and cause the same to be published in one or more of the public newspapers of the city.

13. The Board to which such act, ordinance or resolution, has been so returned, shall, after the expiration of not less than ten days thereafter, proceed to reconsider the same. If, after such reconsideration, a majority of the members elected to the Board shall agree to pass the same, it shall be sent, together with the objections, to the other Board, by which it shall be likewise reconsidered; and if approved by a majority of all the members elected to such Board, it shall take effect as an act or law of the Corporation. In all such cases the votes of both Boards shall be determined by ayes and noes, and the names of the persons voting for and against the passage of the measure reconsidered, shall be entered on the journal of each board respectively.

14. If the Mayor shall not return any act, ordinance or resolution so presented to him, within the time above limited for that purpose, it shall take effect in the same manner as if he had signed it.

15. Neither the Mayor nor Recorder of the city of New York shall be a member of the Common Council thereof, after the second Tuesday of May, one thousand eight hundred and thirty-one.

16. Whenever there shall be a vacancy in the office of Mayor, and whenever the Mayor shall be absent from the city, or be prevented by sickness, or any other cause, from attending to the duties of his office, the President of the Board of Aldermen shall act as Mayor, and shall possess all the rights and powers of the Mayor during the continuance of such vacancy, absence or disability.

17. It shall be the duty of the Mayor,

FIRST—To communicate to the Common Council, at least once a year, and oftener, if he shall deem it expedient, a general statement of the situation and condition of the city, in relation to its government, finances and improvements.

SECOND—To recommend to the adoption of the Common Council all such measures, connected with the police, security, health, cleanliness, and ornament of the city, and the improvement of its government and finances, as he shall deem expedient.

THIRD—To be vigilant and active in causing the laws and ordinances of the government of the city to be duly executed and enforced.

FOURTH—To exercise a constant supervision and control over the conduct and acts of all subordinate officers, and to receive and examine into all such complaints as may be preferred against any of them for violation or neglect of duty; and generally to perform all such duties as may be prescribed to him by the charter and city ordinances, and the laws of this state and the United States.

18. Annual and occasional appropriations shall be made, by proper ordinances of the Common Council, for every branch and object of city expenditure, nor shall any money be drawn from the city treasury, except the same shall have been previously appropriated to the purposes for which it was drawn.

19. The Common Council shall not have authority to borrow any sums of money whatever on the credit of the Corporation, except in anticipation of the revenue of the year in which such loan shall be made, unless authorized by a special act of the legislature.

20. It shall be the duty of the Common Council to publish, two months before the annual election of charter officers, in each year, for the general information of the citizens of New York, a full and detailed statement of the receipts and expenditures of the Corporation during the year ending on the first day of the month in which such publication was made; and in every such statement the different sources of city revenue, and the amount received from each; the several appropriations made by the Common Council, the objects for which the same were made, and the amount of moneys expended under each; the moneys borrowed on the credit of the Corporation; the authority under which each loan was made, and the terms on which the same was obtained, shall be clearly and particularly specified.

21. The executive business of the Corporation of New York, shall hereafter be performed by distinct departments, which it shall be the duty of the Common Council to organize and appoint for that purpose.

22. It shall be the duty of the Common Council to provide for the accountability of all officers and other persons to whom the receipt or expenditure of the funds of the city shall be intrusted, by requiring from them sufficient security for the performance of their duties or trust, which security should be annually renewed; but the security first taken shall remain in force until new security shall be given.

23. The Clerk of the Board of Aldermen shall, by virtue of his office, be Clerk of the Common Council, and shall perform all the duties heretofore performed by the Clerk of the Common Council, except such as shall be assigned to the Clerk of the Board of Assistant Aldermen; and it shall be his duty to keep open for inspection, at all reasonable times, the records and minutes of the proceedings of the Common Council, except such as shall be specially ordered otherwise.

24. The division of the Common Council into two Boards shall not take effect until the officers to be elected under this law shall enter on the duties of their office. Each Board shall hold its first meeting, for the purpose of organizing, on the second Tuesday of May in each year, at which time the Mayor, or Clerk of the Common Council shall attend, by whom the oath of office shall be administered to the members elected. In the absence of the Mayor and Clerk, such oath may be administered by the Recorder, or the first Judge of the city, or by any of the Justices of the Superior Court.

25. None of the provisions of this act, except the eighteenth, nineteenth, twentieth and twenty-second sections, shall be construed as applying to the Common Council as now constituted.

26. Such parts of the charter of the city of New York, and of the several acts of the Legislature amending the same, as are not inconsistent with the provisions of this law, shall not be construed as repealed, modified, or in any manner affected thereby, but shall continue and remain in full force.

THE

PASSED APRIL 2, 1849, "THREE-FIFTHS BEING PRESENT."

The People of the State of New York, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows :

§ 1. The legislative power of the Corporation of the city of New York shall continue to be vested in a Board of Aldermen and a Board of Assistant Aldermen, who, together, shall form the Common Council of the city. The Board of Aldermen shall consist of one Alderman from each ward, who shall be elected by the people of the respective wards, for two years. The Board of Assistant Aldermen shall consist of one Assistant Alderman from each ward, who shall be elected, in like manner, and shall hold their office for one year.

§ 2. The election for charter officers shall be held on the day of the general state election, when all charter officers, eligible by the people, shall be chosen, and the officers who shall be elected, shall be sworn into office on the first Monday of January thereafter ; and the laws of the state, regulating elections, shall apply to elections of charter officers ; but the Common Council may, by law, extend the time for the canvass of the vote.

The Mayor shall hold his office for the period of two years.

§ 3. The Common Council, during the year one thousand eight hundred and fifty, may hold its sessions as often as each Board shall, by resolution, appoint, and thereafter the Common Council shall annually hold only three stated sessions of not exceeding one month each, commencing on the first Monday of January, May and September. The Mayor may convene the Common Council, or the Board of Aldermen only, at any time between the sessions, if, in his judgment, any exigency shall have arisen to render such a proceeding necessary, on the request, in writing, of a majority of the members elected to each Board, specifying the purposes for which such meeting is called ; in which case, the action of the Common Council shall be confined to the matters in reference to which it shall have been so convened, or to such other matters as may be submitted by the Mayor for its consideration, during such session ; and the respective Boards may adjourn from day to day, until such business shall be completed.

§ 4. The Boards shall sit in separate chambers, and the doors shall be kept open, except when the public welfare shall require secrecy. A majority of each shall be a quorum to do business, but a smaller number may adjourn from day to day, and may compel the attendance of absent members. Each Board shall appoint a President from its own body; shall choose its Clerk and other officers; determine the rules of its own proceedings; be the judge of the election returns and qualifications of its own members; keep a journal of its proceedings and have power to direct special elections to fill its own vacancies; to compel the attendance of members; to punish them for disorderly conduct, and expel a member by a vote of two-thirds of all the members elected, after five day's notice, and opportunity of being heard has been given to him; but such resolution of expulsion shall be of no effect unless it contain a provision for a special election within two weeks thereafter to supply such vacancy; provided, however, that such special election shall not be ordered unless there be at least two months of the term of the expelled member unexpired. The Clerk of the Board of Aldermen shall, by virtue of his office, be Clerk of the Common Council, and shall perform all the duties heretofore performed by the Clerk of the Common Council, except such as shall be assigned to the Clerk of the Board of Assistant Aldermen; and it shall be his duty to keep open for inspection, at all reasonable times, the records and minutes of the proceedings of the Common Council, except such as shall be especially ordered otherwise. The two Boards shall have concurrent powers, and a negative on each other's proceedings, and shall in all cases act as separate bodies, and shall not appoint Joint Committees, except a Committee on Accounts. Each Board may originate, amend, concur in, or reject any law, ordinance, or resolution; but no law shall pass either Board, except by a majority of the members elected. Neither Board shall adjourn for a longer period than three days, except by a resolution, to be concurred in by the other body.

§ 5. It shall be the duty of the Clerks of the respective Boards, to publish all ordinances, and amendments of ordinances which shall be passed, and also the proceedings, in the newspapers employed by the Corporation, except such parts as may require secrecy; and whenever a vote shall be taken in either Board upon the passage of a resolution or ordinance which shall contemplate any specific improvement, or involve the sale, disposition or income therefrom, or lay any tax or assessment: such resolution or ordinance shall, before the same shall be sent to the other Board, and immediately after the adjournment of the Board, at which the same shall have been passed, be published, with the ayes and noes, with the names of the persons voting for and against the same, in at least two newspapers, as a part of the proceedings; and no act, resolution or ordinance which shall have passed one Board, shall be acted upon by the other Board on the same day, unless by unanimous consent, except in case of invasion, insurrection, or pestilence.

§ 6. If any ordinance or resolution passed by each Board, as provided by sections twelve and thirteen of the amended charter of one thousand eight hundred and thirty, shall not be returned by the Mayor within ten days (Sundays excepted) after it shall have been presented to him, the same shall become a law in like manner as if he had signed it, unless the close of the session of the Common Council shall prevent its return, in which case it shall not be a law until the expiration of five days after the commencement of the next session of the Common Council, by whom the ordinance or resolution shall be reconsidered, if returned within such time, and be disposed of in the same manner, and with the like effect, as if presented at the preceding session.

§ 7. No money shall be drawn from the city treasury except the same shall have been previously appropriated to the purpose for which it is drawn; and all appropriations shall be based upon specific and detailed statements, in writing, of the several heads of the departments, through the Comptroller.

§ 8. The Board of Assistant Aldermen shall have the sole power of impeachment of all city officers, not otherwise provided for, and pending such impeachment, and until the final disposition thereof, the party impeached shall not exercise any of the functions of his office. The Board of Aldermen shall have the sole power to try all impeachments; when sitting for that purpose, they shall be on oath or affirmation, truly and impartially to try the impeachment, according to evidence; and no person shall be convicted without the concurrence of two-thirds of all the members elected to said Board. Judgment, in case of impeachment, shall not extend farther than removal from office, and disqualification to hold any office under the city charter; but the party convicted shall be liable to indictment, trial, judgment and punishment according to law.

§ 9. The executive power of the Corporation shall be vested in the Mayor, the heads of departments, and such other executive officers as shall be, from time to time, created by law, and neither the Common Council nor any Committee or member thereof, shall perform any executive business whatever, except such as is, or shall be, especially imposed on them by the laws of the state, and except that the Board of Aldermen may approve or reject the nominations made to them, as hereinafter provided.

§ 10. There shall continue to be an Executive Department, which shall be known as the "Police Department," and the Mayor of the city shall be the head officer thereof. There shall be a bureau in this department, and the chief officer thereof shall be denominated the "Chief of Police."

§ 11. There shall be an Executive Department, which shall be denominated "the Department of Finance," which shall have control of all the fiscal concerns of the Corporation, and shall prescribe the forms of keeping and rendering all city accounts whatever; and all accounts rendered to or kept in the several departments of the city government, shall be subject to the inspection and revision of the officers of this department. It shall settle and adjust all claims whatsoever by the Corporation or against them, and all accounts whatsoever, in which the Corporation is concerned, either as debtor or creditor. The chief officer of this department shall be called "the Comptroller of the City of New York." There shall be a bureau in this department for the collection of revenue accruing from taxes, the chief officer thereof shall be called the "Receiver of Taxes," who shall nominate, and with the advice and consent of the Board of Aldermen, appoint so many clerks as shall be authorized by the Common Council; provided that nothing in this act contained shall be held to interfere with the tenure of office of the present Receiver of Taxes and Deputy Receiver of Taxes, as established by the act passed April 11, 1845. There shall be a bureau in this department for the collection of the revenue accruing from rents and interests on bonds and mortgages, and for the performance of such other duties as may be directed by the Common Council, the chief officer of which shall be called the "Collector of the City Revenue." There shall be a bureau in this department for the reception of all moneys paid into the treasury of the city, and for the payment of moneys therefrom on the warrant drawn by the Comptroller, and countersigned by the Mayor and Clerk of the Common Council, and the chief officer thereof shall be called the "Chamberlain of the City of New York."

§ 12. There shall be an Executive Department under the denomination of the "Street Department," which shall have cognizance of opening, regulating and paving streets; building and repairing wharves and piers; digging and building wells, and the construction of public roads, when done by assesment; the filling up of sunken lets, under ordinances of the Common Council from the City Inspector's Department. It shall also have cognizance of collecting the assessments connected with such expenditure; the chief officer shall be called the "Street Commissioner." There shall be a bureau in this department for the collection of assessments, and the chief officer thereof shall be called the "Collector of Assessments," and his assistants, "Deputy Collectors." There shall be a bureau in this department, the chief officer of which shall be called the "Superintendent of Wharves."

§ 13. There shall be an Executive Department to be denominated the "Department of Repairs and Supplies," which shall have cognizance of all repairs and supplies of and for roads and avenues, public pavements, repairs to public buildings, to fire engines and apparatus of Fire Department, and the chief officer thereof shall be called the "Commissioner of Repairs and Supplies." There shall be four bureaux or branches in this department, and the chief officers shall be respectively denominated the "Superintendent of Roads," "Superintendent of Repairs to Public Buildings," "Superintendent of Pavements," and "Chief Engineer of the Fire Department."

§ 14. There shall be an Executive Department, to be denominated the "Department of Streets and Lamps," which shall have cognizance of procuring the necessary supplies for, and of lighting the public streets and places, lighted at the expense of the Corporation, and of cleaning the public streets, and of collecting the revenue arising from the sale of manure, and also of the transferring of butchers' stalls in the public markets. The chief officer thereof shall be denominated the "Commissioner of Streets and Lamps." There shall be three bureaux in this department, and the chief officers thereof shall be called the "Superintendent of Lamps and Gas," "Superintendent of Streets," and "Superintendent of Markets."

§ 15. There shall be an Executive Department under the denomination of the "Croton Aqueduct Board," which shall have charge of the Croton Aqueduct, and all structures, and works, and property connected with the supply and distribution of water to the city of New York, and the underground drainage of the same; and of the public sewers of said city; and the collection of the revenues arising from the sale of the water, with such other powers and duties as shall or may be prescribed by law; the chief officers thereof shall be called the President, Engineer and Assistant Commissioner, who, together, shall form the Croton Aqueduct Board, and hold their offices for five years. There shall be a bureau in this department for the collection of the revenues derived from the sale of the water, and the chief officer thereof shall be called the "Water Register."

§ 16. There shall be an Executive Department, under the denomination of "City Inspector's Department," which shall have cognizance of all matters relative to the public health of said city, and the chief officer thereof shall be called the "City Inspector."

§ 17. There shall be an Executive Department known as the "Alms-house Department," which shall have cognizance of all matters relating to the Alms-house and prisons of said city; the chief officers thereof shall be called the "Governors of the Alms-house." They shall consist of the number, derive and hold their offices, and be charged with the duties, powers, and responsibilities as prescribed by the act, entitled "An act to provide for the government of the Alms-house and Penitentiary, in the City and County of New York."

§ 18. There shall be an Executive Department known as the "Law Department," which shall have the charge of, and conduct all the law business of the Corporation, and of the departments thereof, and all other law business in which the city shall be interested, when so ordered by the Corporation; and shall have the charge of and conduct the legal proceedings necessary in opening, widening or altering streets; and draw the leases, deeds, and other papers connected with the Finance Department, and the chief officer thereof shall be called the "Counsel to the Corporation." There shall be a bureau in this department, the chief officer of which shall be denominated the "Corporation Attorney." There shall be a bureau in this department, the chief officer of which shall be called the "Public Administrator."

§ 19. It shall be lawful for the Common Council of said city to establish such other departments and bureaux as they may deem the public interest may require, and to assign to them and those herein created, such duties as they may direct, not inconsistent with this act; but no expense shall be incurred by any of the departments or officers thereof, whether the object of expenditures shall have been ordered by the Common Council or not, unless an appropriation shall have been previously made concerning such expense; and no member of the Common Council, head of department, chief of bureau, deputy thereof, or clerk therein, or other officer of the Corporation, shall be directly or indirectly interested in any contract, work or business, or the sale of any article, the expense, price, or consideration of which is paid from the city treasury, or by any assessment levied by any act or ordinance of the Common Council, nor in the purchase of any real estate or other property belonging to the Corporation, or which shall be sold for taxes or assessments.

§ 20. The heads of departments, except the Croton Aqueduct Board, shall be elected every three years by the people. In case of vacancy of any of said heads of departments, by removal from office or otherwise, the Mayor, by and with the advice and consent of the Board of Aldermen, shall appoint a person to fill the same until the vacancy shall be filled by the electors at the next charter election. The heads of departments shall nominate, and by and with the consent of the Board of Aldermen, appoint the heads of bureaux in their several departments, except the Chamberlain of the city of New York, the Receiver of Taxes, and the Chief Engineer of the Fire Department. The heads of departments shall also in like manner appoint the clerks in their immediate offices. The heads of bureaux shall nominate, and with the consent of the Board of Aldermen, appoint all clerks in their respective bureaux. The Mayor shall nominate, and by and with the consent of the Board of Aldermen, appoint the Chamberlain of the city of New York, the chief officers of the Croton Aqueduct Department, and the Receiver of Taxes. The Chief of the Fire Department shall be elected in the same manner as is now, or may hereafter be prescribed by law. The number of officers and clerks in the several departments shall be prescribed by the Common Council. The terms of all charter officers, not prescribed by law of the state, shall be fixed by the Common Council. All officers whose appointments are not otherwise provided for, shall be elected or appointed in such manner as the Common Council shall by law prescribe. Any officer of the city government, except the Mayor and members of the Common Council, may be removed from office by concurrent resolution of both branches of the Common Council; provided that no removal shall take place until the party sought to be removed has had an opportunity to be heard in his defence, and unless two-thirds of the whole number of both branches vote therefor; and provided, also, that the cause of such removal shall be entered at large upon the journals of both branches of the Common Council. Any head of the department may remove any clerk in his department, or any bureau thereof, with the consent of the Mayor.

§ 21. The several Executive Departments, and the officers and clerks thereof, shall be subject to the legislative regulation and direction of the Common Council, so far as the same shall not be inconsistent with this act; and the duties thereof shall be performed in accordance with the charter and laws and ordinances of the city. The Mayor, and each Board of the Common Council, may at any time require the opinion in writing of the head of any department, upon any subject relating to his department, or any information possessed by him in relation thereto. And every head of department shall report in writing to the Common Council, at the commencement of each stated session, the state of his department, with such suggestions in relation to the improvement thereof, and to the public business connected therewith, as he may deem advisable.

§ 22. Whenever a vacancy shall occur in the office of Assessor, by death, removal from the ward, resignation or otherwise, the Board of Assessors shall fill the same by the appointment of a citizen of the ward in which the vacancy shall occur, until the vacancy shall be supplied by the electors of the ward at the next election. And all assessments and awards shall be open to public inspection at least twenty days, by public notice thereof, before being certified to the proper department; and the assessments made by the assessors for all taxes, shall be made between the first day of January and the first day of April in each year.

§ 23. All contracts to be made or let by authority of the Common Council, for work to be done or supplies to be furnished, and all sales of personal property in the custody of the several departments or bureaux, shall be made by the appropriate heads of departments, under such regulations as shall be established by ordinances of the Common Council. Every person elected or appointed to any office under the city government, shall take and subscribe an oath or affirmation before the Mayor, faithfully to perform the duties of his office, which oath or affirmation shall be filed in the Mayor's office.

§ 24. All officers or other persons to whom the receipts or expenditures of the funds of the city, or fees or funds payable into the city treasury, shall be intrusted, shall give sufficient security for the faithful performance of their duty, in such form and amount as the Common Council may, by ordinance, prescribe; which shall be annually renewed. No security shall be deemed canceled or lost for want of renewal or reappointment.

§ 25. Any officer of the city government, or person or persons employed in any department thereof, who shall wilfully violate any of the provisions of this charter, or commit any fraud, or convert any of the public property to his own use, or knowingly permit any other person so to convert it, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and in addition to the penalties imposed by law shall forfeit his office, and be excluded forever after from receiving or holding any office under the city charter. And any person who shall wilfully swear falsely in any oath or affirmation required by this act, shall be guilty of perjury.

§ 26. The first election of officers to be elected under this act, shall be held at the next general state election. The Mayor who shall be elected at the charter election, on the second Tuesday in April, one thousand eight hundred and forty-nine, shall hold his office until the first Monday of January, 1851, and the Aldermen and Assistant Aldermen who shall be elected at that election, shall hold their office until the first Monday of January 1850, and no longer. All officers of said city government who shall be in office when this act shall take effect, shall hold their offices and execute the duties thereof, until their successors shall be duly qualified.

§ 27. The seventh section of the act, entitled "An act to amend the charter of the city of New York," passed April 7th, 1830, and all provisions of law and of charter, which are inconsistent with this act are hereby repealed.

§ 28. All such parts of the charter of the city of New York, and the several acts of the legislature amending the same, or in any manner affecting the same, as are inconsistent with this act, are hereby repealed; but so much and such parts thereof as are not inconsistent with the provisions of this law, shall not be construed as repealed, altered or modified, or in any form affected thereby, but shall continue and remain in full force and virtue.

§ 29. This act shall be submitted for the approval of the electors of the city and county of New York, at an election to be held in said city, on the second Tuesday of April, one thousand eight hundred and forty-nine, for which the Common Council of the city shall make the necessary arrangements. The tickets which shall be polled at the said election, shall contain either the words, "In favor of amendments to charter," or "Against amendments to charter," and if a majority of all the persons voting thereon at the said election shall vote the ticket "In favor of amendments to charter," this act shall become a law; if a majority of such persons shall vote "Against amendments to charter," this act shall be void.

§ 30. In case this act shall be approved of by a majority of the electors of said city, as aforesaid, and become a law, it shall go into effect on the first day of June next; and the terms of office of all the officers elected at such election on the second Tuesday of April next, shall expire on the days and in the manner hereinbefore provided.

AN ACT

TO AMEND AN ACT ENTITLED "AN ACT TO AMEND THE CHARTER OF THE CITY OF NEW YORK," PASSED APRIL 2, 1849.

PASSED JULY 11, 1851.

The People of the State of New York, represented in Senate and Assembly do enact as follows :

§ 1. The third section of said act shall be amended by striking out the following words: "and thereafter the Common Council shall annually hold only three stated sessions of not exceeding one month each, commencing on the first Monday of January, May and September," and insert in lieu thereof the following words: "and thereafter the Common Council shall hold their sessions monthly, commencing on the first Monday of each month," but at no such session shall the members be entitled to draw any per diem allowance for a longer period than eight days.

§ 2. Section twenty is hereby amended so as to read as follows: "The heads of departments, except the Croton Aqueduct Board, shall be elected every three years by the people. In case of vacancy of any of said heads of departments, by removal from office or otherwise, the Mayor, by and with the consent of the Board of Aldermen, shall appoint a person to fill the same, until the vacancy shall be filled by the electors at the next charter election. The heads of departments shall nominate, and by and with the consent of the Board of Aldermen, appoint the heads of bureaux in their several departments, except the Chamberlain of the city of New York, the Receiver of Taxes, and the Chief Engineer of the Fire Department; but in case the Mayor shall neglect or refuse to nominate the chief officer of a bureau in the Police Department, designated as the Chief of Police, for five days after the commencement of the session of the Common Council, to be holden in August, eighteen hundred and fifty-one, it shall be the duty of the Board of Aldermen to appoint such officer forthwith. And in case the Mayor shall make such nomination, and it shall be rejected by the Board of Aldermen, the Board of Aldermen shall have power, at any regular session of the Common Council, to appoint such officer, provided that five days of any such session shall elapse without another nomination being made by the Mayor, and that no appointment of such officer shall have been made as heretofore provided; the heads of departments shall nominate, and by and with the consent of the Board of Aldermen, appoint the clerks in their immediate offices. The heads of bureaux shall nominate, and with the consent of the Board of Aldermen, appoint all clerks in their respective bureaux. The Mayor shall nominate, and by and with the consent of the Board of Aldermen, appoint the Chamberlain of the city of New York, the chief officers of the Croton Aqueduct Department, and the Receiver of Taxes. The Chief of the Fire Department, shall be elected in the same manner as is now or may hereafter be prescribed by law. The number of officers and clerks in the several departments shall be prescribed by the Common Council; the terms of all charter officers, not prescribed by the law of the State, shall be fixed by the Common Council."

IN RELATION TO THE CHIEF OF POLICE OF THE CITY OF NEW YORK.

PASSED APRIL 10, 1852.

The People of the State of New York, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows :

§ 1. All that portion of section second of an act entitled "An act to amend the charter of the city of New York," passed July 11, 1851, relative to the appointment of the Chief of Police, be, and the same is hereby repealed.

§ 2. This act shall take effect immediately

A N A C T

FURTHER TO AMEND THE CHARTER OF THE CITY OF NEW YORK.

PASSED APRIL 12, 1853.

The People of the State of New York, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows :

§ 1. The legislative powers of the Corporation of the City of New York, shall be vested in a Board of Aldermen and a Board of Councilmen, who, together shall form the Common Council of the city.

The Board of Aldermen shall consist of one Alderman from each ward, who shall be elected by the people of the respective wards for two years. The Board of Councilmen shall consist of sixty members, to be elected from as many districts, who shall be sworn into office on the first Monday of January next succeeding their election, and shall hold their offices for one year, and shall receive the same compensation as the Aldermen.

§ 2. The members of the Board of Aldermen, first elected under this act, shall be classified as follows: on or before the first Tuesday in December, succeeding the next general election, the Clerk of the city and county of New York shall, in the presence of the Mayor, Recorder, and Comptroller, or a majority thereof, draw from a box to be provided for the purpose, in which two ballots shall have been deposited, having thereon, respectively, either the word "Odd," or the word "Even;" one ballot, if the ballot so drawn shall have thereon the word "Odd," then the term of the office of the Aldermen chosen from the wards having an odd numerical designation, shall expire on the first Monday of January, one thousand eight hundred and fifty-five; and in case the ballot having thereon the word "Even" shall be drawn, then the term of office of the Aldermen having an even numerical designation, shall expire, on the first Monday of January, one thousand eight hundred and fifty-six. At all subsequent elections Aldermen shall be elected for the full term of two years.

§ 3. For the election of Councilmen, the said city shall be divided into sixty districts, of contiguous territory, and as near as may be of equal population, each of which shall choose one Councilman. The Common Council shall so divide the city into such districts, on or before the first Monday in September next; and thereafter, within one year after the State and National Census shall have been completed, the Common Council shall, in like manner, re-district said city.

§ 4. Every act, resolution, or ordinance, appropriating money, or involving the expenditure of money, not rendered imperative under the provisions of any State law, shall originate in the Board of Councilmen; but the Board of Aldermen may propose, or concur with amendments, as in other cases.

§ 5. A vote of two-thirds of all the members elected to each Board, shall be necessary to pass any act, ordinance, or resolution of the Common Council, which shall have been returned by the Mayor, with his objections.

§ 6. No Alderman shall hereafter sit, or act as judge in the Court of Oyer and Terminer, or in the Courts of General or Special Sessions, in the city and county of New York; but this section shall not prevent his exercising the powers of a magistrate, in the arrest, commitment, or bailing of offenders, except that he cannot let to bail, or discharge a person arrested or committed by another magistrate.

§ 7. All ferries, docks, piers and slips shall be leased; and all leases and sales of public property and franchises (other than grants of lands under water, to which the owner of the upland shall have a pre-emption right.) shall be made by public auction, and to the highest bidder, who will give adequate security, (no lease hereafter given, except as the same may be required by covenants of the Corporation already existing, shall be for a longer period than ten years; and all ferry leases shall be revocable, by the Common Council, for mismanagement or neglect to provide adequate accommodations.) All persons requiring any ferry lease or franchise, under the provisions of this act, shall be required to purchase, at a fair appraised valuation, the boats, buildings, and other property of the former lessees, actually necessary for the purposes of such ferry. Previous notice of all sales referred to in this section, shall be given under the direction of the Comptroller, for thirty days, in the newspapers employed by the Corporation.

§ 8. No bids shall be accepted from, or contract awarded to, any person who is in arrears to the Corporation, upon debt or contracts, or who is a defaulter, as security or otherwise, upon any obligation to the Corporation.

§ 9. No money shall be expended by the Corporation for any celebration, procession, or entertainment of any kind, or on any occasion, except for the celebration of the anniversary of the National Independence, the twenty-fifth of November, "Evacuation Day," and the anniversary of the birthday of Washington, unless by the vote of three-fourths of all the members elected in each Board of the Common Council.

§ 10. No additional allowance beyond the legal claim, under any contract with the Corporation, or for any service on its account, or in its employment, shall ever be allowed.

§ 11. The officers of the police and policemen shall hereafter be appointed by a Board of Commissioners, consisting of the Mayor, Recorder, and City Judge.

§ 12. All work to be done, and all supplies to be furnished by the Corporation, involving an expenditure of more than two hundred and fifty dollars, shall be by contract, founded on sealed bids or proposals made in compliance with public notice, for the full period of ten days; and all such contracts, when given, shall be given to the lowest bidder, with adequate security. All such bids or proposals shall be opened by the Heads of Departments advertising for them, in the presence of the Comptroller, and such of the parties making them as may desire to be present.

§ 13. There shall be a bureau in the Department of Finance, to be called the "Auditing Bureau," and the chief officer thereof shall be the "Auditor of Accounts." It shall revise, audit and settle all accounts in which the city is concerned, as debtor or creditor; it shall keep an account of each claim for or against the Corporation and of the sums allowed upon each, and certify the same, with reasons therefor, to the Comptroller. The Comptroller shall report to the Common Council, once in ninety days, the name and decision of the auditor upon the same, together with the final action of the Comptroller thereon. All moneys drawn from the city treasury shall be upon vouchers for the expenditure thereof, examined and allowed by the auditor, and approved by the Comptroller.

§ 14. Every person who shall promise, offer, or give, or cause or aid, or abet, in causing to be promised, offered or given, or furnish, or agree to furnish, in whole or in part, to be promised, offered, or given to any member of the Common Council, or to any officer of the Corporation after his election as such member, or before or after he shall have qualified and taken his seat, any money, goods, right in action, or other property, or any thing of value, or any pecuniary advantage, present or prospective, with intent to influence his vote, opinion, judgment, or action on any question, matter, cause, or proceeding which may be then pending, or may by law be brought before him, in his official capacity, shall, upon conviction, be imprisoned in a state prison for a term not exceeding ten years, or shall be fined not exceeding five thousand dollars, or both, in the discretion of the court. Every officer in this section enumerated, who shall accept any such gift, or any promise or undertaking to make the same, under any agreement or undertaking that his vote, opinion, judgment, or action shall be influenced thereby, or shall be given in any particular manner, or upon any particular side of any question, matter, cause or proceeding then pending, or which may by law be brought before him in his official capacity, shall, upon conviction, be disqualified from holding any public office, trust or appointment, under the charter of the city of New York, and shall forfeit his office, and shall be punished by imprisonment in a state prison, not exceeding ten years, or by a fine not exceeding five thousand dollars, or both, in the discretion of the court. Every person offending against either of the provisions of this section shall be a competent witness against any other person offending in the same transaction, and may be compelled to appear and give evidence before any grand jury, or in any court, in the same manner as other persons; but the testimony so given shall not be used in any prosecution or proceeding, civil or criminal, against the person so testifying.

§ 15. No contract by the Supervisors shall be valid unless expressly authorized by statute, and such as are authorized must be made in the manner provided in the twelfth section of this act.

§ 16. All ordinary appropriations made for the support and government of the Alms-house Department shall, before the same are finally made, be submitted by the Governors of the Alms-house to a Board of Commissioners, consisting of the Mayor, Recorder, Comptroller, the President of the Board of Aldermen, and the President of the Board of Councilmen; if the said Commissioners approve of the appropriations, they shall immediately report the same to the Board of Supervisors; if they shall disapprove of the same, they shall return them, with their objections, to the Governors of the Alms-house for reconsideration; and in case the said Governors shall, upon a reconsideration, adhere by a vote of two-thirds of all the Governors then in office, to the original appropriations, they shall return them to the Commissioners, whose duty it shall be to report to the Board of Supervisors.

§ 17. The Board of Education shall also submit, in like manner, all appropriations required by them, to the Commissioners named in the last preceding section; and said appropriations shall be subject to all the provisions of said section, so far as the same may be applicable.

§ 18. All such parts of the charter of the city of New York, and the several acts of the Legislature amending the same, or in any manner affecting the same, as are inconsistent with this act, are hereby repealed; but so much and such parts thereof as are not inconsistent with the provisions of this law, shall not be construed as repealed, altered or modified, or in any form affected thereby, but shall continue and remain in full force and effect.

§ 19. The power now vested in the Mayor, Aldermen, and Assistant Aldermen, in granting and revoking tavern licenses, together with all other powers as Excise Commissioners, shall be hereafter vested in the Mayor, with the Alderman and Councilman representing the district in which the premises of the party licensed or to be licensed may be located.

§ 20. This act shall be submitted for the approval of the electors of the city and county of New York, at an election to be held in said city, on the Tuesday next succeeding the first Monday in June, one thousand eight hundred and fifty-three. The tickets which shall be polled at such election shall contain either the words "In favor of Amendments to Charter," or "Against Amendments to Charter;" and if a majority of all the persons voting thereon at such election shall vote the ticket "In favor of Amendments to Charter," this act shall become a law; if a majority of such electors shall vote the ticket "Against Amendments to Charter," this act shall be void.

§ 21. The Common Council are hereby authorized and directed to make all necessary arrangements, by ordinance or otherwise, for the conduct and regulation of all elections authorized under the provisions of this act and in conformity, as far as may be, to the general election laws.

STATE OF NEW YORK, }

SUPPLEMENTARY TO AN ACT ENTITLED "AN ACT FURTHER TO AMEND THE CHARTER OF THE CITY OF NEW YORK;" PASSED APRIL 12, 1853.

PASSED JUNE 14, 1853—THREE-FIFTHS BEING PRESENT.

The People of the State of New York, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows:

§ 1. The second section of the act entitled "An act further to amend the charter of the city of New York," passed April 12, 1853, is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

§ 2. The members of the Board of Aldermen first elected under this act shall be classified as follows, on or before the first Tuesday in December succeeding the next general election, the Clerk of the city and county of New York shall, in presence of the Mayor, Recorder and Comptroller, or a majority of them, draw from a box, to be provided for the purpose, in which two ballots shall have been deposited, having thereon respectively either the word "Odd," or the word "Even;" one ballot, if the ballot so drawn shall have thereon the word "Odd," then the term of office of the Aldermen chosen from wards having an odd numerical designation, shall expire on the first Monday of January, one thousand eight hundred and fifty-five; and in case the ballot having thereon the word "Even," shall be drawn, then the term of office of the Aldermen chosen from wards having an even numerical designation, shall expire on the first Monday of January one thousand eight hundred and fifty-five. At all subsequent elections, Aldermen shall be elected for the full term of office."

§2. Until the Aldermen and Councilmen to be chosen at the next general election in and for said city, as in the said act provided, shall enter on their offices, the Aldermen and Assistant Aldermen now in office in said city, shall continue to form the Common Council thereof, subject, however, to all the provisions of the said act.

§3. Hereafter, Courts of Oyer and Terminer, in and for said city may be held by a Justice of the Supreme Court, and Court of General Sessions of the Peace in and for said city by the Recorder, or City Judge of said city; and when either of the said courts shall be so held by a single judge, all the powers and jurisdiction appertaining by law to such court, shall be possessed and exercised by such judge.

§4. This act, and the act to which it is supplementary, shall commence and take effect as laws immediately.

STATE OF NEW YORK, }
Secretary's Office. } I have compared the preceding with the original law on file in this office, and do certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole of said original.

 this sixteenth day of June, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and fifty-three.

HENRY S. RANDALL,
Secretary of State.

RULES AND ORDERS
OF THE
BOARD OF ALDERMEN.

PASSED JANUARY 7, 1856.

I. UPON the appearance of a quorum, the President, or in his absence a President pro tem. shall take the chair as President, and the members be called to order.

II. In case the President shall not attend, the Clerk, on the appearance of a quorum, shall call the Board to order, when a President pro tem. shall be appointed by the Board, for that meeting, or until the appearance of the President.

III. After the reading and approving of the minutes, the order of business, which shall not in any case be departed from, except by the consent of twelve members voting therefor, shall be as follows:

1st. Presentation of petitions.

2d. Motions or resolutions.

3d. Reports of Committees.

4th. Communications and reports from the Departments or Corporation offices.

5th. Unfinished business.

6th. Special orders of the day.

7th. Messages, papers from the Mayor, or the Board of Councilmen, may be considered at any time.

IV. Whenever the President may wish to leave the chair he shall have power to substitute a member in his place, provided that substitution shall not continue beyond the day on which it is made.

V. The President, in all cases, has the right of voting; and when the Board shall be equally divided, including his vote, the question shall be lost.

VI. Whenever it shall be moved and carried, that the Board go into Committee of the Whole, the President shall leave the chair, and shall appoint a Chairman of the Committee of the Whole, who shall report the proceedings of the Committee. The rules of the Board shall be observed in the Committee of the Whole, except the rules respecting a call for the ayes and noes, and limiting the time for speaking.

VII. On motion in Committee to rise and report, the question shall be decided without debate.

VIII. No amendment shall be allowed in the Board on any question which has been decided in Committee of the Whole, unless by the consent of two-thirds of the members present.

IX. If the question in debate contain several points, any member may have the same divided.

X. A motion to refer or lay on the table, until it is decided, shall preclude all amendments to the main question.

XI. When a question has been once put and decided, it shall be in order for any member who voted in the majority to move for the reconsideration thereof; but no motion for the reconsideration of any vote shall be made after the ordinance, resolution, or act shall have gone out of the possession of the Board; and no motion of reconsideration shall be taken more than once.

XII. No act, resolution, or ordinance sent to this Board from the other Board for concurrence, shall be acted upon the same day it passed the other Board, unless by unanimous consent of the members present, except in case of invasion, insurrection or pestilence.

XIII. It shall be the duty of the Clerk to publish all ordinances and amendments of ordinances which shall be passed, and also the proceedings, in the newspapers employed by the Corporation, except such parts as may require secrecy; and whenever a vote shall be taken upon the passage of a resolution or ordinance which shall contemplate any specific improvement, or involve the sale, disposition or appropriation of public property or lay any tax or assessment, he shall, before the same is sent to the other Board, and immediately after the adjournment, cause the same to be published, with the ayes and noes, with the names of the persons voting for and against the same, in at least two newspapers, as a part of the proceedings, and shall thereafter certify and send to the other Board every act, ordinance and resolution which has originated in and passed this Board, and which requires a concurrent vote of the Board of Councilmen; and to deliver to the Mayor, certified in like manner, all such ordinances and resolutions which shall have been received from the Board of Councilmen, and concurred in by this Board, and which are required to be submitted to him for approval, and shall certify to the other Board the proceedings of this Board, in reference to all acts or business originating with the other Board.

XIV. The President shall preserve order and decorum, and shall decide questions of order, subject to an appeal to the Board.

XV. Every member, previous to his speaking, shall rise from his seat and address himself to the President.

XVI. When two or more members shall rise at once, the President shall name the member who is first to speak.

XVII. No person shall speak more than twice to the same question, without leave of the Board; nor more than once, until every member choosing to speak shall have spoken.

XVIII. While a member is speaking no member shall entertain any private discourse, or pass between himself and the chair.

XIX. No question on a resolution shall be debated or put, unless the same be seconded. When a motion is seconded, it shall be stated by the President before debate; and every such motion shall be reduced to writing, if any member desire it.

XX. After a motion is stated by the President, it shall be deemed to be in the possession of the Board; but it may be withdrawn at any time by the mover, before decision or amendment.

XXI. When a question is under debate, no motion shall be received, unless

| 1. To amend it. | 4. To postpone it. |
| 2. To commit it. | 5. For the previous question, or |
| 3. To lay on the table. | 6. To adjourn. |

XXII. A motion to lay on the table shall be decided without amendment or debate, and a motion to commit, until it is decided, shall preclude all amendments and debate of the main question.

XXIII. A motion to adjourn shall always be in order, and shall be decided without debate.

XXIV. The previous question, until it is decided, shall preclude all amendments and debate, and shall be put in this form—"Shall the main question be now put?"

XXV. Every member who shall be present when a question is put, shall vote for or against the same, unless the Board shall excuse him, unless he be immediately interested in the question, in which case he shall not vote; but no member shall be permitted to vote upon a question when a division is called, unless present when his name is called in its regular order.

XXVI. A member called to order, shall immediately sit down, unless permitted to explain; and the Board, if appealed to, shall decide on the case, but without debate. If there be no appeal, the decision of the Chair shall be submitted to.

XXVII. All questions shall be put in the order they are moved, except in filling up blanks—the longest time and the largest sum shall be first put.

XXVIII. The ayes and noes shall be taken at the request of a member, and the name of the member calling for the division shall be entered on the minutes.

XXIX. Upon a division of the Board, the names of those who vote for, and those who vote against the question shall be entered upon the minutes.

XXX. All appointments of officers shall be by ballot, unless dispensed with by consent of the Board; and a majority of the whole number present shall be necessary to constitute a choice.

XXXI. No member shall absent himself without permission from the President.

XXXII. All Committees shall be appointed by the President, unless otherwise ordered by the Board.

XXXIII. Committees appointed to report on any subject referred to them by the Board, shall report the facts in relation to the subject referred, with their opinion thereon, in writing, and shall attach thereto all resolutions, petitions, remonstrances, and other papers relative to the matter referred; and no report shall be received, except the same be signed by a majority of the Committee; but nothing contained in this rule shall prevent a minority of any Committee from submitting a report. And no report shall be printed; unless by the express direction of the Board, specifying the number of copies to be printed.

XXXIV. Whenever the doors are directed to be closed, all persons, except the members and the Clerk, shall retire.

XXXV. Every petition, remonstrance, or other written application, intended to be presented to the Common Council, may be delivered to the President or any member of the Board, and the member to whom it shall be given, shall examine the same, and indorse thereon the name of the applicant, and the substance of such application, and sign his name thereto, which indorsement only shall be read by the President, unless a member shall require the reading of the paper, in which case the whole shall be read.

XXXVI. STANDING COMMITTEES, consisting of three members each, shall be appointed on the following subjects:

1. Alms-house Department.
2. Arts and Sciences.
3. Assessments.
4. Cleaning Streets
5. Ferries.
6. Finance.
7. Fire Department.
8. Joint Committee on Accounts.

19. Roads.
20. Salaries and Offices.
21. Sewers.
22. Streets.
23. Wharves, Piers and Slips.
24. Railroads.

XXXVII. The President shall be, ex officio, a member of all Committees; but a majority of such Committee, exclusive of the President, shall be sufficient to agree upon a report.

XXXVIII. The members of the Board shall not leave their places on adjournment, until the President leave the chair

XXXIX. None of the foregoing rules and orders shall be amended or repealed, except by the vote of at least a quorum.

D. T. VALENTINE, Clerk.

 OF THE
BOARD OF COUNCILMEN.

PASSED JANUARY 7, 1856.

I. UPON the appearance of thirty-one members, the Board shall be called to order by the President, or if he be absent, by the Clerk, and a President pro tem. appointed by the Board, for that meeting, or until the President appear.

II. After reading and approving the minutes, the order of business, which shall not be departed from, except by the consent of forty members, shall be as follows:

1. Presentation of petitions.
2. Motions and Resolutions, for which the Wards shall be called in numerical order, beginning at alternate meetings with the First Ward and the Twenty-second Ward.
3. Reports of Committees.
4. Communications and Reports from the Departments.
5. Third reading of acts, resolutions and ordinances.
6. Special orders of the day.
7. General orders.
8. Messages from the Mayor and the Board of Aldermen may be received at any time.
9. Unfinished business may be resumed at any time under the same order upon which it was taken up.

III. Every petition, remonstrance, and other paper presented to the Board shall be presented by a member in his place; and before presenting the same, the person presenting, shall indorse thereon the substance thereof, and sign his name thereto.

IV. No motion or resolution shall be debated or put unless it be seconded, nor until it be stated by the President; and every such motion shall be reduced to writing, if any member desire it.

V. When the Board shall be equally divided, including the vote of the President, the question shall be lost.

VI. A motion or resolution may be withdrawn at any time before action had on it.

VII. Resolutions, giving rise to debate, upon the request of five members, shall lie over one day; after which they may be called up, of course, under that order of business.

VIII. All questions, relating to the priority of business shall be decided by the President, without debate.

IX. The President shall preserve order and decorum, and decide all questions of order, subject to an appeal to the Board.

X. Whenever the President shall wish to leave the chair, he may substitute a member in his place; but such substitution shall not continue beyond the day on which it is made.

XI. The President may call special meetings of the Board, whenever, in his judgment, the interests of the city may require it.

XII. Every act, resolution, or ordinance, appropriating money, or involving an expenditure of money, or relating to any lease, or sale, or other disposition or appropriation of any public property, privilege or franchise, shall be referred to the Committee of the Whole, unless otherwise ordered by forty members. Every act, resolution, or ordinance, which may have been referred to the Committee of the Whole, shall receive three several readings previous to its being passed, and the third reading shall not be on the same day on which it is acted on in committee, unless by consent of forty members.

XIII. In forming a Committee of the Whole, the President shall leave the chair and appoint a chairman to preside. The rules of the Board shall be observed in such Committee, except the rules respecting the ayes and noes, the times of speaking, and the previous question.

XIV. On motion in Committee to rise and report, the question shall be decided without debate.

XV. After the report of the Committee, such amendments only shall be in order, as were offered and acted on in Committee.

XVI. When the question in debate contains several distinct propositions, any member may have the same divided.

XVII. All questions shall be put in the order they are moved, except those of privilege. When the blanks are to be filled, the longest time and smallest sum shall be put first.

XVIII. When a question is under debate, no motion shall be entertained, unless,

1. To adjourn.
2. To lay on the table.
3. For the previous question.
4. To postpone to a day certain.
5. To refer.
6. To postpone indefinitely.

7. To amend. Which motions shall have precedence in the order in which they stand. A call of the Board may be ordered at any time.

XIX. When a resolution shall be offered, or a motion be made to refer any subject, and different Committees shall be proposed, the question shall be taken in the following order :

1. A Standing Committee.
2. A Select Committee.
3. The Committee of the Whole.

XX. A motion to refer, or lay on the table, until it is decided, shall preclude all amendment and debate of the main question. A motion to postpone, until it is decided, shall preclude all amendment to the main question. A motion to adjourn shall always be in order; and that, and a motion for a call of the Board, shall be decided without debate.

XXI. No act, resolution, or ordinance, sent from the Board of Aldermen, shall be called up for final passage on the same day it is presented to this Board, unless by consent of forty members; nor shall it be acted upon on the same day it shall have passed the other Board, unless by unanimous consent; except in case of invasion, insurrection or pestilence.

XXII. It shall be the duty of the Clerk to publish all ordinances and amendments of ordinances which shall be passed; and also, the proceedings in the newspapers employed by the Corporation, except such parts as may require secrecy; and whenever a vote shall be taken upon the passage of a resolution or ordinance, which shall contemplate any specific improvement, or involve the sale, disposition or appropriation of public property, or the expenditure of public money, or the income therefrom, or lay any tax or assessment, he shall, before the same is sent to the other Board, and immediately after the adjournment, cause the same to be published, with the ayes and noes, with the names of the persons voting for and against the same, in at least two newspapers, as a part of the proceedings, and shall thereafter certify and send to the other Board every act, resolution, and ordinance, which has originated in and passed this Board, and which require a concurrent vote of the Board of Aldermen, and shall deliver to the Mayor, certified in like manner, all such acts, ordinances and resolutions which shall have been received from the Board of Aldermen, and concurred in by this Board, and which are required to be submitted to him for his approval; and shall certify to the other Board, the proceedings of this Board, in reference to all acts or business originating with the other Board.

XXIII. It shall also be the duty of the Clerk to make and keep a list of all messages, acts, resolutions, ordinances and reports, not finally or specially disposed of, in order of priority, which list shall be the "General Orders;" also, a like list or "Calendar of matters ordered to the Committee of the Whole;" also, a like list or "Calendar of matters ordered to a Third Reading."

XXIV. Every member who shall be present when a question is put, shall vote thereon, unless the Board shall excuse him, or unless he be immediately interested in the question, in which case he shall not vote. But no member, on a taking of the ayes and noes, shall be permitted to vote, unless present when his name is called in regular order, except by consent of a majority of the members present.

XXV. Any member who shall have voted with the majority, may move for a reconsideration, provided he do so at the same or the next meeting; and whilst the act, resolution or ordinance is in the possession of the Board, such motion having been once put and lost, shall not be renewed, except by the consent of forty members.

XXVI. Every member, previous to speaking, shall rise in his place and address the President.

XXVII. When two or more members rise at the same time, the President shall name the member who is first to speak.

XXVIII. No person shall speak more than twice to the same question, without leave of the Board, nor more than once, till every member, choosing to speak, shall have spoken.

XXIX. A member called to order shall immediately sit down, unless permitted to explain; and the Board, if appealed to, shall at once decide on the case, without debate. If there be no appeal, the decision of the chair shall be submitted to.

XXX. The previous question shall be admitted only when demanded by a majority of the members present, and until decided, shall preclude all amendment or debate, and must be put in this form: "Shall the main question be now put?"

XXXI. When the previous question shall have been ordered, and there shall be pending amendments adopted in Committee of the Whole, but not acted on in the Board, the question shall be first taken upon such amendments, in their order, and then upon the main question, without further debate or amendment.

XXXII. On taking a vote by ayes and noes, in the cases required by law, as well as when required by five members, the names of those who vote for and those who vote against the question shall be so entered in the minutes; and when so taken, on the call of a member, the name of such member, and the fact, shall also be entered in the minutes.

XXXIII. All appointments of officers shall be by ballot.

XXXIV. All Committees shall be appointed by the President, unless otherwise ordered by the Board.

XXXV. The Standing Committees shall be as follows;

1. Alms-house Department.
2. Arts and Sciences.
3. Assessments.
4. Cleaning Streets.
5. Croton Aqueduct.
6. Ferries.
7. Finance.
8. Fire Department.
9. Lamps and Gas.
10. Lands and Places.
11. Law Department.
12. Markets.

13. Ordinances.
14. Police.
15. Public Health.
16. Public Buildings on Blackwell's Island, Ward's Island, Randall's Island and Bellevue establishment.
17. Railroads.
18. Repairs and Supplies.
19. Roads.
20. Salaries and Offices.
21. Sewers.
22. Streets.
23. Wharves, Piers and Slips.
24. Joint Committee on Accounts—each of which shall consist of five members, except the Joint Committee on Accounts, which shall consist of three members only.

XXXVI. The President shall be ex officio a member of all Committees; but a majority of the other members shall be sufficient to agree upon a report.

XXXVII. Committees shall inquire into the matters referred to them, and report, in writing, the facts in relation thereto, with their opinions thereon, and attach to such report all resolutions, petitions, remonstrances, and other papers relating to the matters referred, but no report shall be made without consent first had, unless signed by a majority of the Committee; nor shall any matter reported on, be taken up for final action the same day on which it is reported, unless by the consent of forty members. No report shall be printed unless by the express direction of the Board; specifying the number of copies to be printed.

XXXVIII. No member shall absent himself without permission of the President; nor, on adjournment, leave his place, until the President leaves the chair.

XXXIX. Whenever the doors are directed to be closed, all persons, excepting the members and the clerk, shall retire.

XL. No person shall be permitted on the floor of the Council unless in the discharge of official duty, or by special invitation of a member, except the Mayor, Aldermen, Heads of Departments, or officers of the state government, and reporters for the press. The privilege of admission, under any invitation, shall not extend beyond the day for which it is given.

XLI. The regular sessions of the Board shall commence on the first Monday of each month, at five o'clock P.M., and shall continue on each Monday, Wednesday and Friday, at the same hour, until the business of the monthly session is concluded; provided that the Board may, by a vote of a majority of the members present, adjourn for a shorter time. And the first business in order on Friday evenings shall be the third reading of bills.

XLII. No standing rule or order of this Board shall be changed, or rescinded, without one day's previous notice being given of the motion therefor. But any rule or order may be suspended, for a special purpose, by a vote of forty members.

 BOARD OF SUPERVISORS.

The Board of Supervisors of the county of New York is composed of the Mayor, Recorder and Aldermen of the city of New York. The general powers and duties of the said Board of Supervisors are found in the fourth edition of Revised Statutes, vol. 1, pages 675-684.

Those powers and duties in relation to levying taxes and assessments are also defined in the fourth edition of Revised Statutes, vol. 1, pages 760-780.

In pursuance of a call, signed by a majority of the members of the Board of Supervisors, as provided by law, the Board convened on the 8th January, when, on motion to ballot for a chairman for the ensuing year, NATHAN C. ELY, Esq., the Supervisor of the Seventeenth Ward, received the highest number of votes, and was declared duly elected chairman of the Board.

The Standing Committees of the Board, at the time of putting this portion of the work to press, had not been appointed.

INSTITUTION OF CHIEF OF POLICE.

POLICE DEPARTMENT.

AN ACT

FOR THE ESTABLISHMENT AND REGULATION OF THE POLICE OF THE CITY OF NEW YORK.

PASSED MAY 7, 1844, BY A TWO-THIRD VOTE.

The People of the State of New York, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows:

ARTICLE I—OF POLICE.

§ 3. The Corporation, by ordinance, shall divide the city into two or more Police Districts, in each of which districts shall be established a Police Court and office.

§ 4. The business of the Police Courts, in two of said police districts, shall be conducted by the Police Courts now established by law, in and for said city; and if the city shall be divided into more than two police districts, the Police Court which shall be established for such additional district, shall possess all the powers, and be subject to all the laws relating to the police courts now established in and for said city. The Corporation, by ordinance, shall prescribe the time and place for holding such courts, and shall designate the magistrates and clerks for such police district.

§ 7. Captains of Police, within their respective districts, shall be Street Inspectors, Health Wardens, Fire Wardens, and Dock Masters; and in the Twelfth Ward, in addition thereto, shall be Superintendent of Roads; such Captains, aided and assisted by the Assistant Captains of Police and policemen, shall do and perform all the duties heretofore performed by the several officers in this section mentioned.

§ 10. In case of the absence of the Captain, the duties required of him shall be performed by the First Assistant Captain, and in his absence, by the Second Assistant Captain, who, while acting in such capacity, shall possess and exercise the powers and rights of such captain.

§ 11. At any alarm of fire, it shall be the duty of the Captain of Patrol, nearest the scene of conflagration, forthwith to proceed to the same, with one half of the number of policemen off duty, to be diligent in preserving order and protecting property. In case of any riot, or any sudden emergency requiring the services of the police, on notice being given, the Captain of Police shall forthwith proceed to the scene of riot, with the whole of the police off duty, or any part thereof, and be vigilant in suppressing the same.

§ 16. A room shall be provided at each Police Court, for the deposit and preservation of property brought to said court. One of the clerks of said court, under the direction of the magistrates, shall be charged with the safe keeping of said property.

§ 17. The Mayor shall detail from the policemen, a sufficient number to attend upon the Police Courts, serve the process of said courts, and to attend upon other courts of the city.

ARTICLE II—OF CHIEF OF POLICE.

§ 1. The offices of Inspector of Hacks, Omnibuses, Cabs, and Public Porters, Inspector and Deputy Inspector of Stages, Inspector of Carts, Keepers of Lands and Places, are hereby abolished; and all the duties performed by said officers, shall be performed by the Chief of Police, aided and assisted by the Captains of Police, Assistant Captains of Police, and by the policemen, in pursuance of the rules and regulations of the Mayor, in accordance with the laws of the State and the ordinances of the Common Council.

§ 2. The Chief of Police, in and for the city and county of New York, shall possess the power of a special justice of the Police Court, to entertain complaints in all cases where crimes have been committed; to issue a precept for the arrest of the person charged with having committed a crime, and to commit the person arrested for examination, such examination to be taken by officers now authorized to take such examinations; and in all such cases shall proceed in the same manner and be governed by all laws relating to Police Justices in like cases; and shall also possess all the powers now possessed by marshals appointed by the Mayor of the city of New York; he shall (subordinate to the Mayor) be the chief executive of the Police Department; he shall obey, and cause the Police Department under him, to obey the rules and regulations prescribed by the Mayor, in accordance with the laws of the United States, of this State, and the ordinances of the Common Council; he shall repair to the scenes of fires and riots, and take command of the police present, and may direct any or all the police of the city of New York to any place where their services may be deemed necessary.

§ 3. The Chief of Police shall have his office in the Mayor's office.

ARTICLE III—APPOINTMENTS AND REMOVALS.

§ 2. All vacancies in the office of the Chief of Police, shall be filled in the same manner, and for the residue of the term.

§ 5. The Mayor shall, at least every three months, report to the Common Council the state of the police in practical operation, with such information in his possession as may promote the welfare and efficiency of the department, with such suggestions as he may deem proper.

§ 7. There shall be kept in the Mayor's office, a book, in which shall be entered the name of the Chief of Police, of each Captain, Assistant Captain, and policeman of each ward; the time of his appointment; the period for which he is appointed, and the time his office will expire; the time of any removal from office, or the recurring of a vacancy.

§ 8. The Chief of Police, Captains, Assistant Captains, and policemen, shall subscribe and take, before the Mayor, the constitutional oath of office, which oath shall be filed in the office of the Clerk of the Common Council.

ARTICLE IV—COMPENSATION OF OFFICERS.

§ 3. In case of complaints for assault and batteries, the magistrate may require that the complainant pay the fees heretofore authorized by law. In case the examination shows that the complaint is just and legal, the magistrate shall return such fees to the complainant. Should such complaint be frivolous, or malicious and untrue, the magistrate may charge to the complainant, and receive from him, all the costs and fees now authorized in such proceedings, which costs and fees shall be paid to the clerks, who shall monthly pay all such fees into the city treasury, accompanying such payment with an affidavit or affirmation, that the sums so paid, are all the fees received by them, for any matter or cause specified in this section.

§ 4. In the city and county of New York, except by the first and two Associate Judges of the Court of Common Pleas, there shall be no costs or fees charged or received upon any proceedings upon writs of habeas corpus, either by the Judge or Commissioner granting them, or by the officer serving them, or the jailor obeying their order, and the judge, before whom the matter shall be heard, shall, if the case be bailable, and the amount of bail shall have been fixed by the committing magistrate, only determine whether the party is lawfully committed, or is legally chargeable with the offence imputed, and shall not adjudicate upon the question of bail. The amount of bail ordered by the committing magistrate shall in such cases only, be altered by a court having jurisdiction of the offence for which the prisoner was committed; and any officer violating the provisions of this section, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be subject to the pains and penalties for such offence; the First Judge and Assistant Judges of the Court of Common Pleas in and for the city of New York, may charge the fees now allowed by law in such cases.

§ 5. The salaries of captains, assistant captains and patrolmen, shall be paid by the Comptroller, by warrant, semi-monthly. The Captains of the Patrol shall receive the pay of the patrolmen, and pay the same over to them as often as received, and immediately on the receipt thereof, and account therefor in such manner as shall be prescribed by ordinance of the Common Council. The captains and assistant captains of patrol, shall give bonds for the faithful performance of all duties enjoined on them by this law, in the sum of three thousand dollars each, to be approved of by the Mayor and Comptroller. The clerks of the police shall give bonds with the like condition, to be approved in the like manner, in the penal sum of one thousand dollars.

§ 7. The powers and duties of the officers abolished by this act, shall be possessed and performed by them, until the officers created by virtue of this act are appointed, and enter upon their respective duties.

§ 8. All recognizance given to answer to a charge preferred, or for good behavior, or to appear and testify in all cases cognizable before Courts of Criminal Jurisdiction, on being forfeited, shall be filed by the District Attorney, together with a certified copy of the order of the court forfeiting the same, in the office of the Clerk of the said city and county, and thereupon the said clerk shall docket the same in the book kept by him for docketing of judgments, transcripts whereof are filed with him as such clerk, as if the same was a transcript of a judgment record for the amount of a penalty; and the recognizance, and certified copy of the order forfeiting the recognizance, shall be the judgment record; such judgment shall, in good faith, be a lien on the real estate of the persons entering into such recognizance, from the time of filing said recognizance and copy, order, and docketing the same, as in this section directed; an execution may be issued to collect the amount of said recognizance in the same form as upon a judgment recovered in the Court of Common Pleas, of said city and county, in an action of debt, in favor of the people against the persons entering into such cognizance.

§ 9. All the costs and fees to be charged for entering such judgment and filing the necessary papers, shall be the usual fees to the clerk for filing papers and entering rules; the District Attorney shall receive no fee or compensation for his services in the matter, his salary being deemed compensation for all such services.

§ 10. No member of the Police Department, nor any magistrate or police officer, shall receive any present or reward for services rendered, or to be rendered, unless with the knowledge and approbation of the Mayor; such approbation to be given in writing, and entered in a book to be kept in the Mayor's office. Any officer who shall receive any present or reward, in violation of this section, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall also be removed from office.

§ 11. In cases of offences committed in the city and county of New York, upon persons being, at the time of the offence committed, in the said city and county, and being non-residents of the said city and county, either upon the person of such non-residents, or by taking or receiving from such non-residents money or property, the District Attorney may apply to any judge of said city and county, possessing the power of a Supreme Court Commissioner, for an order to take the testimony, de bene esse, of all witnesses in the matter of being in, but not residing in said city and county; such judge, in his discretion, may grant an order so to take such testimony, which order shall specify the length of notice of such examination that shall be given to the accused. The District Attorney shall serve upon the accused the notice so directed by such judge; the witness shall be examined in the presence of the accused; his direct and cross-examination shall be reduced to writing in questions and answers, and shall be signed by the witness, and certified by the judge. The examination shall, by the officer taking the same, be filed in the office of the Clerk of the Court of Sessions in the city and county of New York, and may be used before the Grand Jury, and all courts and tribunals having jurisdiction of the subject matter, in the same manner, and with the like effect, as the witness could be, was he personally present upon the trial of the accused; all questions may be raised to the admissibility of the testimony of the witness, and the questions and answers that could be raised to witness and his examination in open court.

§ 12. Such accused may, in like manner, on his part, on such notice given to the District Attorney, take the examination of non-resident witnesses, to be filed in the same office, and to be used with the like effect, subject to similar objections.

§ 13. There shall be no costs or fees charged by any judge or officers, in ordering, taking or filing such examinations, except by the first Judge and Assistant Judge of the Court of Common Pleas, who may charge and receive the same fees now allowed by law for taking examinations of witnesses.

§ 14. Sections four, eight, nine, ten, eleven, twelve and thirteen of article IV. of this act, shall take effect immediately.

§ 15. All the other parts of this act shall take effect whenever the Mayor and Common Council of the city of New York, after the 15th day of May, 1844, shall, by ordinance, adopt this act; a certified copy of such ordinance shall be sent to, and filed in the office of the Secretary of State, and a copy of the same shall be filed in the office of the Clerk of the city and county of New York, ten days before this act shall take effect. This act shall not be construed as requiring the Mayor and Common Council to adopt it.

The above includes all of the law not repealed by the provisions of the Act of 1846.

A N A C T

TO AMEND AN ACT, ENTITLED "AN ACT FOR THE ESTABLISHMENT AND REGULATION OF THE POLICE OF THE CITY OF NEW YORK." PASSED MAY 7TH, 1844.

PASSED MAY 13, 1846, BY A TWO-THIRD VOTE.

The People of the State of New York, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows:

ARTICLE I—OF POLICE.

§ 1. The Watch Department, as at present organized, is hereby abolished, together with the office of Marshals, Street Inspectors, Health Wardens, Fire Wardens, Dock Masters, Day Police officers, Sunday officers, Inspectors of Pawnbrokers' and Junk shops, and of the officers to attend the polls at the several election districts of the city and county of New York, and the Superintendent of Roads of the Twelfth Ward of said city, except the office of Mayor's or First Marshal.

§ 2. In lieu of the Watch Department, and the various officers mentioned in the foregoing section, there shall be established a night and day police of, not to exceed nine hundred men, including Captains, Assistant Captains, Sergeants and Policemen.

§ 3. The Police Department shall consist of the following officers:—Chief of Police, Captains and Assistant Captains of Police, Sergeants of Police, Policemen and Doormen.

§ 4. Each ward of the city of New York shall be a patrol district. The Corporation shall provide in each patrol district suitable accommodation for the patrol of such district, to be designated "Police Station house." The patrol of each district shall consist of one Captain of Police, a first and second Assistant Captain of Police, two or more Sergeants, and such number of policemen as shall be appointed to the ward or district, by an ordinance of the Common Council.

§ 5. The Captains, Assistant Captains, Sergeants and Policemen, shall, in and for the city of New York, possess all the power now possessed by marshals appointed by the Mayor of the city and county of New York, except they shall not be entitled to execute civil process.

§ 6. The Captains, Assistant Captains, Sergeants and Policemen of each district, in accordance with the rules and regulations prescribed by the Mayor, in conformity to the laws of the State, and the ordinances of the Corporation, shall watch and guard the district, day and night, and protect the polls at elections.

§ 7. The Chief of Police, Captains, Assistant Captains, Sergeants and Policemen shall carry a suitable emblem or device, by which they may, when necessary, make themselves known.

§ 8. It shall be the duty of the Sergeants and Policemen to obey such orders as they may, from time to time, receive from the Chief of Police, Captains and Assistant Captains of Police, respecting their duty; and to report, through the captains and assistant captains, to the Chief of Police, all violations of the Corporation ordinances; to preserve the public peace; and it shall be the duty of the policemen to render every assistance and facility to ministers and officers of justice, and to report to the captains of their respective districts, all suspicious persons, all bawdy houses, receiving shops, pawnbrokers' shops, junk shops, second hand dealing shops, gaming houses, and all places where idlers, tipplers, gamblers and other disorderly and suspicious persons congregate; to caution strangers and others against going into such places, and against pickpockets, watch-stuffers, droppers, mock-auctioneers, burners, and all other vicious persons; to direct strangers and others the nearest and safest way to their places of destination, and, when necessary, to cause them to be accompanied to their destination by one of the police, and to perform all other duties which shall be prescribed to them by ordinance of the Corporation.

§ 9. The clerks in each police office shall keep a proper book or books, in which shall be entered at length, a description of each and every article stolen, or other property which shall be brought to said offices, or which shall be taken from prisoners, and what disposition has been made thereof, and they shall attach a number to each and every article, and enter a corresponding number in said books. They shall also keep a receipt book for property delivered from said office; also a book to contain a statement of known burglaries, larcenies and stolen property; a correct transcript of which last-mentioned book shall be furnished each and every day to the Chief of Police, and perform any official service required of them by the Special Justice.

§ 10. Punctual attendance shall be required of every officer and patrolman connected with the department, on all occasions; sickness and disability only shall be an excuse for absence from duty, to be proved by the affidavit or affirmation in writing of the party, that he was actually sick or disabled, and unable to do duty by reason of such sickness or disability; and it shall be competent for the captain of the district to administer the oath or affirmation.

§ 11. Any person or persons who shall falsely represent any of the members of the Police Department of the city of New York, or who shall maliciously, with intent to deceive, use or imitate any of the signs, signals or devices adopted and used by the Police Department, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be punished by a fine, not less than five, nor more than two hundred and fifty dollars, or by imprisonment for a term not exceeding three months.

ARTICLE II—OF APPOINTMENTS AND REMOVALS.

§ 1. The Chief of Police shall be nominated by the Mayor to the Common Council, and, with their approval, shall be appointed by the Mayor. The Chief of Police must be a citizen of the United States, a citizen of the State of New York, and an actual resident of the city and county of New York. He shall hold his office for two years, unless sooner removed from office for cause. His removal from the city and county shall vacate his office.

§ 2. All vacancies in the office of the Chief of Police, shall be filled in the same manner.

§ 3. The Alderman and Assistant Alderman of each ward shall nominate to the Mayor, one Captain, one first Assistant Captain, one second Assistant Captain of Police, and as many policemen as the ward may be entitled to; the Mayor may appoint all or any of the persons thus nominated. Should the Mayor reject any such nominations, other persons shall in like manner be nominated to the Mayor for such places. Each of said persons, so nominated, must be a citizen of the United States, of the State of New York, and a resident of the ward for which he may be nominated. All vacancies in any of said offices shall be filled in like manner. Removal from the ward shall vacate either of said offices. The Captains, Assistant Captains and policemen, shall hold their offices for two years from the date of their appointment, unless sooner removed under this act. The Captains of Police of the several Patrol districts shall appoint suitable policemen to perform the duties of Sergeants of Police.

§ 4. The Chief of Police, and the Captains of the Police shall have power to suspend policemen from office for cause; and the judges and justices shall have the like power in reference to policemen attending their courts. In all cases of suspension, the officer making the suspension shall, within twenty-four hours thereafter, notify the Mayor of such suspension, in writing, which notice shall specify the ground of such suspension, and contain the names of the witnesses to establish the charge. The Mayor shall receive from any person complaints for cause against the Chief of Police, Captains, Assistant Captains, Sergeants, Policemen and Doormen. In each case of suspension and complaint, the Mayor shall cause notice to the accused to be given, to afford him an opportunity to be heard in his defence. The Mayor, or in his absence, the Chief of Police, shall examine witnesses under oath or affirmation, upon the charges and in defence, and the Mayor may, for cause, continue the suspension, remove the accused from office, or restore him to duty. The testimony shall be reduced to writing, which testimony, together with the decision of the Mayor thereon, shall be filed in the office of the Clerk of the Common Council; but in all cases in which the suspension is continued, the party suspended shall be deprived of his pay from the date of his suspension, and during the continuance of the same. The Mayor shall have power to issue subpoenas to require the attendance of witnesses, as on the trial of such cases, and disobedience thereof shall render parties liable to the penalties provided by law in Courts of Record.

§ 5. In making appointments under this article, the Aldermen and Assistant Aldermen in each ward shall transmit to the Mayor a certificate of their nominations, which certificate, with the determination of the Mayor indorsed thereon, shall be filed in the office of the Clerk of the Common Council.

§ 6. No person connected with the Police Department shall be liable to military or jury duty.

§ 7. In case of the refusal or neglect, from any cause, of the Alderman and Assistant to nominate the officers for the said ward, as hereinbefore provided, within twenty days after notice of any vacancy or vacancies occurring in either or all of said offices, then it shall be the duty of the Mayor to proceed forthwith to make said appointment and to fill said vacancy or vacancies.

§ 8. The Mayor, Chief of Police, and the Special Justices, and the Captains of Police, or by their, or by either of their order, shall have power to examine the books of any pawnbroker, and also to examine under oath, the pawnbroker, his clerk or clerks, if they deem necessary, when in search of stolen property; and any person having in his possession a pawnbroker's ticket, shall, when accompanied by a policeman, or by an order from the Mayor, Chief of Police, Captain of Police, or Special Justice, be allowed to examine the property purporting to be pawned by said ticket; but no property shall be removed from the possession of any pawnbroker without process of law, required by the existing laws of the state, or the laws and ordinances of the city of New York, regulating pawnbrokers.

ARTICLE III—OF COMPENSATION OF OFFICERS.

§ 1. The compensation of officers and patrolmen named in this law, shall be fixed by the Common Council, but shall not exceed the following sums, to wit: Chief of Police, one thousand six hundred dollars; Special Justices, one thousand five hundred dollars; Clerks of Police, eight hundred dollars; Captains of Patrol, seven hundred dollars; Assistant Captains, six hundred dollars; Sergeants and Policemen, five hundred dollars; Police officers, when sent out of the county on public business, shall be allowed all necessary expenses, upon the same being sworn to and approved by the Mayor, and allowed by the Board of Supervisors.

§ 2. No fees or compensation shall be charged or received by any magistrate, clerk, officer, policeman or constable, for the arrest of any prisoners, or for mileage, or for receiving any prisoner into the prison, or for discharging him from the same; and no fees or costs shall be charged or received for the issuing of any warrant, subpoena or other process, or for the taking of a complaint, bail, or affidavit, except as hereinafter provided. Any magistrate or officer violating the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be subject to the pains and penalties for such an offence.

§ 3. The Clerk of the Court of Sessions shall file, with the Chief of Police, a copy of all recognizances given to answer to a charge preferred for any criminal offence, on the same being forfeited; and it shall be the duty of the Chief of Police to cause the same to be registered in a book to be kept for that purpose.

§ 4. It shall be the duty of the sheriff, in all cases of forfeited recognizances, placed by the District Attorney with him for collection, to report to the Chief of Police the moneys collected on such judgments, immediately after the receipt of the same; and in case the amount of the judgment cannot be collected upon any forfeited recognizances, he shall, immediately after the expiration of the time limited by law for making such collections, make a return of the same, with the causes of failure, to the Chief of Police, who shall, in all cases mentioned, enter into the book aforesaid the result thereof, opposite the names of the persons who had become bail in such cases.

§ 5. Upon receiving information from the sheriff of failure to collect the amount of any forfeited recognizances from the person or persons who had become bail in such case, the Chief of Police shall notify the Court of Sessions and the Police Courts, of the names of such persons, and it shall be the duty of the clerks of said courts, to register the same in a book to be kept in said court for that purpose.

§ 6. No person registered, as provided in the last preceding section, shall be received by any judge or magistrate, as bail for any person charged with any offence whatever; and in all cases of bail, taken for persons charged with any criminal offence, the judge or magistrate taking the same, shall require the persons, so becoming bail, to make affidavit, in writing, that they are worth the amount for which they propose to become bail, which affidavit shall also include a description of the property constituting the amount of their liability.

§ 7. No officer authorized to let to bail a person charged with any criminal offence, shall accept as bail any member of the Police Department, keeper, assistant keeper, or turnkey, of any prison, or place of detention, for persons charged with any criminal offence, or any attorney or counselor practicing in the Court of Sessions.

§ 8. No officer, other than the committing magistrate, shall let to bail any person charged with a criminal offence, unless notice of the application to bail such person shall have been given to the District Attorney of the city and county of New York, at least two days before such application, specifying the name of the officer, the time and place when and where such application will be made, and the names and residences of the proposed bail, and the original commitment and proofs upon which it is founded, shall have been presented to the officer to whom the application for bail is made; the persons having the custody of such commitment and proofs shall, when required, in writing, produce the same before the officer last-mentioned.

§ 9. The examination of a non-resident witness, or a witness about to depart beyond the jurisdiction of the court, may, on the application of the District Attorney, or the party accused, upon his giving notice to the District Attorney, be taken in the manner provided in section eleven of article four, of the act hereby amended.

§ 10. Sections twenty and twenty-one of an act entitled "An act relative to the powers of the Common Council of the city of New York, and the Police and Criminal Courts of said city," passed January 23d, 1833, shall apply to carts and cartmen, cabs and cabmen, hackney coaches and hackney coachmen, stages and accommodation coaches, or omnibuses and their drivers, and public porters and hand-cartmen.

§ 11. Sections one, two, five, six, eight, nine, twelve, fourteen and fifteen, of article first, sections one, two, three, four and six, of article third; and sections one, two and twelve, of article fourth, of the law hereby amended, are repealed.

§ 12. Nothing contained in this act shall be construed to prevent the Captains, Assistant Captains and policemen, already appointed under the act hereby amended, from holding their offices one year from the date of their respective appointments.

§ 13. The Board of Supervisors of the city and county of New York, shall have power to raise by tax the sum of fifty-seven thousand five hundred dollars, to defray the expense of the increase in the number of policemen provided for in this act, in case the Common Council shall deem such increase necessary.

§ 14. This act shall take effect on the thirteenth day of May, eighteen hundred and forty-six, except section two of article three, which shall take effect ten days after its passage.

IN RELATION TO JUSTICES AND POLICE COURTS IN THE CITY OF NEW YORK.

PASSED MARCH 30, 1845.

The People of the State of New York, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows:

§ 1. The city of New York shall be divided into six judicial districts, in each of which there is hereby established a court, to be called the Justices' Court of the city of New York.

§ 2. The First, Second, Third and Fifth Wards of the said city, shall constitute and be the First Judicial District; the Fourth, Sixth and Fourteenth Wards of said city, the Second Judicial District; the Eighth and Ninth Wards of said city, the Third Judicial District; the Tenth, Fifteenth and Seventeenth Wards of said city, the Fourth Judicial District; the Seventh, Eleventh and Thirteenth Wards of said city, the Fifth Judicial District; and the Twelfth, Sixteenth and Eighteenth Wards of said city, the Sixth Judicial District. In each of said districts hereby created, there shall be elected by the electors thereof, having the necessary qualifications required of a voter at any general election, a Justice to hold the court in said district.

§ 3. There shall be appointed by the Common Council of the city of New York, a clerk of each of the justices' and police courts hereby established by this act, whose compensation shall be fixed by the Common Council and who shall hold his office for four years, from the second Tuesday of May next, and their compensation shall not be increased or diminished during their continuance in office.

§ 4. All the powers and duties which, by any law of this state, now in force, belonging to or are vested in the present assistant justices of the city of New York and their clerks, shall hereafter belong to and be vested in the justices and clerks to be elected or appointed by virtue of this act; and the said justices, so to be elected, shall have jurisdiction over, and authority to hear, try and determine all actions of contracts or tort, where the sum claimed or recovered shall not exceed the sum of one hundred dollars; and actions of replevin, where the goods sought to be recovered do not exceed the sum of fifty dollars; and all suits by and against corporations in the city of New York, where the amount in controversy shall not exceed one hundred dollars; and the said office of Assistant Justice of the city of New York, and clerks of the said Assistant Justices' Court, and the said Assistant Justices' Courts, from and after the second Tuesday of May, eighteen hundred and forty-eight, are hereby abolished.

§ 5. The said justices shall be elected at the next annual charter election, to be held in the city of New York, and once in every four years thereafter, at the annual charter election; they shall hold their respective offices for four years, and shall enter on their duties on the second Tuesday of May, after their election, respectively.

§ 6. The courts in said districts shall be held at such places in the said district respectively, as shall be designated and provided for by the Common Council of the city of New York; and no such court or any justice thereof shall be authorized to make any process of citation returnable, nor to hear or determine any cause or matter at any place than the court-room of said court.

§ 7. There shall also be elected in each of the said districts, at the same election, and in the same manner, one police justice for the city of New York, who shall hold their offices for four years, and shall enter on their duties on the second Tuesday of May next, after their election. The said Police Justices shall have all powers, and perform all the duties of the Special Justices for preserving the peace in the city of New York, and the said offices of Special Justices for preserving the peace, and Clerks of Police, as heretofore existing, are hereby abolished from and after the time when the Police Justices and Clerks elected or appointed under this act shall enter on their duties.

§ 8. The Common Council shall, by ordinance, assign such police justices and clerks to such police offices and police courts, in rotation or otherwise, as the public business may require.

§ 9. The justices elected under the provisions of this act shall receive such an annual compensation for their services as shall be fixed by the Common Council of the city of New York, which annual compensation shall be in lieu of all fees or other perquisites, and shall not be increased or diminished during their continuance in office, and shall receive no other fees or perquisites whatever, by virtue of their offices. The justices and clerks to be elected or appointed in pursuance of this act, shall, on the first day of every month, or within three days thereafter, account, under oath, for all fees and perquisites, if any, of every kind and description, received by them by virtue of their offices, directly or indirectly, and pay the same into the treasury of the city of New York; and no justice or clerk shall perform any service, for which a fee is allowed by law, until such fee is paid for the use of the city as aforesaid. The provisions of this section shall also apply to the Judges and Clerk of the Marine Court in said city, who shall, after the second Tuesday of May next, receive an annual compensation to be fixed by the Common Council of said city.

§ 10. All the provisions of law now in force, in reference to the commencement of suits, the mode of conducting them, the perfecting and obtaining satisfaction of judgment in the Assistant Justices' Courts of the city of New York, shall extend and apply to the courts established by the first section of this act.

§ 11. All the provisions of law in relation to charter elections in the city of New York, and the notices thereof, shall apply to the officers whose election is hereby provided for; and the said officers shall be voted for on one ballot, to be indorsed "Justices," and which shall be deposited in a separate box, to be provided for that purpose by the Common Council of said city.

§ 12. The present Assistant Justices and Special Justices for preserving the peace, are hereby required, on the second Tuesday of May, eighteen hundred and forty-eight, to deliver to the special justices and police justices, elected under this act, all their official papers and documents, and all papers and documents connected with any suits or proceedings which shall then be pending and undetermined in their respective courts; and the justices and police justices elected under this act, are hereby authorized to receive and demand the same; and such suits and proceedings, so pending and undetermined, shall be continued before the said justices and police justices so elected, with the same effect and virtue as though before the said Assistant Justices and present Special Justices for preserving the peace; and all judgments rendered, may be executed by process to be issued by said justices. The courts hereby created, may issue all process necessary or proper to carry into effect the purposes of this act; and all constables and other officers are hereby authorized to perform all the duties, and to receive the fees in the courts hereby created, which they were authorized to perform in the courts hereby abolished, and may serve all process issued by said courts hereby created.

§ 13. This act shall take effect immediately.

TO AMEND AN ACT ENTITLED "AN ACT TO AMEND AN ACT, ENTITLED AN ACT FOR THE ESTABLISHMENT AND REGULATION OF THE POLICE OF THE CITY OF NEW YORK, PASSED MAY 13, 1846

PASSED APRIL 11, 1849, "THREE-FIFTHS BEING PRESENT."

The People of the State of New York, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows:

§ 1. The tenth section of article first, of the act entitled "An act to amend an act, entitled an act for the establishment and regulation of the police of the city of New York," passed May 13, 1846, is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

§ 10. Punctual attendance shall be required of every officer, patrolman, and doorman, connected with the department, on all occasions; but nothing herein contained shall be construed to prevent the Mayor from relieving captains, sergeants, policemen, and doormen from duty for a limited time. The Mayor may also authorize captains to relieve sergeants, policemen and doormen from duty for a limited time. No compensation shall be allowed to such officers, patrolmen or doormen, for any period during which they may be absent from duty, except by the Mayor, in cases in which he shall be satisfied that the absence was consequent upon disease or injury contracted in the public service.

§ 2. The sixteenth section of article first is hereby amended, so as to read as follows:

§ 16. A room shall be provided at each police court for the deposit and preservation of all property brought to said court. One of the clerks of said courts, under the direction of the magistrates, shall be charged with the safe keeping of said property. It shall be the duty of any magistrate or clerk with whom any such deposit shall be made, to give a receipt, in writing, describing the same, for such property, to any officer or other person making such deposit, or bringing in such property.

§ 3. The first section of article second of said act, is hereby amended, so as to read as follows:

§ 1. The Chief of Police shall be nominated by the Mayor to the Common Council, and with their approval shall be appointed by the Mayor. The Chief of Police must be a citizen of the United States, a citizen of the State of New York, and an actual resident of the city and county of New York. He shall hold his office during the term of the Mayor, and thirty days thereafter, unless sooner removed for cause. His removal from the city and county shall vacate his office.

§ 4. The third section of article second of said act, is hereby amended, so as to read as follows, viz:

§ 3. The Alderman and Assistant Alderman of each Ward, shall nominate to the Mayor, one captain, one first assistant captain, one second assistant captain of police, and as many policemen as the Ward shall be entitled to. The Mayor may appoint all or any of the persons thus nominated. Should the Mayor reject any such nominations, other persons shall in like manner be nominated for such places. Each of said persons, so nominated, must be a citizen of the United States, of the State of New York, and a resident of the Ward for which he may be nominated. All vacancies in any of said offices shall be filled in like manner. Removal from the Ward shall vacate either of said offices. The captains, assistant captains and policemen, hereafter to be appointed, shall hold their offices for four years from the date of their appointment, unless sooner removed under this act. The captains of police of the several patrol districts shall appoint suitable policemen to perform the duties of sergeants of police.

§ 5. The fourth section of article second of said act, is hereby amended so as to read as follows, viz:

§ 4. The Chief of Police and the Captain of the Police, shall have power to suspend policemen from office for cause, and the Judges and Justices shall have like power in reference to policemen attending their courts. In all such cases of suspension, the officer making the suspension shall, within twenty-four hours thereafter, notify the Mayor of such suspension, in writing, which notice shall specify the grounds for such suspension, and contain the names of the witnesses to establish the charge. The Mayor shall receive, from any person, complaints for cause against the Chief of Police, Captains, Assistant Captains, Policemen, and Doormen. In each case of suspension and complaint, the Mayor shall cause notice to the accused to be given, to afford him opportunity to be heard in his defence. The Mayor, or, in his absence, the Chief of Police, (except in cases of charges against himself,) shall examine witnesses, under oath or affirmation, upon the charges and in defence, and the Mayor may, for cause, continue the suspension, remove the accused from office, or restore him to duty. In all cases in which the suspension is continued, the party suspended shall be deprived of his pay from the date of his suspension, and during the continuance of the same; but he shall not, at any time, be exempted from the performance of duty, unless the officer making such suspension shall so expressly order; unless and until such order be made, a suspension under this section shall only mean a suspension from pay. The testimony to be reduced to writing, and the same, together with the decision of the Mayor thereon, shall be filed in the office of the Clerk of the Common Council. The Mayor shall have power to issue subpoenas to require the attendance of witnesses on the trial of such cases; and disobedience thereof shall render parties liable to the penalties provided by law in Courts of Record.

§ 6. The eighth section of article second of said act, is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

§ 8. The Mayor, Chief of Police, and the Police Justices and the Captains of Police, or by their, or by either of their orders, shall have power to examine the books of any pawnbroker, his clerk, or clerks, if they deem it necessary, when in search of stolen property; and any person having in his possession a pawnbroker's ticket, shall, when accompanied by a policeman, or by an order from the Mayor, Chief of Police, Captain of Police, or Special Justice, be allowed to examine the property purporting to be pawned by said ticket; but no property shall be removed from the possession of any pawnbroker without the process of law required by the existing laws of this State, or the laws and ordinances of the City of New York, regulating pawnbrokers. A refusal or neglect to comply, in any respect, with the provisions of this section, on the part of any pawnbroker, his clerk or clerks, shall be deemed a misdemeanor, and punished as such.

§ 7. The first section of article third of said act, is hereby amended, so as to read as follows:

§ 1. The compensation of officers and patrolmen named in this act, shall be fixed by the Common Council, and shall not be increased or diminished during the time for which they are appointed. Police officers, when sent out of the county on public business, shall be allowed all necessary expenses, upon the same being sworn to, and approved by the Mayor, and allowed by the Board of Supervisors.

§ 8. All laws inconsistent with this act are hereby repealed.

§ 9. This act shall take effect on the first day of June next.

IN RELATION TO THE POLICE DEPARTMENT OF THE CITY AND COUNTY OF NEW YORK, PASSED APRIL 13, 1853.

The People of the State of New York, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows:

ARTICLE I.

SECTION 1. The Police Department of the city of New York shall consist of the following named officers: Chief of Police, Captains of Police, Lieutenants of Police, Sergeants of Police, Policemen and Doormen; but the present Assistant Captains shall be known as Lieutenants after the passage of this bill, and shall continue to hold their offices until the expiration of the terms for which they were appointed such Assistant Captains.

§ 2. Each Ward in the city of New York shall be a patrol district. The Common Council shall provide in each patrol district suitable accommodation for the patrol of such district, to be designated "Police Station House." The patrol of each district shall consist of one Captain of Police, a First and Second Lieutenant of Police, or two or more Sergeants of Police and such a number of Policemen and Doormen as shall be appointed to the district.

§ 3. The Chief of Police, Captains, Lieutenants and Sergeants of Police, and Policemen in and for the city and county of New York, shall possess all the power now possessed by the constables of said city and county, except that they shall not be entitled to execute civil processes.

§ 4. The Chief of Police, Captains, Lieutenants, and Sergeants of Police, Policemen and Doormen, in accordance with the rules and regulations prescribed in conformity to the laws of the United States, of this state, and the ordinance of the Common Council, shall watch and guard the city, day and night, and protect all general and primary elections.

§ 5. The Chief of Police, Captains, Lieutenants and Sergeants of Police, Policemen and Doormen, shall wear a suitable emblem or device, to be prescribed by the Commissioners of Police.

§ 6. Captains of Police shall be dock-masters within their respective districts, and aided and assisted by the Lieutenants of Police and Policemen, shall do and perform all the duties heretofore performed by dock-masters.

§ 7. It shall be the duty of Sergeants, Policemen and Doormen, to obey such orders as they may, from time to time, receive from the Chief of Police, Captains or Lieutenants of Police, respecting their duty; to report through the Captains and Lieutenants to the Chief of Police all violations of the Corporation ordinances, who shall report the same, forthwith, to the Corporation Attorney; to preserve the public peace; to render every assistance and facility to ministers and officers of justice; to report all suspicious persons, bawdy houses, receiving shops, pawnbrokers' shops, junk shops, second-hand dealers' shops, gaming houses, all places where idlers, tiplers, gamblers, and other disorderly and suspicious persons congregate; to caution strangers and others against going into such places, and against pick-pockets, watch stuffers, droppers, mock-auctioneers, burners, and other vicious persons; to direct strangers and others to the nearest and safest way to their places of destination, and, when necessary, to cause them to be accompanied to their destination by one of the Police, and perform all other duties which shall be prescribed.

§ 8. Punctual attendance shall be required of every officer, sergeant, policeman and doorman connected with the Department on all occasions, but nothing herein contained shall be construed to prevent the Mayor from relieving Captains, Lieutenants, Sergeants, Policemen and Doormen for any period during which they may be absent from duty without permission, except in cases of absence consequent upon disease or injury contracted in the public service, and in all cases such officers, Sergeants, Policemen and Doormen, who are absent from duty in consequence of disease and injuries contracted in the public service, shall receive full pay.

§ 9. In case of the absence of the Captain of Police, the duties required of him shall be performed by a first lieutenant of police, and in his absence by a second lieutenant of police, who, while acting in such capacity, shall possess and exercise the powers and rights of such captain. In case of the absence of a lieutenant, by reason of sickness or disability, the captain may, with the consent of the Chief of Police, substitute a sergeant, who shall, for the time being, possess all the powers of a lieutenant of police.

§ 10. Any person or persons who shall falsely represent any of the members of the Police Department of the city of New York, or who shall, with intent to deceive, use, or imitate any of the emblems, signs, signals, or devices adopted and used by the Police Department, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be punished by a fine not less than two hundred and fifty dollars, or by imprisonment for a term not exceeding three months.

§ 11. At any alarm of fire it shall be the duty of the Captain of Police, nearest the scene of conflagration, forthwith to proceed to the same with the reserve force of their command; to be diligent in preserving order and protecting property. In cases of riot, or any sudden emergency requiring the services of the police, the Captain of Police shall forthwith proceed to the scene of riot with the whole police off duty, or any part thereof, and be vigilant in suppressing the same.

§ 12. The Mayor shall detail from the policemen a sufficient number to attend upon and serve the process of criminal courts in said city and county.

ARTICLE II.

§ 1. The Chief of Police shall be nominated and appointed by the Mayor, with the approval of the Board of Commissioners first named in the third article of this bill.

§ 2. He shall, (subordinate to the Mayor,) be the chief executive of the Police Department, and shall obey, and cause the Police Department under him, to obey the rules and regulations prescribed in accordance with the provisions of this act.

§ 3. He shall repair to the scenes of fire, and with the assistance of the police force, use every exertion to save and protect property, and remove, or cause to be removed, all idle or suspicious persons from the vicinity of the fire.

§ 4. He shall repair to the scenes of riot, and all tumultuous or unlawful assemblages, and with the aid of the police force use every exertion to disperse or arrest such persons as he may find engaged in breaking the peace, or who may aid or abet others so to do.

§ 5. He shall direct any or all of the police force to perform such duties as he may deem necessary for the preservation of the public peace, and prevention of crime, and the discipline and efficiency of the department.

§ 6. He shall be aided and assisted by the members of the Police Department, be the superintendent of cabs and cabmen, hackney coaches and hackney cabmen, stages and accommodation coaches or omnibuses, and their drivers, carts and cartmen, and all persons employed to drive carts through the streets and lanes of the city of New York, public porters, handcartmen, venders of charcoal, fire-wood, hard coal and boats and boatmen. He shall also be inspector of pawnbrokers' shops and second-hand dealers' shops, and intelligence offices.

§ 7. He shall, with the approval of the Board of Aldermen, appoint a clerk, who shall be known and designated as Clerk to the Chief of Police and who shall perform all such duties as the Chief of Police shall direct.

§ 8. All vacancies in the office of the Chief of Police shall be filled in the same manner as prescribed section first of article second of this act.

§ 9. In all cases where persons are arrested upon criminal charges, they shall, with as little delay as possible, be conducted before a magistrate, to be dealt with according to law.

ARTICLE III.

§ 1. The Mayor, Recorder and City Judge, shall constitute a Board of Commissioners for the trial of officers, policemen and doormen of the Police department; and all officers, policemen and doormen shall be appointed by the same Board, in the manner herein provided; but no member of the Police Department shall be reappointed, who shall have resigned before the expiration of his term of office.

§ 2. Every officer, policeman and doorman must be a citizen of the United States, of the State of New York, and a resident of the ward for which he may be appointed, and previous to his appointment, shall present to the Mayor a certificate, signed by twenty-five reputable citizens, (two-thirds of whom must reside in the ward at the time of signing the certificate,) certifying that they have been personally acquainted with the applicant for five years last past, and that during that time said applicant has borne a good character for honesty, morality and sobriety. He must also present to the Mayor a certificate from a surgeon of the Police Department, certifying that he has professionally examined said applicant, and that he is a man of sound body, and robust constitution, and is able to sustain the usual labors and exposures of a patrolman. He must also establish, to the satisfaction of the Commissioners, that he, the said applicant, can read with ease, and write legibly the English language; that he well understands the first four rules of arithmetic; and that he is a proper person to appoint to said office. All vacancies in any of said offices shall be filled in like manner. Removal from the ward shall vacate either of the said offices. The members of the Police Department, appointed after this act shall have gone into effect, shall hold their offices during good behavior, and shall only be removed for cause, as hereinafter provided.

§ 3. The Mayor, Recorder, and Chief of Police of the city and county of New York, shall constitute a Board of Commissioners to prescribe rules for the discipline, conduct and government of police officers and policemen, which shall be binding, under penalty of removal or suspension.

§ 4. The Chief of Police, and captains of police, shall have power to suspend sergeants, policemen and doormen for cause, and judges and justices shall have like power in reference to policemen detailed to their courts. In all such cases of suspension, the officer making the suspension shall notify the Mayor or Chief of Police of such suspension, in writing, which notice shall specify the grounds for such suspension, and contain the names of witnesses to establish the charge. The Mayor may receive from any person complaints for cause, against the Chief of Police, captains, lieutenants, sergeants, policemen and doormen. In each case of suspicion and complaint notice to the accused shall be given, to afford him an opportunity to be heard in his defence. The accused party may in all cases appear by counsel, and compel the attendance of witnesses in his behalf. The Board of Commissioners shall examine witnesses, under oath or affirmation, upon the charges, and in defence; and may, from cause, continue the suspension, remove the accused from office, or restore him to duty. In all cases in which the suspension is continued, the party suspended shall be deprived of his pay from the date of his suspension and during the continuance of the same. But he shall not, at any time, be exempted from the performance of duty, unless the officer making such suspension shall so expressly order, and until such order be made, a suspension, under this section, shall only mean a suspension from pay. The testimony, in each case of suspension, shall be reduced to writing, and the same, together with the decision thereon, shall be filed in the office of the Clerk of the Common Council. Either Commissioner shall have power to issue subpoenas to require the attendance of witnesses on the trial of such cases, and disobedience thereof shall render parties liable to the penalties provided by law in courts of record.

§ 5. The Chief of Police shall, at least every six months, report to the Mayor, the state of the police in practical operation, with such other information in his possession as may promise the welfare and efficiency of the Department, with such suggestions as he may deem proper. The Mayor shall submit the said report to the Common Council within five days thereafter, should the Common Council be then in session, and if not, at the first meeting of the next regular session, accompanying the same with such remarks and suggestions as he may deem proper.

§ 6. There shall be kept in the office of the Chief of Police, a book, in which shall be entered the names of each and every officer, sergeant, policeman and doorman connected with the Police Department, as hereinbefore mentioned, the time of appointment in each case, the time of any removal from office, or the recurring of any vacancy.

ARTICLE IV.

§ 1. The compensation of all officers, policemen and doormen, shall be fixed by the Common Council. Police officers, when sent out of the county on public business, shall be allowed all necessary expenses, upon the same being sworn to by said officers, and approved by the Mayor, and allowed by the Board of Supervisors.

§ 2. The salaries of captains, policemen, sergeants, policemen and doormen, shall be paid by the Comptroller by warrant, semi-monthly, on the same being indorsed as correct by the Chief of Police. The captains of police, and in their absence, the lieutenants of police shall receive the pay of the sergeants, policemen and doormen, and pay the same over to them as often as received, and immediately on receipt thereof, and shall account therefor, under oath, as shall be prescribed by ordinance of the Common Council. The captains and lieutenants of police shall give bonds for the faithful performance of all duties enjoined on them by this act, in the sum of three thousand dollars each, to be approved by the Mayor and Comptroller.

§ 3. All officers, policemen and doormen hereinbefore mentioned, shall subscribe and take, before the Mayor, the constitutional oath of office, which oath shall be filed in the office of the Clerk of the Common Council,

§ 4. No member of the Police Department, no magistrate, clerk of police, nor any person authorized by law to arrest persons charged with criminal offences, shall demand or receive any present or reward for services rendered or to be rendered, unless with the knowledge and approbation of the Mayor; such approbation to be given in writing, and to be entered in a book to be kept in the Mayor's office. Any such officer, who shall demand or receive any present or reward in violation of this section, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor; and on complaint being made to the Mayor, he shall forthwith summon the accused, together with the witnesses to establish the charge, to appear before the Board of Commissioners; and on the charge being established by the testimony of competent witnesses, they shall immediately remove the accused from office.

§ 5. Sections twenty and twenty-one of an act entitled "An Act relative to the powers of the Common Council of the city of New York, and the Police and Criminal Courts of said city," passed January 23, 1853, shall apply to all penal ordinances passed by the Common Council of said city.

§ 6. No person connected with the Police Department, shall be liable to military, fire or jury duty.

§ 7. All ordinances, parts of ordinances, resolutions and acts now in force and inconsistent with this act, shall be, and the same are hereby repealed.

§ 8. This act shall take effect immediately.

REGULATING THE POLICE OF THE CITY OF NEW YORK.

The Mayor, Aldermen and Commonalty of the city of New York, in Common Council convened, do ordain as follows:

§ 1. The city is hereby divided into three districts, as follows:

The First District shall comprise the First, Second, Third, Fourth, Fifth and Sixth Wards.

The Second District shall comprise the Eighth, Ninth, Twelfth, Fifteenth, Sixteenth and Eighteenth Wards.

The Third District shall comprise the Seventh, Tenth, Eleventh, Thirteenth, Fourteenth and Seventeenth Wards.

§ 2. In each of said districts there shall be a Police Court and office. The business of the police offices already established shall continue to be conducted where they are now located, until otherwise directed by the Corporation. The police office for the First District shall continue to be held at the Halls of Justice in Centre street; for the Second District, at the Jefferson market, in the Ninth Ward; and for the Third District, at the Essex market in the Tenth Ward.

§ 3. The magistrates and clerks of the Police Courts are hereby assigned as follows: Justice Osborne and Drinker to the First District; Justices Roome and Merrit to the Second District, and Justices Taylor and Ketchum to the Third District; Clerks, Hesty, Snow and Stewart to the First District; Clerks, Mountfort and Bleakley to the Second District; and Clerks, Frey and Corey to the Third District.

§ 4. The policemen of the various wards of the city of New York, including captains, assistant captains and sergeants, are hereby apportioned as follows:

To the First Ward—Fifty-nine.

To the Second Ward—Forty-three.

To the Third Ward—Forty-three.

To the Fourth Ward—Sixty.

To the Fifth Ward—Fifty-five.

To the Sixth Ward—Sixty-six.

To the Seventh Ward—Sixty-three.

To the Eighth Ward—Fifty-six.

To the Ninth Ward—Fifty.

To the Tenth Ward—Forty-eight.

To the Eleventh Ward—Forty-five.

To the Twelfth Ward—Thirty-three.

To the Thirteenth Ward—Forty-eight.

To the Fourteenth Ward—Fifty-four.

To the Fifteenth Ward—Forty.

To the Sixteenth Ward—Forty-three.

To the Seventeenth Ward—Fifty-one.

To the Eighteenth Ward—Forty-three.

§ 5. The compensation to be paid to the officers mentioned in this ordinance shall be at the following rates:

To the Chief of Police, one thousand six hundred dollars per annum.

To the Special Justices, each one thousand five hundred dollars per annum.

To the Clerk of Police, eight hundred dollars per annum.

To Captains of Police or Patrol, each seven hundred dollars per annum.

To the Assistant Captains, each six hundred dollars per annum.

To Sergeants and Policemen, each five hundred dollars per annum.

§ 6. The compensation of the officers mentioned in the preceding section shall be in the following manner :

To the Captains, Assistant Captains, Sergeants and Policemen, by warrant, semi-monthly. The captains shall receive the pay of policemen and doormen within their districts, and pay the same over as soon as received, taking a receipt in a book to be provided for that purpose by each captain making returns to the Comptroller within two days after each payment which return shall be sworn to by said captains, before some person authorized to administer oaths, as a just and true account of all the moneys received, and that they have paid the same in money, without deduction, to the several policemen and doormen, according to their several receipts, contained in said returns.

§ 7. When any officer mentioned in this ordinance shall die, or forfeit his office, or be removed therefrom, compensation, at the rates hereinbefore prescribed, shall be paid up to the time of such death, forfeiture or removal, to his legal representatives, if he be deceased.

§ 8. The Mayor is hereby authorized to appoint one or more suitable and discreet persons, removable at his pleasure, who shall be known and designated as clerks to the Chief of Police, and shall perform all such duties as may be required by the Mayor and Chief of Police. The salary of such clerk or clerks shall not, together, exceed the sum of one thousand dollars per annum.

§ 9. The Captains, Assistant Captains, Sergeants and Policemen, shall receive a certificate of appointment from the Mayor, and before entering on the duties of their respective offices, shall take and prescribe an oath or affirmation well and truly to perform the duties thereof.

§ 10. The Mayor shall have power to prescribe rules and regulations for the government of the police, and from time to time alter and amend the same, as in his judgment may be deemed necessary.

§ 11. Such portions of the following buildings and places in the city of New York as are hereby designated, are appropriated as a portion of the City Prison and Bridewell of the said city, viz: the building known as the Station-house, near Jefferson market, in the Ninth Ward; the building owned by the Corporation, in the rear of Essex market, in the Tenth Ward, and the various station-houses in the different districts.

§ 12. The Aldermen and Assistant Aldermen shall appoint two persons for their wards, whose duty it shall be to attend at the station-houses of the wards respectively, to keep the same in order, and act as door-keepers, and do such other duties as may be required of them by the captains of police of said wards respectively, to be paid each seven dollars per week for such services. The said persons so to be appointed to be removable by the said Aldermen and Assistants.

§ 13. Policemen who shall necessarily incur an expense in conveying a person before a magistrate, or to a police station-house, or to the hospital, by the employment of a cart or any other vehicle for that purpose, shall be refunded such expense, upon presenting to the Chief of Police, the certificate of the magistrate or captain before whom the person shall be brought, stating that such person was brought by him to the office on a cart or other vehicle. The certificate shall be in the following words, to wit:

No.	Police District, No.
This is to certify, that Policeman has brought to this office.
in	Amount $
New York,	185
To George W. Matsell,
Chief of Police.	Special Justice.

§ 14. The Chief of Police is hereby authorized, when the necessity may arise, to draw upon the Comptroller for a sum not exceeding one hundred dollars, to defray the expenses necessarily incurred by policemen in conveying persons as aforesaid, and his own traveling expenses, or other purposes provided for in this ordinance. The same to be accounted for to the Comptroller, by a return of the vouchers for the money so expended, as often as he shall have occasion to renew the draft, such draft being first approved by the Mayor.

§ 15. The Captains of Police, or in their absence, the Assistant Captains of Police, are hereby authorized to furnish food to persons in custody in the various police station-houses, who they have reason to believe are in a suffering or starving condition, and the expenses thereof, when duly certified by the Captain or either of the Assistant Captains of Police, shall be paid by the Chief of Police.

§ 16. Policemen who shall necessarily incur an expense by conveying stolen or other property to the office of the Chief of Police, Police Courts or police station-houses, shall be refunded such expense, on presenting to the Chief of Police the certificate of the magistrate or captain of police to whom such property was delivered.

§ 17. The Captain and Assistant Captains of each ward shall be the keepers of the station-house or houses in each ward, and shall be, for that purpose, deemed deputy keepers of the city prison.

§ 18. The several ordinances of the Corporation of the city of New York, now in force, in relation to carts and cartmen, cabs and cabmen, hackney coaches and hackney coachmen, stages and accommodation coaches, omnibuses and omnibus drivers, public porters and hand cartmen, are hereby confirmed and ordained.

§ 19. It shall be the duty of the officers mentioned in this ordinance to see that the ordinances hereinbefore mentioned, and all ordinances of the Corporation to prevent evil practices in the city of New York, and in relation to the police of said city, are enforced.

§ 20. The ordinance passed June 15, 1845, entitled "An ordinance regulating the police of the city of New York, and the ordinance passed January 27, 1846, entitled "An ordinance in addition to an ordinance entitled an ordinance to regulate the police of the city of New York," and all ordinances and parts of ordinances inconsistent herewith, are hereby repealed.

Adopted by the Board of Assistant Aldermen, June 15, 1846.

Adopted by the Board of Aldermen, June 22, 1846.

Approved by the Mayor, June 23, 1846.

Resolved, That the ordinance, entitled "An ordinance, regulating the Police of the city of New York," approved by the Mayor, June 16, 1846, be, and the same is hereby amended as follows:

§ 1. The city is hereby divided into four districts, as follows:

The First District shall comprise the First, Second, Third, Fourth, Fifth, and Sixth Wards.

The Second District shall comprise the Eighth, Ninth, Fifteenth and Sixteenth Wards.

The Fourth District shall comprise the Twelfth, Seventeenth and Eighteenth Wards.

§ 2. In each of said districts there shall be a Police Court and office. The business of the Police offices already established in the Halls of Justice, Centre street; at Jefferson market, in the Ninth Ward; at Essex market, in the Tenth Ward, shall continue to be conducted there, until otherwise directed by the Common Council; and the Police office for the Fourth District, newly created, shall be held at the Police Station-house in Twenty-ninth street, in the Eighteenth Ward.

§ 3. The Magistrates and Clerks for the aforesaid Police Courts or offices are hereby assigned as follows:

Justices Simpson and Lothrop to the First District, (Halls of Justice,) in Centre street.

Justices Bleakley and McGrath to the Second District, Jefferson market.

Justice Osborne to the Third District, Essex market; Justice Mountfort to the Fourth District, in Twenty-ninth street, in the Eighteenth Ward.

The magistrates hereby assigned to the First District, shall, on alternate days, attend at the Third District Police Court, and the magistrates assigned to the Second District, shall, on alternate days, attend at the Fourth District Police Court, hereby established.

Clerks, Stuart and Welsh to the First district Police Court; Clerks Murray and Davison to the Second District Police Court; Riblet to the Third District Court, and Lalor to the Fourth District Police Court.

§ 5. The compensation to be paid to the officers aforesaid, shall be at the following rates:

To the Police Justices, one thousand five hundred dollars per annum each.

To the Clerks of Police, one thousand dollars per annum each.

Adopted by the Board of Aldermen, May 3, 1848.

Adopted by the Board of Assistants, May 5, 1848.

Approved by the Mayor, May 5, 1848.

The foregoing ordinance was amended, November 24th, 1848, by assigning Justice McGrath to the First District, Justice Mountfort to the Second District, and Justice Timpson to the Third District.

It was also further amended, December 8th, 1848, by assigning John Lalor as Clerk to the Third District.

The effect of these amendments is, that the Fourth District Police office, located by the ordinance, in Twenty-ninth street, has been abolished, and there remains but three Police Courts.

By resolution of Common Council, approved April 21st and 23d, 1852, Justices Osborne and Welsh, and Clerks Rockwell and Nesbitt were assigned at Halls of Justice; Justices Bogart and McGrath, and Clerks Murray and Davison were assigned at Jefferson market; Justices Stuart and Wood, and Clerks, Lalor and Johnson were assigned at Essex market.

The Mayor, Aldermen and Commonalty of the city of New York, in Common Council convened, do ordain as follows:

Section sixty-nine of the ordinance organizing the Departments of the Municipal Government of the city of New York, is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

§ 69. There shall be appointed for each Ward, by the Mayor, on the recommendation of the Alderman and Assistant Alderman of each Ward, two persons, to be denominated Door-keepers, who shall attend to the station-house of their respective Wards, and shall keep the same in order, and act as Door-keepers thereof, and perform such other duties as may be required of them by the Captains of Police of the Wards, respectively.

Adopted by the Board of Aldermen, March 4, 1850.

Adopted by the Board of Assistants, March 18, 1850.

Approved by the Mayor, March 22, 1850.

CONCERNING THE POLICE OF THE SECOND, THIRD, FOURTH, SIXTH, ELEVENTH, FOURTEENTH, FIFTEENTH, SIXTEENTH, SEVENTEENTH AND EIGHTEENTH WARDS

Be it ordained, by the Mayor, Aldermen and Commonalty of the City of New York, in Common Council convened, as follows:

§ 1. There shall hereafter be appointed to the Second Ward, forty policemen; to the Fourth Ward, fifty policemen; to the Sixth Ward, fifty-one policemen; to the Fourteenth Ward, fifty policemen; to the Third Ward, forty-nine policemen; to the Fifteenth Ward, forty-six policemen; to the Sixteenth Ward, fifty-three policemen; to the Seventeenth Ward, fifty-three policemen; to the Eighteenth Ward, forty-six policemen, and to the Eleventh Ward, forty-eight policemen, including Captains, Assistant Captains and Sergeants.

§ 2. The foregoing section shall take effect at the time and in the manner following, that is to say, whenever, and as often as one or more vacancies shall occur, by the death, resignation, removal, disqualification, or by the expiration of the term of office of any of the policemen now appointed, and acting in and for the Sixth Ward, this ordinance shall take effect as to such offices so becoming vacant, and the appointment to fill the same shall be for the Third Ward, and until the number of policemen in the Third Ward shall be increased to forty-nine; and when, and as often thereafter as one or more vacancies shall occur, by the death, resignation, removal, disqualification, or by the expiration of the term of office of any of the policemen now acting in and for said Sixth Ward, this ordinance shall take effect as to such offices so becoming vacant, and the appointments to fill the same shall be for the Sixteenth Ward, until the number of policemen for the Sixteenth Ward shall be increased to fifty-three; and when and as often thereafter as one or more vacancies shall occur, by the death, resignation, removal, disqualification, or by the expiration of the terms of office of any of the policemen now acting in and for the said Sixth Ward, the appointment to fill the same shall be for the Fifteenth Ward, until the number of the policemen in the Sixth Ward shall be reduced to fifty-one; and thereafter the first section of this ordinance shall be and continue in full force and effect as to the said Sixth Ward and the Third Ward; and when, and as often as any one or more vacancies shall occur, by the death, resignation, removal, disqualification, or by the expiration of the term of office of any of the policemen now acting in and for the Fourteenth Ward, this ordinance shall take effect as to such offices so becoming vacant, and the appointment to fill the same shall be for the Fifteenth Ward, until the number of the policemen in the Fourteenth Ward shall be reduced to fifty. And thereafter the first section of this ordinance shall be, and continue in full force and effect, as to the said Fourteenth and Fifteenth

Wards, and when and as often as one or more vacancies shall occur, by the death, resignation, removal, disqualification, or by the expiration of the term of office of any of the policemen now acting in and for the Fourth Ward, this ordinance shall take effect as to such offices so becoming vacant, and the appointment to fill the same shall be for the Seventeenth Ward, until the number of the policemen in the Seventeenth Ward shall be increased to fifty-three. And thereafter the first section of this ordinance shall be and continue in full force and effect as to the said Seventeenth Ward; and when and as often thereafter as one or more vacancies shall occur, by the death, resignation, removal, disqualification, or by the expiration of the term of office of any of the policemen now acting in and for the said Fourth Ward, the appointment to fill the same, shall be for the Eleventh Ward, until the number of policemen in the Fourth Ward shall be reduced to fifty-five; and thereafter the first section of this ordinance shall be and continue in full force and effect as to the said Fourth and Eleventh Wards; and when and so often as one or more vacancies shall occur, by death, resignation, removal, disqualification, or by the expiration of the term of office of any of the policemen now acting in and for said Second Ward, this ordinance shall take effect as to such offices so becoming vacant; and the appointment to fill the same, shall be for the Eighteenth Ward, until the number of policemen in the Second Ward shall be reduced to forty. And thereafter the first section of this ordinance shall be and continue in full force and effect as to said Second and Eighth Wards; provided, however, no policeman, now duly appointed and acting according to law, shall be deprived of his office, until the same shall become vacant according to law.

Adopted by the Board of Aldermen, February 3, 1851.

Adopted by the Board of Assistants, February 5, 1851.

Approved by the Mayor, February 13, 1851.

Of the thirty persons sentenced to be executed in the above period, twelve were executed; one has been pardoned; the punishment of twelve has been commuted to imprisonment for life: one committed suicide; three had new trials ordered by the Court of Appeals, two of whom were subsequently convicted of manslaughter, and yet to be tried; and in one case a writ of error, with a stay of execution, is now pending.

The Judge at Chambers will begin on the first Monday of the month to which he is assigned, and continue to and including the Saturday preceeding the first Monday of the succeeding month.

REGULATIONS.

All issues of fact already joined and triable in the city of New York, will be noticed to the Clerk, and be put on the Calendar for the ensuing January Circuit.

During the first week of that Circuit, motions to correct the Calendar may be made.

After that week, the Calendar will remain unchanged, and continue the Calendar for every successive Circuit, until all the causes on it shall be tried; each Circuit beginning on the Calendar where the immediately preceding Circuit left off.

Fifteen causes a day, and no more, will be called at General and Special Terms, and before each Judge at Circuit, unless otherwise specially ordered.

No cause will be set down for a particular day at a Circuit, unless sworn off when called, on account of the absence of a witness, and on payment of costs.

If the trial of a cause shall not be moved by either party, when called in its order on the Circuit Calendar, it will go to the foot of the Calendar, and not be called again until it shall be reached in that place.

All new issues will be noticed for the first day of the next Circuit, after the same shall be joined, and be put in their order at the foot of the permanent Calendar.

After the first week of each Circuit, (during which, motions to correct the Calendar may be made,) the Calendar of the causes which may have gone down at the previous Circuit, and the new issues will be entered as part, and in continuation of the permanent Calendar; and so on, from court to court, until the end of the year.

These regulations do not affect the question of noticing the causes for trial to the opposite party, from court to court, as the statute may require. The blank is in place of the Judge who is to succeed Judge Morris.

SPECIAL CIRCUIT CALENDAR.

At any Circuit, until further orders, any causes belonging to either of the two following classes, may be placed on a Special Circuit Calendar, unless the trial is likely to occupy more than one hour.

1st. Where the action is on contract, and the answer merely denies the allegations in the complaint, without setting up any new matter.

2d. Where the action is on contract, and new matter is set up in the answer, and there shall be reason to believe that the defence is made only for the purpose of delay.

To entitle the cause to be placed on such calendar, the Plaintiff's Attorney must give a notice of four days, to be heard before a Judge at Chambers, that he will move to have the cause placed on such Calendar; and if the motion be granted, the cause may be heard on any subsequent Friday.

If the motion be founded on the belief that the defence is for delay, affidavits must be served at the time of notice.

The Plaintiff's Attorney must deliver to the Clerk of the Circuit a like notice, one day before such Friday, containing also the number of the cause on the General Circuit Calendar.

If the cause shall actually occupy more than one hour on the trial, the trial may be suspended at the discretion of the Court, and the cause be put down at the foot of the Calendar.

FIRE DEPARTMENT FUND.

TRUSTEES' REPORT FOR 1855.

In pursuance with the invariable custom, and of the requirements of the Department, the Trustees have the honor to submit herewith, a detailed statement of the operations of the Board, during the past year, together with such observations and recommendations as their reflection and experience would seem to suggest, in order to render more perfect that benevolence, it is the object of this charity to bestow, upon those entitled to its benefits.

Among the many charities of this city, there is none which enjoys in a higher degree the confidence and regard of its citizens, than the Fire Department Charity. It is one of the oldest, most useful, and extensive institutions of the kind, in this city, and differs from every other in its most essential feature—that of being organized upon an entirely voluntary basis, supported by the voluntary subscriptions of the generous and benevolent-hearted, and administered by the voluntary services of every officer connected with its management.

In this connection, the Trustees beg leave to state that, during the past year, various friends and members of the Department have nobly contributed to aid them in increasing the measures of relief. Prominently among these will be found the names of William B. Astor, Esq., whose philanthropy is substantially and annually exhibited by a most liberal donation.

To Messrs. Bowman & Co., the Department is under obligations for a liberal donation, besides other benevolent individuals, who have liberally contributed, as well as the regular city fire insurance companies, which, together with other important items, will be found faithfully and correctly enumerated under their proper heads, in the Treasurer's Report, to which your attention is most respectfully invited. That officer had remaining in his hands, last year, a balance of one thousand seven hundred and twenty-one dollars and two cents, since which time he has received, from various sources, the sum of twenty-four thousand two hundred and eleven dollars and eighty-three cents, which in the aggregate, amounts to twenty-five thousand nine hundred and thirty-two dollars and eighty-five cents: out of which there has been expended, for widows' pensions, relief to the sick and disabled firemen, &c., the sum of twenty-four thousand eight hundred and ninety-four dollars and forty cents; re-invested one thousand dollars—leaving a balance deposited in the Butchers' and Drovers' Bank, to the credit of the Fire Department Fund, of thirty-eight dollars and forty-five cents. The permanent fund (including trust and special trust funds) now amounts to ninety-three thousand seven hundred and fifty dollars, invested as follows: ninety-three thousand five hundred dollars, on bond and mortgage, and two hundred and fifty dollars in Manhattan Bank stock.

This large expenditure has been occasioned by a variety of circumstances. Prominent among them, is the unexampled severity and protracted duration of the past winter, and the depression of nearly all kinds of business, causing great distress, and multiplying the number of applicants for aid, in a ratio unprecedented in the history of the Fire Department. The Trustees, while exercising a sound discrimination, in order to guard this inestimable charity from unjust exactions, have not been unmindful of those feelings of delicacy and humanity which should influence them in the distribution of aid, and in their visitations to the sick and indigent; but have liberally supplied the necessities of the recipients with that relief which the institution was established for, and especially designated to accomplish. It has always been a grateful task of the Trustees, to make known to you the fact, that they had been enabled, by the blessing of Providence, to increase the amount of the permanent fund; but this year, owing to the unusually heavy expenditures, they have been unable to do so. This, although a source of disappointment in some respects, is relieved by the pleasing reflection that the charities of the Department were never more seasonably or beneficially exerted, and that, while ministering to the wants of the sick, or superintending the interment of the dead fireman, they felt thankful that the Department had the ability, in the hour of painful adversity, to stretch forth its right hand without turning away the needy and distressed.

Since the last annual report, three members of this Department, when in the voluntary exercise of their duties, and impelled by the noblest impulses, have lost their lives, in defending the property of our citizens; struck down in the midst of a life of usefulness, an early grave has closed over their career, but their heroism is still held in grateful remembrance by their friends and associates. To their afflicted families the Trustees tender their sincerest expressions of sorrow and regret.

The School Committee, of this Board, upon whom devolves the duty of distributing shoes, and such other assistance as may be required, to the children of firemen attending the public schools, have discharged their duty to these interesting objects of their care; with patient fidelity and devotion. There have been distributed among these children, and the widows of firemen, sixteen hundred and sixty-three pairs of shoes—a much larger number than in any previous year; besides this, there have been distributed three hundred and thirty tons of coal. It can readily be imagined how much real good has been accomplished by the Department Fund, when the severity of the past winter is taken into consideration.

The School Committee also report, that the Van Schaick scholarship, at the New York University, are filled by Masters Edward L. Snyder, and James W. Miller, the sons of old and distinguished members of this Department.

It gives the Trustees much pleasure to state, that, by the recent appointment of Fire Commissioners, under the law passed by the legislature, at the last session, the Department has been benefited to an extent more favorable, than even its best friends could have hoped for. The Commissioners were elected in the month of May last, by the firemen themselves; and the effect of their decisions, unbiassed by political prejudices or pretensions, has effectually rid the Department of the riotous and disorderly, which has at this moment, placed it in a position not only worthy of its best days, but in strength, efficiency, discipline and good order, never before surpassed. This separation of the Department from the political action of the Common Council, we trust, will forever exclude the political and every other rioter from our ranks—as political influence can no longer embolden or protect them.

The law, also, requiring every fireman, when on duty, to wear either a badge or a fire-cap, and prohibiting any but firemen from wearing them, went into operation in the early part of the present month. The intention of the law is to keep all persons but firemen from the vicinity of fires; especially thieves, and other bad characters; for this, the law gives the police absolute power of arrest and expulsion, and it requires their active co-operation to carry it out; but it is to be regretted, that the police have not given that co-operation which the Department had a right to expect, and the orders of the Mayor, to that effect, are in a great measure disregarded. The members of this department will cheerfully sustain the police in the discharge of their duty; and it is to be hoped that if the latter fail, the former will not be held responsible for the acts of such thieves and vagabonds as the police may hereafter permit to prowl around the neighborhood of fires.

The Trustees would do injustice to their own feelings, as well as imperfectly discharge the duties assigned to them, if they failed to direct attention to the Charitable Fund, in its relation to the number and character of its beneficiaries, and its strong claims to the consideration of the benevolent. To visit the widow and fatherless in their affliction is enjoined upon all, by inspired authority, and this without limitation as to persons, or to the casualties by which they have been deprived of their natural protectors. But those who have been thrown upon the relief afforded by our fund, are the widows and orphans of our friends and associates; many of whom have been personally connected with us, as members of the Fire Department, all of whom have honorably discharged its duties. Surely their destitute wives and children make no common appeal, not merely to our sympathy, but to that of the community at large, who have received the benefit of their services. Other charities, in no sense more public in their character than that of the Fire Department, have had their funds largely increased by direct appropriations from the legislature, and by frequent and large bequests of private individuals, and by the substantial results which have uniformly attended their appeals for aid, at meetings called for the purpose. In view of the increasing numbers of those who will be hereafter entitled to relief, the suggestion is worthy of consideration, whether a resort to some means which have proved so efficient heretofore in aid of our charity, might not be attended with corresponding results again. We live in a community distinguished for its many noble charities, and not accustomed to overlook the sick and destitute, the widow and the orphan, and the conviction is irresistible, that an additional appeal would strike a responsive chord in many hearts.

Suits have been commenced, and are still pending, against the following foreign insurance agents, for refusing to pay the tax for the benefit of this Department, passed by the Legislature, viz: Alfred Pell, the British agent and resident secretary of two English insurance companies—the one located in London, and the other in Liverpool; and yet the agent of these foreign companies, doing an immense business here, and dividing large profits among its foreign stockholders, and sharing in the ample protection of the Fire Department, refuses to comply with the provisions of a most just and righteous law, passed to aid the Fire Department of the city in support of their Widow and Orphans' Fund. The other delinquents, besides Alfred Pell, are Asa Bigelow and William Wright. All the other companies, with these exceptions, have faithfully complied with the law.

The Firemen's Ball Committee still continue their indefatigable exertions, and realized from their last annual ball, at the Academy of Music, the very large sum of three thousand nine hundred and fifty-six dollars and thirty-four cents, which was duly paid over to our Treasurer, and suitably acknowledged by him through the daily papers.

Handsome donations have been received from the editor of the New York Herald, and other public journals, for which the Department is under many obligations.

The terms of service of Peter H. Titus, John B. Peck and James Kelly, will expire this year; it will be necessary, therefore, to elect three Trustees, for three years each.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

By order of Board of Trustees,

Dec. 30, 1855.

FIREMAN'S HALL, MERCER ST. N. Y. 1856

FIREMEN'S HALL.

Description of the new Firemen's Hall, which is located on lots Nos. 127 and 129 Mercer street, which was formerly occupied by the old Firemen's Hall and the City Oil House, the general dimensions of which are as follows:

The whole depth of the building from front to rear is ninety-five feet, and the breadth is forty-one feet. The whole height of the front elevation is fifty-five feet from the level of the sidewalk. The building is three stories high above the cellar. The first story, which is level with the sidewalk, and eleven feet in height, is appropriated for the use of New York hose company No. 5, and Lafayette hook and ladder company No. 6; the former on the south side, and the latter on the north side of the main entrance. Each company has fifteen by ninety feet, which is divided in three rooms, the front room for the apparatus, the centre room for their meetings, and the room in the rear for sitting and reading. The main entrance hall will be eight feet in width, and is divided from the stairs by a pair of folding-doors, which forms a large receiving vestibule.

The second story is thirty feet in height, and contains three rooms. One large room for the meetings of the representatives, the engineers and foremen, and the Exempt Firemen's Association. This room is thirty-eight feet wide and seventy-one feet deep. It is well ventilated, having large windows on all sides, and the side wall recedes from the adjoining buildings three feet. On each side of the stairway is a room fifteen feet by twenty feet, for committee rooms.

The third story is fifteen feet in height, and contains the same number of rooms and of the same size as the second story. The large room is used for a library and reading room, and the small rooms for the librarian and committees. All the rooms above the first story are heated with hot air furnaces.

The front of the building is of Connecticut brown stone, cut in the best manner. The style of architecture is Italian, or in other words a composition of Greek and Roman details applied by the Italians to modern building. The two outer angles are formed with rusticated quoins. The doors and windows are trimmed with architraves, pilasters and cornices, supported on ornamental brackets. Two vertical lines of pilasters extend the height of the elevation on each side of the entrance doorway and the centre windows. Upon the face of these antes on the first story is cut in relief the emblems of the Fire Department, such as hooks and ladders, torches, axes, trumpets, &c., and the tops of these antes are surmounted with a fire-hydrant. The name of the building, Firemen's Hall, is cut on the stone over the second story windows. The main corner of the front is an elaborate pattern, and is supported by heavy truss brackets. On the top of the cornice is a blocking course with three pedestals, the two side ones surmounted with a cluster of torches, and the centre one with the full size statue of a fireman—the same one who stood sentry so many years in front of the old hall. In a semi-circle arch over the front entrance door is carved in bas-relief the figures of Protection and Benevolence, as represented on the initiation certificate of the New York Fire Department; and upon the key-stone of the arch is cut a full size fire cap. The whole building is constructed in the most substantial manner. The cellar wall is twenty-eight inches thick, the first story walls twenty inches thick, and the second and third story walls sixteen inches thick. The floor-beams of the third story are supported by five massive iron girders, twenty-four inches wide, resting on and anchored in the side walls, and which are to support the ceiling of the representatives hall, which has a space of thirty-eight feet, and is most beautifully ornamented with stucco work.

The plans for the building were drawn under the direction of Mr. James L. Miller, the chairman of the building committee from the Board of Representatives, by Messrs. Field & Correja, architects, the same gentlemen to whom was awarded the first premium for the plans of the new City Hall, by the unanimous vote of the Common Council Committee.

The whole cost of the building, which was paid for by the city, (and the estimates were advertised for, and awarded to the lowest bidder,) is as follows:

Messrs. Platt & Fisher, for the mason work, $13,311.

Messrs. James L. Miller & Co., for the carpenter work, $11,500.

Total, $34,811.

The stone cutting was sub-contracted to Messrs. Gayette & M'Garigal, two enterprising young firemen, who have been but a short time in business, but who have already given evidence of their superior ability on several engine and hose houses recently erected.

The iron work is from the works of Messrs. Cornell; the painting by Mr. James Gilmore; the carved work by Mr. Dewitt C. Mott, and the ornamental plastering by Mr. Martin.

All of the above gentlemen are connected with the Fire Department of this city, and each one of them endeavored to excel the other in the superior manner in which the work was executed in their respective branches.

The building committee from the Board of Representatives consisted of

Messrs. JAMES L. MILLER,
JAMES F. WENMAN,
WILLIAM D. WADE,
JOHN S. BELCHER,
JAMES DONAHUE.

THE NEW ARMORY, OR DOWN-TOWN ARSENAL.

This edifice is situated on the corner of White and Elm streets. It is one hundred and thirty-one feet on White street, and eighty-four feet on Elm street. It is built of blue stone, only two stories high, the first being thirteen feet, and the second thirty feet high. The windows are very narrow, being only eighteen inches wide, so that in case of an assault by a mob outside, the building could be defended with success by fifty men. The first floor is used as a gun room and meeting room, the second as a drill room, and a rendezvous in case of a riot. The style is Gothic, and on the three corners of the building are situated towers; there are five doors on White street and one on Elm, which are made of boiler iron. It is built on piles driven into the ground. This building is used as a receptacle for a portion of the artillery of the first division of the New York State Militia. It is a very handsome building, and is constructed on the very best plan for defence. On the centre of the roof will be erected a large flag staff, by which communication from this building and the arsenal uptown may be carried on by signal telegraph.

The Free Academy of the city of New York was established in 1848, by the Board of Education of the city of New York, in pursuance of an act of the legislature of the state, passed May 7, 1847, for the purpose of providing higher education for such pupils of the Common Schools as may avail themselves of its advantages. It is under the general superintendence of the Board of Education; but it is specially under the supervision of an Executive Committee, for its care, government, and management, appointed by the Board. All its expenses for instruction, apparatus, library, cabinet collections, books and stationery, are paid out of the public treasury.

The students are admitted in annual classes, and the full course of study embraces five years.

The Board of Education is authorized by law to confer the usual collegiate degrees on the recommendation of the Faculty.

Graduates may become "Resident Graduates," and continue their studies at option.

The Academy is situated in Twenty-third street, at the corner of Lexington avenue; and its academical exercises, during term time, continue daily, (except Saturday and Sunday,) from a quarter before nine o'clock, A.M., to three o'clock, P.M.

Provided, That when the distance exceeds half a mile and is within a mile, one-third more shall be added to the above rates and prices, and in the same proportion for any greater distance. And if any public cartman shall ask, demand, receive, take, exact or extort, any greater rate, price, pay or compensation, for carting or transporting any article or thing whatsoever than is mentioned, allowed, expressed and limited as aforesaid, it shall not be lawful for him to receive any compensation for the said carting or transportation, and such asking or receiving shall be deemed a violation of this ordinance.

It shall not be lawful for any public cartman to neglect or refuse to carry and transport a good and sufficient load, as much as can be conveniently and safely stowed on his cart, or is reasonable for one horse to draw, nor any article of less than two thousand pounds weight, when required so to do, unless he be then actually otherwise employed; and every public cartman and public porter shall be entitled to be paid the legal rate of compensation allowed and provided in this ordinance, immediately upon the carting or transportation of any article or thing; and it may be lawful for any such public cartman or public porter, to retain any article or thing so carted or transported by him, for which he is not so paid his cartage, and to convey the same, without delay, to the office of Chief of Police, and he shall be entitled to the lawful rate of pay or compensation for the so conveying. All disputes or disagreements as to distance, or rates of compensation, between the public cartmen or public porters, and persons employing or owing them for cartage or transportation, shall be determined by the Mayor.

It shall not be lawful for any public cartman, or any other person, to cart or transport through any of the streets of said city, any poles, plank, spars, timber, or other thing exceeding thirty feet in length, except on a suitable truck or other vehicle, and such plank or other thing be placed lengthwise thereon, so as not to project at either end beyond the line of the side or width of such truck or other vehicle; and all persons so carting or transporting any such poles, plank, timber, spars, or other things, in any other manner, shall be deemed guilty of a violation of this article.

It shall not be lawful for the driver or other person having charge of any public cart, dirt cart, or any other vehicle, to be off or away from any such cart, or any other vehicle, while the same is moving or passing along any of the streets or avenues of said city; nor shall it be lawful for any public cartman, while waiting for employment, at any place assigned for his cart to stand while waiting for employment, or at any other place, to snap or flourish his whip, or to be away from his cart, unless from necessity or on business, or to sit or stand about the door-steps or platforms in front of any house, store, or other building, to the annoyance of the occupants thereof.

It shall not be lawful for any person who has been licensed to keep public carts, or to be a public cartman, and whose license has been suspended or revoked by the Mayor, to keep, drive, or use any public cart in the city of New York, under the penalty of twenty-five dollars for every such offence.

The stanchions of every public cart employed in the transportation of any firewood shall be shouldered with a band of iron around the part which enters the mortice, and the mortice cased with iron, so as to prevent the wearing of the stanchion or mortice; or at least three feet distant from the floor of the cart, there shall be fixed across from one stanchion to the other, an iron chain, so as to prevent the stanchions from spreading, and no public cartman shall cart any firewood in violation of any of these provisions.

It shall not be lawful for any person to keep, drive, use or employ, any cart, wagon, truck, dray, or other vehicle, other than such as are licensed as herein provided, for the transportation or conveyance of any article or thing, from place to place, in the city of New York, unless the name and residence, or place of business, where such owner can be found, [of the owner thereof,] be fairly and distinctly painted with red paint, on a white ground in plain letters and figures, at least two and a half inches long, in a conspicuous place, on both sides of such cart or other vehicle, so as at all times to be easily seen thereon.

LAW TO REGULATE PUBLIC PORTERS.

1. The Mayor shall license and appoint as many and such persons as he may think expedient, to be public porters of the city of New York, and revoke or suspend any or all such licenses at his pleasure, and it shall not be lawful for any person to use any wheelbarrow or hand-cart, to carry within said city, for hire, wages, or pay for such conveyance, or to be at any hotel, boarding-house, ferry, steamboat landing, railroad station or depot, and solicit of strangers, travelers, citizens or other persons, or accept the conveyance of baggage, or other articles, without being licensed as aforesaid by the Mayor.

This section shall not be construed to prevent any person, keeping or employed in, any hotel or boarding-house from conveying any baggage or other articles to or from such hotel or boarding-house, and using a hand-cart or wheelbarrow therefor; provided the name of the hotel or boarding-house, and the keeper thereof, be painted distinctly on both sides of such wheelbarrow or hand-cart, and on a badge worn on the front of his hat or cap, so as to be easily and distinctly seen.

2. All licenses to public porters, granted as aforesaid, shall run one year from the date thereof, and may be renewed by the Mayor at any time within the said year, for a succeeding year.

3. Every person receiving a license to be a public porter, as aforesaid, shall pay to the Mayor for the use of the city, one dollar; and a further sum of seventy-five cents, upon the renewal of every such license.

4. Every public porter shall wear, in a conspicuous place about his person so as to be easily seen, a brass plate, or badge, on which shall be engraved his name, the words, "public porter," and the number of his license; and it shall be unlawful for any other person to wear or exhibit any badge, purporting to be, resembling, or similar to, the badge of a public porter; and no public porter shall permit any other person to wear his badge, or use his name in any way whatever, in the transportation or conveyance of any thing.

5. Public porters shall be entitled to charge and receive for the carrying or conveyance of any article, any distance within half a mile, twelve cents, if carried by hand, and twenty-five cents, if carried on a wheelbarrow or hand-cart; if the distance exceeds half a mile, and is within one mile, one half the above rates in addition thereto, and in the same proportion for any greater distance.

6. If any public porter shall ask or demand any greater rate of pay or compensation for the carrying or conveyance of articles than is herein provided, he shall not be entitled to any pay for the said service; and to so ask, demand, or receive any such greater pay or compensation, shall be deemed a violation of this ordinance.

7. It shall not be lawful for any person to represent himself as, or to wear or exhibit any badge, inscription, card, or device, purporting or implying that he is employed or authorized by the keeper, proprietor, agent, or officer of any hotel, boarding-house, vessel, steamboat, or railroad company, to solicit, receive or convey persons, baggage, or other things to or from any such hotel, boarding-house, vessel, steamboat, or railroad company's station or depot, without being actually and duly authorized by such keeper, proprietor, officer or agent, so to do, under the penalty of twenty-five dollars for every offence.

All persons who shall violate or fail to comply with any of the provisions of this ordinance, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and conviction thereof shall be published pursuant to the provisions of sections 20 and 21 of an act relative to the powers of the Common Council of the city of New York, and the criminal courts of said city, passed by the Legislature of the State of New York, January 23d, 1833, or in lieu thereof, shall forfeit and pay, for the use of said city, ten dollars for each and every offence, except where a penalty is prescribed in said ordinance.

EXTRACT FROM ORDINANCES,

OF THE RATES AND PRICES OF FARES

TO BE CHARGED BY HACKNEY COACHES.

The prices or rates of fares to be taken by, or paid to the owners or drivers of hackney coaches or carriages, shall be as follows:

For conveying a passenger any distance not exceeding one mile, fifty cents; for conveying two passengers the same distance, seventy-five cents, or thirty-seven and a half cents each; and for every additional passenger thirty-seven and a half cents.

For conveying a passenger any distance exceeding a mile, and within two miles, seventy-five cents; and for every additional passenger thirty-seven and a half cents.

For conveying a passenger to the new alms-house and returning, one dollar; and for every additional passenger and returning, fifty cents.

For conveying one passenger to Fortieth street and remaining half an hour, and returning, one dollar and a half; and for every additional passenger, fifty cents.

For conveying one passenger to Sixty-first street, and remaining three quarters of an hour, and returning, two dollars; and for every additional passenger fifty cents.

For conveying one passenger to Eighty-sixth street, and remaining one hour, and returning, two dollars and a half; and for every additional passenger seventy-five cents.

For conveying one or more passengers to Harlem and returning, with the privilege of remaining three hours, five dollars; or to High Bridge, five dollars, with the same privilege.

For conveying one or more passengers to King's Bridge, and returning, with the privilege of keeping the carriage all day, five dollars.

For the use of a hackney coach or carriage by the day, with one or more passengers, five dollars.

For the use of a hackney coach or carriage by the hour, with one or more passengers, with the privilege of going from place to place, and stopping as often as may be required, one dollar an hour.

In all cases where the hiring of a hackney coach or carriage is not at the time thereof specified to be by the day or hour, it shall be deemed to be by the mile.

For children between two and fourteen years of age, half price is only to be charged; and for children under two years of age, no charge is to be made.

Whenever a hackney coach or carriage shall be detained, excepting as aforesaid, the owner or driver shall be allowed after the rate of seventy-five cents an hour.

Every driver or owner of a hackney coach, carriage or cab, shall carry, transport and convey, in, and upon his coach, carriage or cab, in addition to the person or persons therein, one trunk, valise, saddle-bag, carpet-bag, portmanteau or box, if he be requested so to do, for each passenger, without charge or compensation therefor; but for every trunk or other such articles above-named, more than one for each passenger, he shall be entitled to demand and receive the sum of six cents.

In case of disagreement as to distance or price, the same shall be determined by the Mayor or Superintendent of Hackney Coaches or Carriages.

The owner of any hackney coach or carriage shall not demand or receive any pay for the conveyance of any passenger, unless the number of the carriage, and the rates and prices of fare, shall be fixed and placed in a manner hereinafter directed by section second of title fourth of this ordinance, at the time such passenger may be conveyed in such carriage.

The owner or driver of any hackney coach or carriage shall not be entitled to recover or receive any pay from any person, from whom he shall have demanded any greater price or rates than he may be authorized to receive as aforesaid.

Upon the trial of any cause commenced for the recovery of any of the aforesaid prices or rates, it shall be incumbent upon the plaintiff or plaintiffs in such action, to prove that the number and prices or rates were placed and fixed in pursuance of the provisions of this ordinance, at the time the services were rendered, for which the suit may be brought.

No owner or driver of any hackney coach or carriage in the city of New York, shall ask, demand or receive any larger sum than he or they may be entitled to receive as aforesaid, under the penalty of ten dollars for every such offence, to be sued for and recovered from the owner or owners, or driver of any such hackney coach or carriage, severally and respectively.

A N O R D I N A N C E

IN ADDITION TO AN ORDINANCE ENTITLED "AN ORDINANCE FOR LICENSING AND OTHERWISE REGULATING THE USE AND EMPLOYMENT OF CARTS AND CARTMEN, DIRT CARTS AND DIRT CARTMEN, AND PUBLIC PORTERS, AND FOR THE PRESERVATION OF GOOD ORDER IN THE CITY OF NEW YORK."

The Mayor, Aldermen and Commonalty of the City of New York, in Common Council convened, do ordain as follows:

§ 1. All the provisions of this ordinance, to which this is an addition, as far as relates to carts and cartmen, and not inconsistent herewith, excepting sections 2, 3, 5, 10, 17 and 18, are extended to, and shall include and be applicable to all wagons and other vehicles commonly known as express wagons, which shall be kept, or used, driven or employed for the transportation of any thing whatsoever, to, or from any place within the city of New York, from or to any place whatsoever, for hire, wages or pay; provided always, that the owner or owners of such wagons or vehicles shall have a place in the city of New York for the transaction of such business.

§ 2. The Mayor shall find time to license and appoint so many and such persons as he may think proper to set up and keep one or more express wagons in said city; and he may revoke or suspend any or all such licenses at his pleasure; but it shall not be lawful for any person to receive or hold a license to keep such express wagon, unless he is the actual owner of the wagon or wagons, and of a good horse or horses therefor, nor unless he be a citizen of the United States, and has a family, and resides with his family in said city; or if not having a family, shall have resided himself therein during the six months preceding; and the Mayor may examine, under oath, all persons applying for or holding any such license, or the renewal thereof, touching their qualifications, as aforesaid; and all licenses, other than to persons so qualified, shall be void.

§ 3. The Mayor shall require and receive, for the use of the city, from every person to whom he may grant license to keep such express wagons, five dollars for every wagon so licensed, and two dollars and fifty cents for the licenses of each such wagon renewed.

§ 4. Every such express wagon shall have fairly painted on the outside thereof, in a conspicuous place, on each side, so as to be easily seen, in plain letters and figures of at least two and a half inches in length, the name of the owner or owners, the place of business in said city, and the number of the license for such wagon, and such owner or owners shall be responsible for all articles intrusted to such wagon or to the driver thereof, and for the conduct of such driver, whilst in charge of or with such wagon.

§ 5. No person shall drive such express wagon, unless he be twenty-one years of age, and have obtained license from the Mayor for such purpose, under the penalty of ten dollars for every such offence, to be recovered from the owner or owners of such express wagon, and from such driver, both or either

§ 6. The Mayor is hereby authorized to grant licenses, from time to time, to drivers of such express wagons, as are herein mentioned, as often as may be necessary, and to suspend and revoke the same whenever he may deem it expedient.

§ 7. Any driver of any express wagon, who shall be thrice convicted of a breach of any of the sections of this ordinance, shall be deprived of his license, and forever debarred of a license under this ordinance.

For every single letter in manuscript, or paper of any kind upon which information shall be asked or communicated in writing, or by marks or signs sent by mail, the rates mentioned in this table shall be charged; and for every additional half ounce or fraction of an ounce above the weight named in this table, an additional single rate is to be charged.

1st. Every letter or parcel, not exceeding half an ounce in weight, shall be deemed a single letter or rate.

2d. All drop-letters or letters placed in the New York post-office not for transmission, but for city delivery only, are charged at the rate of two cents each.

3d. Each deputy post-master, whose compensation for the last preceding fiscal year (ending the 30th June) did not exceed two hundred dollars, may send through the mail all letters written by himself, and receive through the mail all written communications addressed to himself, on his private business, which shall not exceed in weight one half ounce, free of postage. This does not authorize them to frank any letters unless written by themselves, and on their private business only; nor does it authorize them to receive, free of postage, any thing but written communications addressed to themselves, and on their private business.

NOTE.—From and after the 30th June, 1851, the mode of computing the rates upon inland letters—i. e., letters from one office, within the United States or Territories to another, and also upon letters between the United States and the British North American Provinces—is to be as follows, to wit: Single rate, if not exceeding half an ounce; double rate, if exceeding half an ounce, but not exceeding an ounce; treble rate, if exceeding an ounce, but not exceeding an ounce and a half; and so on, charging an additional rate for every additional half ounce or fraction of half an ounce.

The mode of computing rates upon letters to Great Britain, and to all other foreign countries, the British North American Provinces excepted, will remain as at present, under the act of 3d March, 1849, and agreeable to instructions appended to the table of foreign postages.

NEW YORK GASLIGHT COMPANY.

Chartered 26th of March, 1823—Unlimited in duration. Capital, $1,000,000.

OFFICERS.

William W. Fox, President.

(Who has filled that station for twenty-eight years.)

John Mowton, Manager.

C. L. Everitt, Secretary.

The pipes have been laid in all of the streets of the district south of Grand street, under its contract with the Corporation of the city, requiring about 130 miles of mains of various sizes, from eighteen inch to three inch diameter.

There are at present about 3,000 public lamps lighted with gas, in the district, and the number is rapidly increasing. The gas is now made principally from Cannel and Newcastle coals; its price is thirty cents per hundred cubic feet.

The works are situated on Twenty-first and Twenty-second streets, from First avenue to the East river, with buildings and suitable apparatus for manufacturing, washing, purifying and distributing the gas. The Company are about putting up additional buildings, with the requisite apparatus appertaining thereto. There are now in operation six large telescopic gasholders at that station, and there are seven smaller gasometers, for storage of gas, in different parts of the city.

MANHATTAN GASLIGHT COMPANY.

Chartered February 26, 1853—Perpetual. Capital, $4,000,000.

Office, corner Irving place and Fifteenth street.

OFFICERS.

Charles Roome, President.Floyd Smith, Vice-President.Samuel H. Howard, Secretary.Charles Smith, *Superintendent of Street Mains and Lamps*Thomas Marsh, Chief Inspector.Walter Roome, Superintendent of Gasworks in 17th street.William Combe, Superintendent of Gasworks in 14th street.

This company supplies that portion of the city which lies north of Grand street. They have two stations or works; one at the foot of Seventeenth street, near the North river, containing four large gasholders and six hundred retorts, and capable of supplying two million cubic feet of gas in twenty-four hours; and one station at the foot of Fourteenth street, East river. The Fourteenth street works are now producing four hundred thousand feet of gas per day; when finished they will contain six large gasholders, and nine hundred retorts, equal to a production of three million cubic feet of gas in twenty-four hours. This company have 190 miles of street mains; light 7,300 street lamps, and supply gas to over 17,000 stores and dwellings. In 1855 they manufactured 470,000,000 feet of gas.

PLAN OF THE CITY OF NEW YORK

Drawn From Actual Surveys by Cassius T. Dyer and Joseph P. Mangin City Surveyors

This Plan shows the limits of the City as laid out by the Legislature and designated with accuracy, and of the streets, wharves, slips, &c. lying to the Southward of the line separating the North River from the East River, and extending through and along the Hudson River to the Eastward. It is drawn in order to be used as a guide in the laying out of streets, wharves, slips, &c. and through this street to the East River. Except in cases of streets, wharves, slips, &c. the Northward of the line above mentioned, here, they shall be laid out and opened under the authority of the Board of Health, to be considered when their plans are submitted to the Corporation, as has been reported and passed under their authority. They are therefore to be considered when their plans are submitted to the Corporation, as has been reported and passed under their authority. They are therefore to be considered when their plans are submitted to the Corporation, as has been reported and passed under their authority.

CITY OF NEW YORK, PROSPECTIVELY.

With regard to the future growth of the city of New York, the probability is, that no safer criterion can be taken than the past affords.

The population in 1825 is recorded as 166,086, that of 1835, as 270,089; in 1845, 371,223; and that of 1855, as 629,810; the average gain during this period of 30 years, has been $56\frac{1}{2}$ per cent, for every 10 years. Assuming this as data for the ensuing 30 years, the population in 1865 will be 985,652, in 1875 it will be 1,542,545, and in 1885 it will have reached the enormous sum of 2,414,082.

So far as population in the city of New York is concerned, we may as well stop at the last calculation and time, for the city of New York will be full before that time.

Assuming that the 58,000 people residing above Fortieth street, in 1855, could be accommodated on the vacant property below that street, and that the average line of population below Fortieth street was about Leonard street, in proportion to the width of city, the present population would be contained in three miles of the island, lengthwise; and the increase calculated by 1865, would densely fill to Seventy-fourth street; and that to the year 1875, up to One hundred and twenty-seventh street, where the island commences narrowing rapidly; while the increase estimated from 1875 to 1885 would require as great a width of island as exists below One hundred and twenty-seventh street, and from One hundred and twenty-seventh street to Kingsbridge; but such capacity does not exist, neither is any allowance made for parks, reservoirs, or space untenanted in greater proportion than exists below Fortieth street, while the Central park and Reservoir alone, will occupy a space almost equal to the area of that portion of the city which lies north of One hundred and fifty-fifth street; and the calculation is made on the assumption that the land above Fortieth street is susceptible of accommodating as many residents to the acre as that below is, which is not the case; as much land in the upper part of the city, by its natural formation, is incapable of being so densely built on as the lower part of the city is.

The fair presumption, therefore, is, that before the year 1880 arrives, the city of New York will be fully populated, and contain about two millions of inhabitants; and this opinion is given with greater confidence, from the fact that the counties of Kings, Queens, Richmond and Westchester have, unitedly increased during the past ten years, in a ratio but little less than that of New York, and are not likely during the years to come, to draw off from this city, so large a proportion of the population as they have heretofore; because their limits of population have already been so far extended as to create a distance in time from business in New York, almost as great as will be likely to exist from the remote parts of this island.

What aspect the city of New York will present in the year 1880 it is impossible to define, but reasoning from analogy, and from an intimate geographical knowledge of the island, the probability is, that wharves and commerce will border the city, on the west side, from the Battery to Spuyten Duyvil creek, and on the East river, from the Battery to Fifty-fourth street; wharves for domestic trade, will probably exist from Eighty-sixth street to near One hundred and thirtieth street on the Harlem river, but the channel is too narrow, and the water too deep, and the shores too bold, from Fifty-fourth to Eighty-sixth street, to permit the construction of more than occasional landings between those points; while in the Harlem river the channel is too narrow and insufficient for an extended commerce. Manufactories and commerce will probably occupy most of the space between the river and a distance of about 2,000 feet from it, along the North river nearly up to Fort Washington Heights, and along the East river to near Fifty-fourth street. The centre of the island around the Central park, if that undertaking is consummated, will be filled with the residences of the wealthier class of citizens; while the belt around them, and extending over Harlem plains, between commerce and wealth, will be filled with manufacturing and producing classes. North of One hundred and fifty-fifth street, with the exception of a strip along the shore of the North river, probably averaging 1,000 feet wide, and devoted to commerce, the formation of the land is such, that it will probably be only used for suburban residences of the wealthier classes.

In addition to occupying the shores of the rivers as mentioned, commerce, domestic and foreign, will probably require, before the year 1880, almost the entire portion of the city south of Union square; and the centre of business be near Canal street and Broadway; what means will be found necessary and useful to concentrate the teeming millions, in and surrounding the city, at or near this centre of business each morning, and transport them to their homes at evening, is a matter of conjecture, as also the means to be employed in transporting persons and merchandise over so great a distance of business frontage as our wharves will present.

To approach the centre of commerce with the greatest rapidity and certainty will and must be the great object of all. Ferries are already found inadequate to transport the numbers living around and out of the city, and flocking hither daily, and when over four times their number seek this common centre of trade of the United States, in its insular position, bridges appear to be the only resource; that these may be built across the East river at several points, no doubt exists; starting from near the Brooklyn City hall, and raising in grade toward the East river, at Fulton ferry, an altitude of 200 feet above the river could be obtained, and crossing the East river at Fulton ferry, an altitude of 200 feet above the river could be obtained, and crossing the river at that level, with not exceeding two piers in the river, which would not impede navigation as much as one set of ferry boats does, and thence descending to near the Hospital in Broadway, by a continuous suspension bridge, traversed by railway cars, stopping only at the termini of the bridge, and moved by stationery power, many thousands could be transferred each way, hourly in addition to those who would cross on foot, or in private conveyances,

PLAN FOR THE RELIEF OF BROADWAY, PRESENTED TO THE COMMON COUNCIL OCTOBER 4th 1852, BY JOHN T. DODGE, STREET COMMISSIONER
Width of Stalls, seven feet, height in center in clear fourteen feet estimated cost $1500.

Similar constructions could be made from Williamsburgh and at Ravenswood, the latter spanning each channel along Blackwell's island, with only land piers.

What means may be adopted to facilitate intercourse with our sister state of New Jersey it is more impossible to foretell. The mighty west, with its boundless wealth of produce and manufactures, seeking markets in all parts of the civilized world will probably pour so large a stream of traffic over the railroads leading to the metropolis of the western hemisphere, as to require a bridge to bear it across the noble Hudson; this could be accomplished by approaching the river near Fort Lee, at an elevation of about 200 feet above tide level, and building three piers in the river to carry a suspension bridge across to Fort Washington heights, from whence to the lower part of the city, a descending grade could be obtained, so as reach the wharves and branch to either river.

Below this point, the width of the Hudson being greater, and the shores lower, it is improbable that bridges will be built, but subaqueous communication may be made by means of metal tunnels, sunk on and into the bed of the river, with sufficient depth of water above them, for the passage of all vessels.

This island will probably be encircled and crossed in various directions with railways, for the speedy transit of passengers in all directions, and within half a century, present a spectacle unequalled in any period of the history of the world—a city in itself, with over two millions of inhabitants, the seat of commerce of the world; surrounded by at least three or four millions more of people, dependent on or contributing to her wealth and business.

The geographical position of the city of New York, is such, that wealth and trade must centre in it; that the rivers at her wharves, must bear the mercantile marine of the world, that her merchants must, in the city, transact the business, and the shores opposite be occupied and fully used for ship building, manufactories, storage, and other accessories of commerce.

The subject of harbor improvements, is one which will naturally excite attention; in view of the vast extent of commerce to which we are to look forward, and in this connection, the enlargement of channels from the sea, to receive the enormous vessels which are now constructed and still greater in contemplation, both in Europe and this country; the protection of the channels in the inner harbor, and in the rivers, against encroachments; the opening of a safe ship channel to communicate with Long Island Sound (which some have supposed will eventually be a safe and commodious means of access to our port) and which may perhaps be effectuated by a change of the land marks, and natural obstructions presented at Hell gate; all these and many more kindred topics of remark furnish an ample fund of consideration for those whose thoughts are turned towards the future, and who view, in anticipation, the greatness of our city, and of the consequent changes and improvements required to meet the exigencies in prospective.

THE PARK AND ITS NEIGHBORHOOD IN FORMER TIMES.

THE "Vlachte," or "Flat," "Second Plains," "Commons," "Fields," by which name the present Park has been known at different periods, was originally the common grazing place of the cattle belonging to the citizens of New Amsterdam. Following the plan of European villages, this place was left open to the public use, and is probably the first recognized public property on this island. Its jurisdiction and proprietorship thus tacitly fell to the people, and it has, in its subsequent history, been the scene of some of the most important political demonstrations ever witnessed. While the island was yet in the possession of the Indians, it has been surmised that their village was situated on this spot. There is no account, we believe, in our historical records, of the precise locality at which the tribe known as the Manhattans resided, but judging from what has been received as undoubted evidence of the establishment of an Indian village, namely, the mixture of shells with the upland soil, this spot has been either the site of, or in the immediate vicinity of a large Indian village at some period more or less remote. When it came under the dominion of the Dutch, and its war paths were brought down to the more domestic purposes of cattle walks, it came under the general superintendence of a herdsman whose business was, for a certain stipend from each family, to perambulate the village of New Amsterdam and blow upon his horn a note of invitation at the garden gates of the inhabitants, whose cows being let out joined the common drove and were driven through the romantic valley road now called Maiden lane, and having arrived at the common pasture were restrained from more distant perambulations by the watchful herdsman.

And in that manner, and to those uses was the "Vlachte" appropriated for many years. Afterward it became subject to less innocent and peaceful uses. It saw the warlike parade of the Dutch soldiery on training days. It witnessed the formation of a battle array under Captain Colve, destined to the capture of the city. It became the place of popular meetings for all sorts of purposes, among which were the holiday festivals of the English period, such as their Majesty's birthday, the anniversary of the discovery of the gunpowder plot, &c. It witnessed bonfires and illuminations, militia trainings, executions, burnings in effigy, and tumultuous meetings of Liberty Boys before the Revolution.

We see by the engraving on the opposite page its condition in the year 1742, a little over an hundred years after the settlement of the island. We observe at this period, that the population of the town was encroaching on its lower borders, and that streets were then laid out as far up as

As an epitome of public acts relating to the Commons, the King's Farm and to the Fresh Water Pond, until the space now occupied by the Park was inclosed by a picket fence, and the present City Hall erected, we present the following abstracts of resolutions and ordinances from the Common Council records :

No Holes to be dug in the Commons.

1731.—It is enacted, that “if any person or persons whatsoever within this city or liberties thereof shall, at any time hereafter, dig any holes in the Commons of this city on the south side of the Fresh Water, or take or carry away any earth or mould, or shall cut, take, or carry away any sods or turf off any part of said Commons, he shall suffer a fine of forty shillings.”

Law against taking Fish in Fresh Water Pond, in any other way except by Angling.

1734.—Be it ordained, that “if any person or persons whatsoever do, from henceforth, presume to put, place or cast into the pond, commonly called Fresh Water Pond, belonging to this Corporation, any hoop-net, draw-net, purse-net, casting-net, cod-net, bley-net, or any other net or nets whatsoever, and shall take and catch any of the fish within the said pond therewith, or by any other engine, machine, arts, ways or means whatsoever, other than by angling with angle-rod, hook and line only, every person so offending against the tenor of this law, shall, for every offence forfeit and pay the sum of twenty shillings current money.”

Owners of Brick-kilns on the Commons in 1742.

1742.—Joseph Paulding, Cornelius Cozine, Charles Dobbs and Abraham Paulding, Jacobus Ryckman, William Wood.

Respecting the Tanners on the borders of Fresh Water Pond.

1745.—Ordered, That the tanners who have, and shall hereafter dig pits at the Fresh Water for the benefit of water, may in future enjoy the benefit thereof, and no one shall deprive them thereof.

The building of the Powder-house on the Island in the Fresh Water Pond.

1747.—The Recorder acquainted the Board that it is the opinion of the Governor and Council, and the Committee of the Assembly, that the hollow near the poor-house is the most proper place for building the magazine, and this Board considering the same, agree to the magazine being built there, provided the Corporation have the appointment of the keeper, and the benefit of the storage of all the powder there belonging to private persons.

The Commons hired out for Brick-kilns.

1751.—Ordered, A committee to inquire “what rents are due from the brick-makers for brick kilns made on the Commons of this city, and demand the same; and that they also have power to treat with and agree for the leasing of such parts of the said Commons for the making of brick kilns, as to them shall seem meet.”

The Negro Burial-ground and Pot-house.

1753.—Petition of John Teller, Jacobus Stoutenburg and Mary Van Vlack, in behalf of themselves and others, praying that a grant of some lands belonging to this Corporation, in exchange for the negro burying ground; as also for a small slip of land on which a pot-house, &c., are built. Consideration deferred.

Removal of the Common Gallows from the lower end of the present Park to the present vicinity of the Five Points.

1756.—A committee appointed to remove the gallows from where it now stands to the place where the negroes were burnt some five years ago, at the foot of the hill called Catiemuts’ Hill, near the Fresh Water.

Poor-house Burial-ground on site of present City Hall.

1757.—A small piece of the ground “of the length of two boards,” to the eastward of the work-house fence, ordered to be inclosed for a burial place for the poor of said work-house.

The building of the New Gaol, (present Hall of Records.)

1757.—Committee appointed to superintend and purchase materials for the new gaol, and to proceed with all speed in completing the same.

The erection of Barracks in the time of the Old French War, along the present Chambers street.

1757.—The committee appointed to confer with carpenters respecting the building of barracks, report the following resolution, viz: That the said building be forthwith carried on under the direction and inspection of the above-mentioned committee, who are hereby empowered to treat with such persons, and provide such materials for the carrying on and completing said work as they shall judge proper; and further ordered, that the said building contain twenty rooms on a floor, two stories high, to be twenty-one feet square, four hundred and twenty feet long, and twenty-one feet wide, to be built on some of the common lands of the Corporation to the southward of Fresh Water, between the new gaol-house and the house of Catiemuts.

Place of the Brick Yards along present Chatham street, then the High Road to Boston.

1759.—A Committee appointed to “lay out in lots some ground belonging to this Corporation, which lie between the new gaol-house, and the house commonly called ‘Catienuts;’” (present south-west corner of Pearl and Chatham streets.)

3d April, 1759. This being the day appointed for farming, by public outcry, several lots belonging to this Corporation, which lie between the gaol-house and the house of Thomas Brown, near the palisades; four of the same were let, three to Joseph Paulding, and one to William Coppland.*

The Land in Vicinity of the Negro Burial-ground.

1760—Henry Van Vleck, merchant, attending the Board in behalf of his sisters Sarah and Eve Van Vleck, and proposed the leasing of three lots of ground contiguous and adjoining to the Negroes’ Burying-place, † on part of which said lots their father built a pot-house, pot-oven, and sunk a well, supposing at that time the said lands were his property, whereupon this Board, having taken the same into their consideration, resolved to lease the same to said Sarah and Eve Van Vleck, and for nineteen years and six months, at forty shillings rent for each lot of twenty-five by one hundred feet.

Extension of Broadway through the Commons.

1760—Mr. Marschalk, one of the City Surveyors, produced to this Board the draft or plan of a road which he hath lately laid out by direction of this Corporation, viz; Beginning from the Spring Garden house, ‡ where the street now is of the breadth of eighty-two feet six inches, and extending from thence north thirty-seven degrees, east thirty minutes, until it comes to the ground of the late widow Rutgers, leaving the street thereof fifty feet in breadth, which is approved of by this Board, and ordered that the same be recorded in such manner accordingly.

The King’s Farm.

1761—Trinity Church released their claim to several streets in their land commonly called the “King’s Farm,” lying north of the present St. Paul’s Church.

Place for Pitch, etc., on Commons.

1762—A certain place appropriated near to the house of Elias De Grusha, near the Negroes’ Burial-place, for the reception of pitch, tar, turpentine, and shingles, and ordered that no such articles be kept in any other place south of Fresh Water.

* For brick yards.

† The Negroes’ Burial-ground, was situated near Stewart’s marble store on Broadway.

‡ Present site of Astor House.

Whipping Post, Stocks, Cage and Pillory.

1764—Ordered that the Committee of the new gaol have power to cause to be erected opposite the said new gaol, a public whipping post, stocks, cage and pillory, in such manner as they shall think proper.

Janeway's Farm on present Chatham street.

1765—Petition of George Janeway, carpenter, setting forth that he is entitled to a lot of ground lying on the south-west side of the Fresh water, and the east-south-east side of the Kalk-hook, which adjoins the land of this Corporation, and gives notice that he is desirous of a survey.

The Brick Church on present Beekman and Nassau streets.

1766—Petition of the Ministers, Elders, Deacons, Trustees, Communicants, and other members of the English Presbyterian Church of the city of New York, setting forth, among other things, that they are possessed of a spacious and convenient edifice for the public service of Almighty God, and the administration of Divine Ordinances, according to their wholesome and approved form of discipline and worship; yet, by their great and continued growth, that building is rendered altogether incapable of containing the Congregation; and the Cemetery too small for the decent interment of the dead; and therefore praying that this Board would take their extreme necessities into their serious consideration, and grant to them the angular lot adjoining the ground lately called the Vine-yard, and to the Green, for the erection of a new church with an additional lot suitable for a cemetery. Granted at a rent of £40 per annum.

The proposed Dutch Reformed Burial-ground on present Pearl, William and Rose streets.

1766—Petition of the Ministers, Elders and Deacons of the Reformed Protestant Dutch Church of the city of New York, was preferred to this Board, setting forth that their predecessors have, for near a century past, made use of the cemetery church-yard adjoining to the old Dutch Church for the burying their dead, which, from the length of time and the contracted limits of the ground, is now so full of dead bodies that it is hardly possible to open the ground for a grave without digging up some of the corpses there interred, a circumstance very disagreeable and indecent; and therefore praying that this Board would be pleased to grant unto them and their successors forever, a certain piece of ground in the Commons, contiguous to Mr. Cuyler's Sugar-house, the east end of which fronts the main road that leads to Fresh Water, upon which it is ordered that this Board will grant to the petitioners the aforesaid piece of ground, containing twenty-eight lots, ten of which front northerly to Queen street,* eight others easterly and southerly upon Thomas street,† and ten others fronting westerly upon George street,* some larger and some smaller, and that such grant be to the petitioners and their successors forever, under the rent of £70, to be paid annually.

* Present Pearl street.

† Present William street

Regulation of Murray street.

1768—Petition of several inhabitants, living in and near Murray street, that the same might be regulated; whereupon it is ordered that the same be regulated by the Committee for regulating the several public streets, in the West Ward.

Value of Land on the "Kalch-book," present Broadway, near Pearl street.

1769—William P. Smith produced deed to the Corporation of ten-twelfths of a lot 248 feet square, situated to the northward of the "Common-field" of this city, near the Fresh Water, bounded on the west by Broadway, and on the east, north and south sides by Corporation lands, for which lot this Board has agreed to pay Mr. Smith £1,713, and such payment is thereupon ordered.

The City Hospital in Contemplation.

1771—The institution of a public infirmary or hospital within this city, being not only a laudable but useful undertaking, this Board being willing to encourage the same, have agreed to grant all the right and interest they have in and to the westernmost half of the lot formerly belonging to John Harris, deceased, but now to this Corporation, containing in breadth in front on the Commons 124 feet, and in length 248 feet for the purpose of building the said hospital.

1772—The Governors of the New York Hospital, having purchased a more suitable site for their building than that offered them by the Corporation, petition for a grant of money in lieu of the land proposed to be given; whereupon £1,000 is voted.

Regulation of the Streets on the "King's Farm."

1773—The major part of the Committee appointed to regulate the streets in the vicinity of the College, made their report in substance as follows: We, the subscribers, having had Murrays street leveled, from the head of it down to a corner house, now occupied by Mathew, a baker, making a descent of two inches for every foot. We have also had Robinson street leveled, from the head of it, at Merselis' house, to the College gate. We have also had Warren street leveled, from the head of it at Cox's Tavern corner, down to Samuel Francis' house.

The Bridewell.

1774—Plan of a Bridewell advertised for. In 1775 they adopted one furnished by Theophilus Hardenbrook, and a Committee appointed to carry out the plan, (afterward erected in the present Park, on the Broadway side of the City Hall—demolished a few years since.)

Chatham Street Named.

1774.—Ordered that the street, beginning at the house of Andrew Hopper, nearly opposite St. Paul's Church, and leading to Fresh Water, be called Chatham street.

The First "Water Works."

1774.—The proposal of Christopher Colles, heretofore preferred to this Board respecting the building of a Reservoir and the conveyance of fresh water through the city, being under consideration, it was resolved that it be carried into execution.

Messrs. Augustus and Frederick Van Cortland offered to convey to the Corporation sufficient ground, fronting Great George street, (now Broadway, above Chambers street,) as might be necessary for the Reservoir, at the rate of £600 per acre, which being thought reasonable, it was resolved to purchase the same, provided that upon sinking a well there, the water should be found of good quality.

Having subsequently tried the experiment of digging a well, and judging the water to be of a very good quality, the Corporation resolved to carry out the plan, and to issue notes to the amount of £2,500, to be drawn up in the following sums, 4,000 of sixpence, (£100,) 4,000 of one shilling each, (£200,) 4,000 of two shillings (£400,) 4,000 of four shillings, (£800,) and 2,500 of eight shillings, (£1,000;) and Mr. Colles was directed to enlarge the well and go on with the work.

The Board soon after entered into a contract with parties at Albany for 60,000 feet of pitch-pine timber, for the making of pipes for the water works, for the sum of £1,250. The land purchased for the purpose, (about two acres,) was paid for. The sum of £1,000 was advanced to Colles in 1774, and in 1775 £600. In January, 1776, the Board allowed Mr. Colles £10 per month toward his support. In March, 1776, new notes, to the amount of £2,000, were issued toward defraying the expense of the water works. The works were completed about April, 1776, and Mr. Colles was appointed to take charge of them, at £6 per month. This Reservoir stood on the present east side of Broadway, between Pearl and White streets.

PROGRESS OF THE PARK, COLLECT (OR FRESH WATER POND,) SWAMP, BROADWAY AND ADJACENT PARTS, FOR YEARS AFTER THE REVOLUTIONARY WAR.

The Place of Execution removed from Tryon Row to a locality in the present Park, between the City Hall and Hall of Records.

1784.—On reading the petition of a number of inhabitants in Chatham street and Tryon Row, praying that the building lately erected for the execution of criminals may not be erected near their houses, it was ordered that the said building be removed, and placed between and on a range with the Alms-house and Gaol.

It is proposed to lay out streets near the Kalch-hook, or in the vicinity of the present Reade and Duane streets.

1784.—Petition of Henry Kipp and others, that a Committee be appointed for laying out streets near the Kalch-hook, was read, and a Committee appointed accordingly.

The "Upper Barracks," along Chambers street, in the rear of the present Park, leased to families.

1784.—A petition of sundry persons residing in and occupying the upper barracks, praying leases for the same, was read, and the consideration thereof postponed. Afterward assented to.

The old Powder Magazine, (on the island in Collect Pond,) discontinued.

1785.—The old Powder Magazine was discontinued, and a new one ordered to be erected at Inclauberg.

A Claimant presents himself for a part of the ground within the present Park.

1785.—A petition of Isaac Sears, relative to his right to part of the ground whereon the Bridewell is erected, was read and referred to a Committee. This petition set forth that by certain Indentures, duly made by Thomas Arden and wife, dated the 2d and 3d days of February, 1770, he became and still stood seized in fee simple of the share of said Arden, in that piece of ground bounded westerly, in front, by Broadway, southerly by the Green commonly called the "Fields," easterly by the ground belonging to the Corporation and occupied with the poor-house, and northerly by other ground of the said Corporation. Of which piece of land John Harris the elder was seized at the time of his death; that the said petitioner actually paid for the said piece of ground the sum of Eighty Pounds. That the Bridewell was afterward erected on part of the said ground; and offered to release his claim upon payment of said consideration money, with lawful interest; which proposition was accepted by the Corporation.

A Proposition, for the first time, made to inclose the land now known as the Park.

June, 1785.—A plan of the Commissioners of the Alms-house for inclosing the ground commonly called the Fields, was presented to the Board for their approval, which was approved, if it could be done without expense to the Corporation.

Concerning the Bridge at Lispenard's Meadows, (across the present Canal street, at Greenwich street.)

1786.—A Committee appointed to examine the bridge near Mr. Lispenard's, represented to be much out of repair, Ordered that the Alderman and Assistant of the Out Ward direct the bridge at Mr. Lispenard's to be rebuilt, (if necessary,) of stone.

The present City Hall Place first regulated.

Encroachments on the Fresh Water Pond, or Collect.

1787.—It being represented to the Board that encroachments were daily made on the Fresh Water Pond, and that filth and dirt were thrown into it by persons residing there. Ordered that a Committee examine into the matter and report to the Board.

Beginning to Improve the Park.

1787.—Ordered, That the paupers in the Alms-house be employed in collecting street dirt, and spreading it on the Commons in front of the Alms-house, to manure the ground and prepare it for grass-seed.

The Collect Pond surveyed, and a Diagram of the Streets to be laid out in that vicinity prepared.

1790.—Ordered, A Committee to cause a survey to be made of the ancient bounds of the Fresh Water Pond, and report the same to the Board.

1790.—The Committee appointed delivered in a survey for the several streets in the vicinity of Fresh Water, which was ordered to be filed.

The Barracks to be sold, and the Old building removed.

1790.—Ordered, That the Treasurer be directed to sell, in manner most advantageous, on or before the 20th April next, the building situated in the rear of the Alms-house, formerly occupied as barracks. The purchaser to remove all the materials by the first day of June next.

The Side-walks of Broadway first Paved, from Vesey to Murray street.

1790.—The Street Committee reported in favor of laying a foot-walk, paved with brick or flat stone, on west side of Great George street, (Broadway,) from Vesey street to Murray street, and on the opposite side; the same to be laid along the Bridewell fence.

A Claim of Title to the Fresh Water Pond purchased by the Corporation.

1791.—The Committee on the subject of the Fresh Water Pond made a verbal report, whereupon it was resolved to be expedient to purchase the right of the representatives of Anthony Rutgers, deceased, to the said pond for the sum of £150, at which price it might be obtained; and the same Committee were authorized to treat for the purchase of the slip of meadow on the north-west side of the pond, which the Board also thought it expedient to purchase. The purchase of the soil under water was soon after consummated.

The Park first inclosed, by a Post and Rail fence.

1792.—The Street Committee reported that they had procured a quantity of posts and rails for the purpose of inclosing the pasture in the Common lands for the cows of the Alms-house. (This pasture was some distance in the upper part of the island.) And proposed that the said posts and rails should be used for the present to inclose the fields in front of the Alms-house, to protect the trees to be planted there this fall.

The Collect or Fresh Water Pond staked.

1792.—Ordered, That Mr. Carmer be added to the committee appointed to treat with the executors of Mrs. Barclay, deceased, as to the purchasing of the meadow lying between the Corporation lot and the Fresh Water Pond; and that the said committee purchase so much of the said meadow as they shall deem expedient; and that they direct the Fresh Water Pond to be staked off so as to prevent encroachments thereon.

Another Survey in vicinity of the Pond.

1793.—Ordered, That a survey be made of the land and meadows at and about the Fresh Water Pond, with the streets which may be necessary marked thereon.

The Old Alms-house, on the site of the present City Hall, proposed to be abandoned and a new building to be erected.

1794.—The Board proceeded to the consideration of the subject of the Alms-house, and it was determined that the existing buildings were become unfit for the accommodation of the poor, being in a ruinous condition, whereupon it was resolved to apply to the legislature for leave to establish a lottery for the raising of $10,000, to defray the expense of erecting a new building.

Proposition to dig out Broadway, north of the present Duane street.

1795.—A petition for digging out the Broadway, north of Barclay street, agreeable to its regulation, was referred.

A Canal on the line of the present Canal street proposed.

1796.—Ordered, That the Committee on the subject of a canal from the Fresh Water Pond to the Hudson river, be instructed to confer with the proprietors of the Swamp for the obtaining such parts thereof as may be required to make the said canal of the breadth of forty feet, and a street on each side of the breadth of thirty feet.

Site of the new Alms-house selected in the present Park, along the south line of Chambers street.

1796.—It was resolved, that the new Alms-house be erected on the rear of the ground of the old Alms-house. The plan of the building was adopted about the same time.

Concerning the proposed Canal.

1796.—A Committee appointed to confer with the proprietors of the ground through which the contemplated canal is to pass, from the Fresh Water Pond into Hudson river.

A great Dock for Shipping proposed to be made in the Fresh Water Pond.

1796.—A project or proposal of Mons. Mangin and Brother, engineers, for making a dock or basin in the low grounds at the Fresh Water Pond, as a safe harbor for shipping, and to drain and carry off the water from that quarter into the rivers, was read and ordered to be taken into consideration, with the subject of the contemplated canal from the Fresh Water Pond into Hudson river.

The New Alms-house occupied and the Old one removed.

1797.—Ordered, That the paupers be removed from the old into the new Alms-house.

1797.—Ordered, That Mr. Harsen take order for the taking down of the old Alms-house.

The Island in the Pond surveyed.

1797.—Ordered, That the ground belonging to the Corporation in the vicinity of the old Powder Magazine be surveyed and staked out, and that the same be filled up to a proper height.

The Grade of Broadway, from the present Duane street to Canal street, established.

1797.—The regulation of Broadway and the intersecting streets, from Barclay street (now Duane street,) to the arched bridge, (across the drain now known as Canal street.) By this regulation, Broadway required digging down at Magazine street, (now Pearl street,) to the depth of four feet nine inches from the natural elevation of the soil. At the intersection of the present Leonard street, it required digging down to the depth of fifteen feet six inches; thence by the regulation it was to descend by a gradual descent to the arched bridge; but the hill through which it was cut increased in height above Leonard street, so that at a distance of five hundred and twenty-five feet above Leonard street, the cutting had increased in depth to twenty-two feet ten inches. This was the highest point, and thence the natural hill descended somewhat steeply to the meadow; the line of Broadway, through the meadow, required raising seven inches. The arched bridge was ten feet seven inches above the surface of the meadow. The digging was commenced within a year or two subsequent to the above date.

Standing Water in the Meadows.

1798.—A letter from the Health Commissioners was read, representing that the swamp or meadow between the Fresh Water Pond and Hudson river is overflowed with standing water, and requires immediate measures for draining it. Ordered that it be attended to.

The Manhattan Company selecting a Site for their Reservoir.

1799.—The Manhattan Company addressed the Corporation the following queries: 1st. Whether they were willing to sell the property formerly occupied by Mr. Collis for a well and reservoir; or 2d. If the Corporation preferred leasing it forever; or 3d. If the Corporation would permit the Company to occupy the grounds aforesaid until it could be ascertained whether the waters were pure and wholesome and adequate to supply the city. The city, on the first two points, reserved an answer, but granted the permission asked for in the third proposition.

1799.—A letter from the Manhattan Company stated that they would require a part of the inclosed ground in front of the Bridewell (the present Park in front of the City Hall,) to raise a reservoir for supplying the city with water. A Committee was thereupon appointed to confer with the company.

Part of the Negroes' Burial-ground, south of Chambers street, (in the present Park,) Question, as to ceding to the City.

1796.—The Board determined that if the proprietors of the land called the Negroes' Burial-ground, north of the Alms-house and Bridewell, would, on or before the first day of May, 1797, surrender to the Corporation all their ground south of Chambers street, the Corporation would release to them certain lots in Augustus street and the vicinity.

The Records of the City for several years about this period, have been abstracted. The index is, however, preserved, from which we find as follows:

The stable and barn at the Alms-house in the Park were ordered to be pulled down.

A report was made on opening a canal from Broadway to Hudson river. An order was made for opening the same immediately.

The erection of the present City Hall was resolved upon, and the building commenced.

It was resolved to fill in the Collect, and the work continued during several years, the dirt having been taken from the neighboring hills.

The Manhattan Company applied to purchase the Collect Pond. Lispernard's Meadows were regulated.

The Condition of the "Old Tea Water Pump."

1797.—A petition against the inconvenience arising from the spout of the tea-water pump projecting over the street, was presented, and referred.

The Committee subsequently reported as follows: "The Committee on the subject of the petition complaining of the obstruction in Chatham street, caused by the the tea-water pump delivering its water in the street, and by the water carts being drawn up across the street, when about to receive water; report, that they have viewed the premises, and find the matters and things set forth in the petition to be true. That the Committee have maturely considered the premises, and are of opinion that the said obstruction may be removed at no great expense to Mr. Thompson, the present occupant, and part proprietor of the premises, by causing the spout of the said pump to be raised about two feet, and by lengthening it so as to deliver the water at the outer part of the paved walk, which would permit foot passengers to pass under without inconvenience; and if the water carts were ordered to draw up abreast of the spout, near the gutter, and receive the water in rotation, it would remove the obstruction in the street. The Committee recommend, also, that the sidewalks in that vicinity be paved." Their recommendations were adopted except the paving, which was postponed for the time being.

The Progress of the Canal.

1804.—Application of Otis Toft and Silas Lindsey, to be informed of the regulation of Duggan or Canal street. Referred to Committee on the Tunnel.

1805.—The Street Commissioner is directed to report a list of the owners of land in the direction of the canal or tunnel intended by the survey of Charles Loss, in February, 1803.

1805.—The Committee on the subject of the Tunnel, presented their report in favor of an open canal, to pass through a street one hundred feet wide; whereupon it was resolved, that a street of one hundred feet in breadth, be accordingly laid out, and that the Street Commissioner be authorized to receive cessions for that purpose from the proprietors who are willing to cede, and that a canal of feet in breadth and feet in depth be constructed of brick or stone, under the direction of the Street Commissioner.

The Old Tea Water Pump.

1805.—Petition of Abraham Shoemaker, for liberty to conduct the water of the late Tea-water pump into Orange street. Referred.

The Committee on the petition of Abraham Shoemaker, praying leave to erect his water works in such manner as to convey the water into the carts in Orange street, reported, that as he formerly took the water from Chatham street, it would be no serious inconvenience. The Board therefore allow his petition during their pleasure.

The Collect.

1805.—The Committee appointed to examine the state of the Collect reported that it was filled with the bodies of dead animals, and was dangerous to the public health. Whereupon, it was ordered that such animals be removed, and further, that the tunnels or sewers be made to pass through the dam, to carry off the water; and that the head of the Collect be filled in with good and wholesome earth.

1805.—The Street Commissioner reported that he had the offer of several thousand loads of dirt, at five cents per load, and is authorized to purchase it for filling in the Collect.

(Pointed out on the Map of 1742.)

This spot indicates the scene of one of the most doleful events in the history of New York. It is only within recent years that the particulars of the affair in which Mr. Leisler was engaged, have attracted public attention; but the interest taken in our historic annals has served as an incentive to the antiquary to bring before the public many documents which have illustrated that portion of our annals, and the subject is no longer a novelty. A brief narrative, however, it is supposed will not be out of place, in connection with the exhibition of his place of execution as shown on the map.

Jacob Leisler was a native of Holland, and emigrated to this country in the time of the Dutch possession; his first employment was as an officer in the troops of the government, but he married soon after his arrival in New Amsterdam, and then engaged in commercial pursuits. He became allied, by his marriage, to some of the principal families in this province, and acquired a large estate, being ranked among the wealthiest citizens. His commercial operations were principally in foreign trade, and he is found to have been one of the leading shipping merchants in this city at that period.

The religious controversies of that time were violent, and pervaded all classes. They were more particularly animated after the surrender of the city to the English, for although the Dutch had stipulated for their own mode of worship, yet little reliance could be placed on the guaranty that it should be allowed; for the government of England was itself on the point of civil war, arising out of the rivalries of the various sects of Catholics, Episcopalians and Dissenters, which were contending for the place of power, and the countenance of the government. The reflex of opinions from the European shores found their way here, and occasioned, if possible, more individual excitement among the various sects than was shown at the fountain-head of the Government. Thus matters stood during twenty or thirty years, embracing the time from the death of Cromwell, and the overthrow of Presbyterianism in England, through the succeeding reigns of Charles and James, witnessing the restoration of Episcopalianism under the former, and as it was supposed with the latter monarch, the precursing signs of the rebuilding of the Roman Catholic authority in Great Britain. The Dissenters, as this state of things was in progress, began to murmur openly, and to speak of forcible means of preventing the advance of their ancient enemy. The rebellious feeling prevailed throughout Great Britain, and in all her colonies. Here the people watched for the blow to be struck at home, (as the parent country was called), and when, what is called the rebellion of 1688, took place, and King James was deposed, the news here occasioned a general outburst of sympathy, and the people laid violent hands upon the strongholds of the government in this province. The people acted in the first instance by a committee of safety, but owing to the long delays of receiving orders from the government over the water, they finally appointed Mr. Leisler, who was one of their leaders, as the temporary executive of the government.

The leading defect in Leisler's character appears to have been an impulsiveness and headstrong force of will which led him beyond the limits of prudence in carrying out the measures of his party. At the present day his position does not seem to have been a difficult one. The leading principles contended for by those with whom he acted, were such as commanded almost universal support; but the turning-point upon which his administration centred, was brought down to a personal contest for the places of government between two factions who professed to work for the same end. It was altogether (as it would seem) trivial in comparison with the extraordinary results produced in this country; brothers, parent and child, indeed all social ties were forgotten in the strife between neighbors for the foot-hold of power. The contest waged between one and two years; some of Leisler's opponents were banished, others imprisoned, and in short he exercised his power with severity, and without regard to consequences. His defence is to be found in the popular excitement, of which he was the exponent; in the pent up feelings of a whole community, during a score of years, now brought into active display. He finally was deposed by the government in England. His enemies being reinstated in the government turned upon him with a blood-thirsty desire for vengeance.

He was tried upon insufficient charges, and his condemnation being a fore-gone conclusion, his conviction followed, and he was sentenced, with his son-in-law, to be hanged. The great majority of the people regarded him as a martyr; fire-eyed fury fairly burnt within the households of the people of New York; but the law, that great principle of government, backed, as it was by power, restrained any positive demonstration toward the relief of the popular leader.

It is said that he was allowed to choose the place of his execution, and that he selected his own grounds for the site of the scaffold, (he owned a seat near Tammany hall,) designated his garden as his burial place; the spot is pointed out upon the map. The day of his execution was drizzling and disagreeable; the ceremony was equally sad and miserable; the people felt that their own lives were struck at through this sacrifice. The tears of thousands silently flowed as the ceremony progressed, and forty or fifty years failed to eradicate the tremendous tide of popular feeling which flowed on that day.

On the scaffold Leisler made a speech, in which he frankly admitted that he might have been guilty of excesses and, in his religious penitence, he prayed forgiveness of those who pursued him to this extremity.

Some years afterward his remains were taken up, and removed with great solemnity, by a popular assemblage, to the common burial-place of his religious sect, the Dutch Reformed Church in Garden street, (now Exchange place.)

LISPENARD'S MEADOWS.

The view on the opposite page represents a rural picture of that part of our city, in the vicinity of the present foot of Canal street, at a period, we presume, about the time of the Revolutionary War. It is known to those at all conversant with the original geography of Manhattan Island, that a large pond, commonly called the Collect, occupied a considerable portion of the present neighborhood of the Halls of Justice, in Centre street. From this pond, extended toward the North river, a marsh, covering a surface of seventy acres, originally covered by stunted bushes, and filled with swamp rubbish and the rotten growth of ages. It was justly considered the pest and plague of the outskirts of the city; cattle straying into it were sometimes "swamped" in its muddy holes, so that it was necessary to fence it around to prevent idle cattle wandering within its borders. But by far the most serious complaint against the nuisance was its alleged unwholesome effect upon residents in the vicinity, who were great sufferers from the fever and ague, so that farmers could not keep laborers employed upon their lands. These circumstances induced the government, in the year 1732, to grant the fee of the "swamp" to Mr. Anthony Rutgers, a farmer, residing near the present site of the Hospital, upon condition that he should clear and drain it, and pay a moderate quit-rent. We see the western end of the swamp, near the North river, a number of years subsequent to that last spoken of. The bushes are cleared off and a large drain has been cut through the centre of the swamp, drawing its waters into the North river.

The building on the left, (southerly side,) near the edge of the swamp is Lisperard's brewery; upon the hill, among the trees, is the residence of Mr. Lisperard, not discoverable through the foliage. The family of that name were of French extraction, but have been in the country from an early period. The first of the name was an Albany brewer, named Anthony Lisperard, who removed to this city about the year 1684. He died in the year 1696, leaving three children, Anthony, Margaret and Abigail. His wife, Abigail, also survived him. The son, Anthony, died in 1755, at an advanced age, leaving five children, Leonard, David, Magdalena, Abigail and Mary. Leonard Lisperard became the proprietor of the farm and brewery, a part of which is represented in the engraving. He was a prominent man in public affairs in this city for many years.

On the right, or northerly side of the swamp, the roof of a dwelling is seen, which was known as the Brannon property. A public garden and place of resort was here established, known as Brannon Gardens. When streets were afterward laid out through the property, one of them was known as Brannon street.

FROM O. T. VALENTINE'S MANUAL 1856

The grant of the swamp to Mr. Rutgers, and his construction of the drain gave rise to serious complaints on the part of farmers in the vicinity of the Collect Pond, as will be observed from the following proceedings in the Common Council :

1734.—“ Forasmuch as a great number of farmers and others, inhabitants of this Corporation, have represented that they are greatly prejudiced by a drain laid into the Fresh Water Pond, by Anthony Rutgers, Esq., which has greatly drawn away the water from the same pond, and the said Anthony Rutgers, (one of the members of this court,) producing to this court, Letters Patent, for the swamp, by the said fresh-water, and that he was obliged thereby to drain the said swamp within a year from the date thereof, and that he did not conceive the making of the said drain would have been any detriment to any person whatsoever, and that if it be thought so to be, he is ready and willing to abide the order of this court relating thereto. It is therefore ordered that the said Mr. Rutgers do, by the first day of October next, fill up the said drain, thirty feet from the said Fresh Water Pond, so as effectually to prevent the same from draining the said pond.”

THE OLD GRAVE-YARD OF NEW AMSTERDAM.

Some years ago, while the workmen were excavating the cellars of buildings on the west side of Broadway, now occupied by those elegant free-stone stores, commencing a few doors above Morris street, there was thrown up, by the spade, a great many skulls and other relics of humanity, obviously of the European type, which occasioned not a little excitement among our wonder-loving citizens, who were unable to account for so strange a circumstance, unless upon some mysterious surmise, respecting dark deeds done in the time of the Revolution. It was known that, as far back as memory or tradition could penetrate, the site had been occupied by the abodes of our most fashionable citizens, and this added to the strangeness of the event. The attention of our historical savans was directed to a problem which no ordinary knowledge could solve, and the result finally arrived at, evinced the fastidiousness with which the matter was investigated, for the origin of these bones was (though falsely) traced to the very foundation of the city. A new theory of the first settlement of the town was projected, and against all the revelations of authentic history, it was thought to be proven, that the first comers from Holland established their earliest fortification on this spot, and within its inclosure interred their dead.

Such, indeed, has been the light afforded by historical research, until within a recent period, and the author of the Manual accredits to himself the discovery that this spot was in fact the burial place of New Amsterdam; the honored ground wherein, with little pageantry or show, were laid the remains of the earliest race that peopled our city. It would perhaps, be uninteresting to go through the mass of material, consisting of antiquated MSS.; dusty records, and unknown tongues, through which the author labored, to arrive at a fact so interesting; but it was a sufficient stimulus to any degree of labor to find among the earliest English records mention made of "the Old Grave Yard." The old grave-yard! of which no trace, relic, or tradition had descended to modern times. To the lover of our local history, a theme so inspiring must be likened to the incentives which have animated the explorers into the buried depths of the earth for traces of the traditionary cities of Ninevah or Pompeii. What emotions are inspired by the thought of a buried and long-forgotten race, the founders of our mighty city, whose bones, being tossed up by the laborer's mattock, are knocked about by the bystanders in wonder at the origin of such mysterious tenants of the dust! How tender is the sentiment which carries us back to that age, when those who are now so roughly handled, were the daily workers upon the soil of an infant colony. Thoughts of monuments to cover the hallowed relics arise as the best offerings toward the perpetuation of their memory. But the remains themselves, having been long since carted away among the refuse soil to fill up slips, our filial dispositions cannot therefore be exhibited in that manner, and the best evidence we can give of our interest in the subject, is to record the fact for the reader's meditation, and to leave a written, if not a monumental, memento of the departed worthies of that olden time.

We have said that the basis of the investigation pursued by the author on this subject, was the mention of "the Old Grave-yard" in the earliest English records. The way in which the matter is mentioned, obviously implied that this honored piece of ground was about being lost to observation under the progress of civic improvements, and was destined to be covered up forever from human observation, and must soon be lost even to tradition, for no stone was to be left uncovered, nor any lines of demarcation which could point out the spot to the eye of posterity. We must, indeed, imagine from the circumstances, that our ancestors of that day had less regard for their progenitors than the ordinary sympathies of humanity toward their buried relatives commonly evince. Perhaps the spot was not "an honour to the city." Perhaps its dilapidated condition, its weed-covered mounds, its fallen tablets, were an eye-sore to the passer-by on a fashionable thoroughfare? For the simple record shows that without discussion or opposition, a resolution was unanimously passed by the city fathers, anno domini, 1677, "That ye old grave-yarde or late burying-place in ye Broadwaye be layed out in foure lots twenty-five foot front and sold at auction to ye highest bidder."

It was obvious then that we were to go back through more ancient papers to satisfy our desire concerning the history of the old grave-yard; and by dint of long and laborious groping our way through old deeds which bounded upon the old grave-yard; by measuring their distances, and comparing the various data thus collated, the precise locality was fixed to a moral certainty, and corresponded precisely with the place where the ancient relics were disinterred, as before related. We think it proper also to mention that the Hon. Murray Hoffman, in his elaborate and learned treatise on the ancient rights of the city, found occasion to enter into an examination of the original grants and patents of the city, and that his diagram fixes the site of the old grave-yard at the same place which had been established in our researches.

But whose were those skulls and joint-bones, which were cast up after a quiet repose of a century and a half. This is the most interesting question of all; for may they not have been those of some old Burgomasters, of whose magisterial deeds the antique records speak? Or of a man who had felled the native forest, on the very spot where his mortal remains found a resting place? Or of a matron whose maternal bosom had nourished the first Christian child born in our city: Or of a child whose infant cry first broke the solitude of a savage region. These and various similar cogitations beset us in our reflections upon this subject. But our answers must necessarily be, in some degree, unsatisfactory, as we know of no record of burials of that remote period now extant.

History informs us that none of the chief dignitaries of this province, except the last Governor Stuyvesant, were buried on our soil, and that the one just named set apart his burial place on his own plantation. Looking among those less elevated in the social sphere, we note, however, several persons well known in their day and generation, of whom we will give some particulars.

Jacob Wolfertsen Van Couwenhoven, one of the very first settlers, and a man of great distinction, died in 1670. He was a son of Wolfert Geritsen, one of the first settlers, and carried on a brewing establishment on the corner of (as now known) of Pearl and Broad streets.

Thomas Hall, an Englishman by birth, who, having been taken prisoner by the Dutch, was released on parol, and took up his permanent residence in the city at a very early period. He was the proprietor of a farm near the present Beekman street, which property afterward was purchased by William Beekman. He filled various public stations in the magistracy, and died in 1670.

Balthazar De Haart, a wealthy merchant, died in 1671. He was an old citizen, and had long resided on the present Hanover square.

Captain Richard Morris, the first of that name since distinguished in our annals, died in 1672.

Isaac Bedlow, some time a Schepen, and long a wealthy merchant of New Amsterdam, died in 1675.

Thomas Exton, one of the English officers engaged in the conquest of this province, died in 1668. His will is short. He gives seven beavers to buy wine for the officers and gentlemen accompanying his corpse to the grave. Gives his shirt to Matthias Nichols, (a distinguished lawyer;) some silver to Mrs. Nichols; and a gold seal ring to Richard Nichols. Gives his two goats in the fort to Richard Haymer. Gives to Richard Charlton for writing his will, four pieces of eight.

Jan Jansen Damen, the original proprietor of the farm extending from river to river, bounded along the present line of Wall street, died in the year 1651.

Daniel Litschoe, a tavern-keeper of great note in his day, near the present corner of Pearl and Wall streets, died about the year 1660.

Govert Loockermans, the first regular packet captain on the North river, a man of great wealth and distinction, died in the year 1661.

Joannes De Witt, the first of that name in this country, a miller by occupation, and residing on the present Broadway, opposite Bowling Green, died in 1668.

Doctor Hans Kierstede, the chief physician of his day, and one of the earliest settlers, who built the first habitation on the present corner of Pearl and Whitehall streets, where he resided until his death, which happened in the year 1666.

Isaac De Forest, a brewer, and for some time a magistrate, residing in the present Stone street.

Claes Van Elslant, one of the earliest settlers, and the grave digger in the old grave-yard, died in 1670.

David Provoost, one of the company's officers, died in the year 1656.

Pieter Rudolphus, an eminent merchant, died in the year 1660.

Adrian Vanderdonck, the most distinguished man of letters in the province, and the author of a description of New Netherland as it was in 1650. Died in the year 1655.

Cornelis Pietersen Vanderveen, a Schepen and prominent trader, died in the year 1661.

We have here mentioned a few of those who are known to have died while the old grave-yard was still used for interments; and whose remains have no doubt been among those dug up from the cellars of the Broadway stores. For the rest, (for the yard was full, even so that none could be interred without displacing others,) we have nothing definite to say. Let us leave these men, women and children to the best recollections of this and later generations, for they were the mortal relics of a people to whom we owe much that we now enjoy, and every thing that is venerable in the traditions and history of our ancient city.

THE NEGRO EXECUTIONS.

The City Commons being also the scene of those sanguinary executions of the negroes in the celebrated plot of 1741, the circumstances attending that event are proper to be briefly recorded here.

The people of New York were afraid of their slaves. From a very olden time they had gathered up stories of insurrection, murders, and conflagrations, the work of disaffected negroes uprising against their masters.

The slave population was ignorant, and in most respects debased, although well treated, in general, by their owners. They, however, with all their insignificance, in comparison with their white neighbors, were not unobservant of that spirit of personal independence which characterized the people of New York. These latter, (we allude to the white population,) were in a constant strife for more liberty; to free themselves from the shackles of arbitrary government, of ecclesiastical dominion, and the various fetters upon political, moral and religious freedom, from which, by the giant effort of the Revolution, they afterward arose.

The slaves of New York, being, as is the characteristic of the negro race, imitative in their dispositions, did not fail to canvass, among themselves, the benefits of freedom; to discuss the great advantages of wealth, to agitate the subject of the glory attendant upon the relieving themselves from a state of bondage. The citizens were aware of these facts, and dreaded the consequences. They were sensible that their negroes were too free to allow of their existence in a contented state of slavery. But to tighten the bonds seemed against the liberal spirit of the times. And thus, hoping for the best, but fearing the worst, our people awaited, in constant anxiety, for the indications of open demonstrations where they knew secret projects were entertained.

Slavery had been entailed, in this Province, upon the people of the last century. It had existed as an institution from the earliest period of the Dutch era. It was looked upon as a part of the social compact under which they lived. Many of the inhabitants were largely interested in their slave households as a species of property and a portion of their wealth. The responsibilities of the condition of proprietors were felt by many. They were sensible that they owed to the superannuated domestics the fostering care of protection and provision in the helpless portion of their lives, while the young and immature were equally dependent for sustenance until the riper years of maturity. Although the masters enjoyed the advantage of the labor of those servants competent to work, yet in this section of the country, unlike the southern portions, slave labor was not remunerative. It was simply a necessity, arising out of a state of society the work of past generations; of an era when voluntary labor was not to be had in this remote and newly settled country.

So that the white portion of our population considered themselves rather as supporting a burden than enjoying an advantage in the institution of slavery as it existed in the Province. Chief Justice Horsemanden, who may be fairly quoted as a respectable reflex of the popular sentiment among the whites of that period, in his record of the Negro Plot, uses terms which charge the negroes, as a body, with habitual ingratitude, falsehood, deception, baseness of moral principles, and a total want of perception of their true condition, capacities and duties. That they indulged preposterous notions of a higher state of social being; their ambition was tending toward unrestrained indulgence of their passions, and a licentious use of wealth to be acquired by their elevation to the condition of owners of all they saw about them. The opinion of this eminent man was common to the best of our citizens of that day. The lawyers of the city refused, to a man, to assist the negroes in their trials on this occasion; and although this universal prejudice on the part of the white people may seem, to us, unnecessarily severe and unjust, yet it must have great weight in sustaining the proposition that the negro slaves of New York were, as a body, sunk in a low state of moral and mental degradation.

It need not be suggested that this condition was, in part, the result of the state of bondage in which the race had so long been held. They were capable of sustaining a better character under a more favorable social and intellectual culture. But, take them as they were, with the ordinary passions and aspirations of humanity, but without the intelligence to comprehend a rational way of advancement, or a reasonable method of expressing that which was within them; it may be that the wild ideas of some of the leading spirits may have taken the course of a forcible destruction of the existing institutions, and the planting themselves upon the ruins; beyond which, and the immediate enjoyment of the spoils, their vague conception of results could not extend.

If such a purpose was entertained by any portion of the negroes, as is alleged by the high authorities before quoted, it may still be a question how far that disposition prevailed among the slaves as a body; and on this point we must think that our forefathers were, in a great degree, influenced by their personal fears rather than by unimpassioned reason and discrimination. We at this day, cannot but condemn the wholesale destruction of life, upon most insignificant testimony, in the cases of many of those who suffered the extremity of the law. We read over the evidence as given on the trials of the negroes, and while convinced of their debased intellectual capacities, and the want of moral principle among the negroes, yet we cannot disguise the conviction that the proceedings against them were without sufficient evidence to satisfy unprejudiced minds of the guilt of many who suffered. And even with respect to those most deeply implicated, they seem rather to be objects of compassion, on account of their total want of ability to comprehend the results of an undertaking so chimerical and absurd. Nevertheless, it must be conceded that we need the actual experience of contemporary observers, to judge of the circumstanees of the people of that day; and to discuss a question of [that character at this remote age, upon merely legal views of evidence, would probably be regarded as an assumption of opinion to which our respected forefathers might reasonably have entered a protest.

The leading circumstances attending the plot are given by a historian, briefly as follows:

A robbery which had been committed at the house of Robert Hogg, a merchant in New York, on the 28th of February 1740-1, led to the discovery of a plot, which was afterward called the Negro Plot. One Mary Burton, and indentured servant to John Hughson, (a man of infamous character, and to whose house slaves were in the practice of resorting to drink and gamble, and of secreting the goods they had stolen,) was the instrument in the hands of the magistrates for the detection and punishment of the offenders. On the 18th of March, after the robbery, a fire broke out in the roof of his majesty's house, at Fort George, near the Chapel, consuming the house, the Chapel, and some other buildings adjacent. Most of the public records in the Secretary's office, over the Fort gate, were, fortunately, rescued from the flames. A week after, another fire broke out at the house belonging to a Captain Warren, near the long bridge, at the south-west end of the city. Both these fires were, at first, supposed to be accidental. But about a week after the last fire, another broke out, at the store-house of a Mr. Van Zandt, toward the east end of the town. Three days after, a fourth alarm was given, and it was found that some hay was on fire in a cow stable, near the house of a Mr. Quick. The fire was soon suppressed. The people, in returning from that fire, were alarmed by a fifth cry, at the house of one Ben Thompson, next door west of a Captain Sarly's house. It appeared that fire had been placed between two beds, in the loft of a kitchen where a negro usually slept. The next morning coals were discovered under a hay-stack, near the coach-house and stables of Joseph Murray, Esq., in Broadway.

All these circumstances having occurred in quick succession, the people were induced to believe that some designing persons intended to destroy the city by fire. What strengthened this belief was, a seventh alarm of fire, the next day, at the house of a Sergeant Burns, opposite the Fort garden; an eighth alarm, occasioned by a fire breaking out, the same day, in the roof of a Mr. Hilton's house, near the Fly market; and again, the same afternoon, and within a few hours after, a ninth fire occurring at Colonel Philipse's store-house. This strange coincidence of events left little room for doubt that some one or more of the fires occurred through design. It was soon rumored that the negroes were the perpetrators. One Quacks, a negro belonging to Mr. Walter, was said to have made use of some mysterious language and threats, indicating his knowledge of a plot. A proclamation was issued, offering rewards for the discovery of the offenders. Quacks, and several other negroes, were apprehended, and closely interrogated, but without effect. The Supreme Court, at its April term, strictly enjoined the Grand Jury to make diligent inquiries as to the late robberies and fires within the city. Mary Burton, who had been apprehended as a witness relative to the robbery at Mr. Hogg's, gave the Grand Jury reason to believe that she was also privy to the design to set fire to the city. After some difficulty, she made a disclosure, which, in all probability, was greatly exaggerated, though some of its parts may have been true. She stated that meetings of negroes were held at her master's, (Hughson's,) house. That their plan was to burn the Fort and City. That one Cæsar, (a black,) was to be Governor, and Hughson, her master, King. That they were to destroy the whites. That she had known seven or eight guns and some swords at her master's house. That the meetings at her master's house consisted of twenty or thirty negroes at a time. Upon this evidence warrants were issued, and many negroes committed to prison. One Arthur Price, a servant charged with stealing goods belonging to the Lieutenant Governor, likewise became an informer. Being in prison himself, and having access to the negroes there committed, he received, or pretended to have received, much information from them. He was afterward employed by the magistrates to hold private conferences with the negroes in prison, and to use persuasion and other means to gain confessions from them. In this business he was peculiarly expert, and received the most unqualified approbation of the magistrates. Yet many of the stories are of such a chivalrous and romantic description as to excite suspicion of their truth.

The result of this affair was, that one hundred and fifty-four negroes were committed to prison, of whom fourteen were burned at the stake, eighteen hanged, seventy-one transported, and the rest pardoned, or discharged for want of proof. Twenty white persons were committed, of whom, two only, John Hughson and John May, (a Catholic priest,) were executed.

THE TRIAL OF ZENGER IN NEW YORK, IN THE YEAR 1735.

This celebrated trial, which has, by some distinguished authorities, been cited as "the dawn of American liberty," arose out of differences between the colonial government and the people, in which, on the part of the latter, it was asserted that the acts of William Crosby, then the Governor of the Colony, were arbitrary and against the liberties of British subjects. The particulars out of which the questions in difference arose are not necessary to be stated, as the general principle maintained was that upon which the Revolutionary War was afterward based, namely, that the people of America were less liberally governed than the subjects of the King were in England. To aid the popular party, a newspaper was established, in which able writers attacked the Governor and other branches of the government with boldness and zeal. The squibs, ballads and other "items" of this paper, (called the Weekly Journal,) irritated the Governor and his council to madness, and after various measures of retaliation unsuccessfully resorted to, with a view to put a stop to the paper bullets with which they were weekly plied, a legal process was finally taken out against the printer in the shape of an information for a libel. The counsel employed by Zenger having in the outset of the case fallen into a difficulty with the Judges, (the latter favoring the Court party,) those counsel were "thrown over the bar," as the phrase is, in other words were deprived of the liberty to plead before the Court. So that it seemed as if Zenger was to be deprived of the benefit of counsel when his trial should be called on. His friends, however, secretly sent to Philadelphia, and retained in his behalf the venerable Andrew Hamilton, then about eighty years of age, but in the full possession and enjoyment of his faculties. Hamilton was a distinguished barrister of that day. Educated in England, and in practice there before coming to this country, he had a good knowledge of law as a science, and took the highest rank in his profession. He was an ardent friend of free and liberal institutions, and, fearless of consequences, he denounced the encroachments and usurpations of those in authority with a boldness that excited their fear and hatred, while his easy and graceful eloquence, his powers of sarcasm, and his powerful declamation enraptured the people.

The Court met for this trial on the fourth day of August, 1735, a crowded audience filling the chamber. Mr. Hamilton proposed to prove the truth of the statements contained in the alleged libel, but was overruled by the Court on the ground that the truth of a libel cannot be given in evidence.

Mr. Hamilton then addressed the Jury as follows: "Then, gentlemen of the Jury, it is to you we must now appeal for witnesses to the truth of the facts we have offered, and are denied the liberty to prove; and let it not seem strange that I apply myself to you in this manner; I am warranted so to do, both by law and reason. The law supposes you to be summoned out of the neighborhood where the fact is alleged to be committed; and the reason of your being taken out of the neighborhood is because you are supposed to have the best knowledge of the fact that is to be tried; and were you to find a verdict against my client, you must take upon you to say that the papers referred to in the information, and which we acknowledge we printed and published, are false, scandalous and seditious; but of this I can have no apprehension. You are citizens of New York; you are really what the law supposes you to be, honest and lawful men; and the facts which we offer to prove were not committed in a corner. They are notoriously known to be true; and, therefore, in your justice lies our safety. And as we are denied the liberty of giving evidence to prove the truth of what we have published, I will beg leave to lay it down as a standing rule in such cases, that the suppressing of evidence ought always to be taken for the strongest evidence, and I hope it will have weight with you. But since we are not admitted to examine our witnesses. I will endeavor to shorten the dispute with Mr. Attorney, and to that end I desire he would favor us with some standard definition of a libel, by which it may be certainly known whether a writing be a libel, yea or not.

Attorney-General.—The books, I think, have given a very full definition of a libel. They say it is in a strict sense taken for a malicious defamation, expressed either in writing or printing, and tending either to blacken the memory of one who is dead or the reputation of one who is alive, and to expose him to public hatred, contempt or ridicule. But it is said that, in a larger sense, the notion of a libel may be applied to any defamation whatsoever, expressed either by signs or pictures; as by fixing up a gallows against a man's door, or by painting him in a shameful and ignominious manner; and since the chief cause for which the law so severely punishes all offences of this nature is the direct tendency of them to a breach of the public peace, by provoking the parties injured, their friends and families to acts of revenge, which it would be impossible to restrain by the severest laws, were there no redress from public justice for injuries of this kind, which of all others are most seriously felt; and since the plain meaning of such scandal, as is expressed by signs or pictures, is as obvious to common sense and as easily understood by every common capacity, and altogether as provoking as that which is expressed by writing or printing, why should it not be equally criminal? From the same ground it also appears to follow that such scandal as is expressed in a scoffing and ironical manner makes a writing as properly a libel as that which is expressed in direct terms; as where a writing in a taunting manner, reckoning up several acts of public charity done by one, says: "You shall not play the Jew nor the hypocrite," and so goes on in a strain of ridicule to insinuate that what he did was owing to his vain glory; or where a writing, pretending to recommend to one the character of several great men for his imitation, instead of taking notice of what they are generally esteemed famous for, pitched on such qualities only which their enemies charge them with the want of, as by proposing such a one to be imitated for his courage who is known to be a great statesman, but no soldier; and another to be imitated for his learning who is known to be a great general but no scholar, &c., which kind of writing is as well understood to mean only to upbraid the parties with the want of these qualities, as if it had directly and expressly said so.

Hamilton.—Ay, Mr. Attorney, but what certain standard rule have the books laid down by which we can certainly know whether the words or the signs are malicious? Whether they are defamatory? Whether they tend to a breach of the peace, and are a sufficient ground to provoke a man, his family or friends to acts of revenge, especially those of the ironical sort of words. And what rule have you to know when I write ironically; I think it would be hard when I say such a man is a very worthy, honest gentleman, and of fine understanding, that therefore I meant he was a knave or a fool.

Some further discussion here ensued, on the question whether the Jury or the Judges were to find the libellous character of the publication, in which the Court intimated that “the Jury may find that Zenger printed and published those papers, and leave it to the Court to judge whether they were libellous.”

Hamilton.—“I know, may it please your Honor, the Jury may do so; but I do likewise know they may do otherwise. I know they have the right, beyond all dispute, to determine both the law and the fact, and where they do not doubt of the law they ought to do so. This manner of leaving it to the judgment of the Court whether the words are libellous or not, in effect renders juries useless, to say no worse, in many cases; but this I shall have occasion to speak to by-and-by; and I will, with the Court’s leave, proceed to examine the inconveniences that must inevitably arise from the doctrines Mr. Attorney has laid down; and I observe in support of this prosecution, he has frequently repeated the words taken from the case de libellis famosis, in the fifth of Coke. This is indeed the leading case to which almost all the other cases upon the subject of libels refer; and I must insist upon saying that, according as this case seems to be understood by the Court and Mr. Attorney, it is not law at this day. For though I own it to be base and unworthy to scandalize any man, yet I think it is even villainous to scandalize a person of public character, and I will go so far into Mr. Attorney’s doctrine as to agree, that if the faults, mistakes, nay, even the vices of such a person be private and personal, and do not affect the peace of the public, or the liberty or property of our neighbor, it is unmanly and unmannerly to expose them either by word or writing. But when a ruler of a people brings his personal failings, but much more his vices into his administration, and the people find themselves affected by them either in their liberties or properties, that will alter the case mightily; and all the high things that are said in favor of rulers and of dignities, and upon the side of power, will not be able to stop people's mouths when they feel themselves oppressed—I mean in a free government. It is true, in times past it was a crime to speak truth, and in that terrible court of star chamber many worthy and brave men suffered for so doing; and yet, even in that court, and in those bad times, a great and good man durst say what I hope will not be taken amiss of me to say in this place, that the practice of informations for libels is a sword in the hands of a wicked King, and an arrant coward to cut down and destroy the innocent; the one cannot because of his high station, and the other dares not, because of his want of courage, revenge himself in another manner."

Attorney-General.—"Pray, Mr. Hamilton, have a care what you say, do not go too far, either! I do not like those liberties."

Hamilton.—"Sure, Mr. Attorney, you will not make any applications; all men agree that we are governed by the best of Kings, and I cannot see the meaning of Mr. Attorney's caution; my well known principles, and the sense I have of the blessings we enjoy under his present Majesty, make it impossible for me to err, and I hope, even to be suspected, in that point of duty to my King. May it please your honor, I was saying, that notwithstanding all the duty and reverence claimed by Mr. Attorney to men in authority, they are not exempt from observing the rules of common justice, either in their private or public capacities; the laws of our mother country know no exemption. It is true, men in power are harder to be come at for wrongs they do either to a private person or to the public, especially a governor in the plantations, where they insist upon an exemption from answering complaints of any kind in their own government. We are indeed told, and it is true, they are obliged to answer a suit in the King's Courts at Westminster for a wrong done to any person here; but do we not know how impracticable this is to most men among us, to leave their families who depend upon their labor and care for their livelihood, and carry evidence to Britain, and at a great, nay a far greater expense than almost any of us are able to bear, only to prosecute a governor for an injury done here. But when the oppression is general, there is no remedy even in that way; no, our Constitution has, (blessed be God) given us an opportunity, if not to have such wrongs redressed, yet by our prudence and resolution to prevent in a great measure the committing of such wrongs, by making a governor sensible that it is his interest to be just to those under his care; for such is the sense that men in general (I mean freemen) have of common justice, that when they come to know that a chief magistrate abuses the power with which he is trusted for the good of the people, and is attempting to turn that very power against the innocent, whether of high or low degree, I say, mankind in general seldom fail to interpose, and as far as they can, prevent the destruction of their fellow subjects. And has it not often been seen (and I hope it will always be seen) that when the representatives of a free people, are by just representations or remonstrances made sensible of the sufferings of their fellow subjects, by the abuse of power in the hands of a governor, they have declared (and loudly too) that they were not obliged by any law to support a governor who goes about to destroy a province or a colony, or their privileges, which by his Majesty he was appointed, and by the law he is bound to protect and encourage. But I pray it may be considered, of what use is this mighty privilege if every man that suffers must be silent, and if a man must be taken up as a libeller for telling his sufferings to his neighbor? I know it may be answered, have you not a legislature? Have you not a house of representatives to whom you may complain? And to this I answer, we have. But what then; is an assembly to be troubled with every injury done by a governor? Or are they to hear of nothing but what those in the administration will please to tell them? Or what sort of a trial must a man have? And how is he to be remedied: especially if the case were as I have known it to happen in America in my time; that a governor who has places, (I will not say pensions, for I believe they seldom give that to another which they can take to themselves) to bestow, and can or will keep the same assembly, after he has modeled them so as to get a majority of the house in his interest, for near twice seven years together? I pray what redress is to be expected for an honest man, who makes his complaint against a governor, to an assembly who may properly enough be said to be made by the same governor against whom the complaint is made? The thing answers itself. No, it is natural, it is a privilege. I will go farther, it is a right which all freemen claim and are entitled to, to complain when they are hurt; they have a right publicly to remonstrate against abuses of power in the strongest terms; to put their neighbors upon their guard against the craft or open violence of men in authority, and to assert with courage the sense they have of the blessings of liberty, the value they put upon it, and their resolution at all hazards to preserve it as one of the greatest blessings Heaven can bestow. And when a house of assembly, composed of honest freemen, sees the general bent of the people's inclinations, that is it which must and will—I am sure it ought to—weigh with a legislature in spite of all the craft caressing and cajoling, made use of by a governor to divert them from hearkening to the voice of their country.”

Mr. Hamilton here went into an examination of the history of the law of libel, which we omit as being too long for introduction in this work. Turning his attention to the question, as to the right of the jury to find both the law and the fact of the issue, and after citing some authorities, he continued:

“From all which, I insist, it is very plain that the jury are by law at liberty, (without any affront to the judgment of the court,) to find both the law and the fact in our case, as they did in the case I am speaking to, which I will beg leave just to mention, and it is this:—Messrs. Penn and Mead, being Quakers, and having met in a peaceable manner, and after being shut out of their meeting-house, preached in Grace Church street, in London, to the people of their own persuasion, and for this they were indicted, and it was said, ‘that they, with other persons, to the number of three hundred, unlawfully and tumultuously assembled, to the disturbance of the peace, &c.’ To which they pleaded not guilty. And the petit jury being sworn to try the issue between the king and the prisoners, that is, whether they were guilty according to the form of the indictment; here there was no dispute but that they were assembled together to the number mentioned in the indictment; but, whether that meeting together was riotously, tumultuously and to the disturbance of the peace was the question. And the court told the jury it was, and ordered the jury to find it so; ‘for,’ said the court, ‘the meeting was the matter of fact, and that is confessed, and we tell you it is unlawful, for it is against the statute; and the meeting being unlawful, it follows, of course, that it was tumultuous and to the disturbance of the peace.’ But the jury did not think fit to take the court’s word for it; for they could find neither riot, tumult or anything tending to breach of the peace committed at that meeting, and they acquitted Messrs. Penn and Mead. In doing of which they took upon them to judge both the law and the fact, at which the court (being themselves true courtiers) were so much offended that they fined the jury forty marks a piece, and committed them till paid. But Mr. Bushel, who valued the right of a juryman, and the liberty of his country more than his own, refused to pay the fine, and was resolved (though at a great expense and trouble too,) to bring, and did bring his habeas corpus, to be relieved from his fine and imprisonment, and he was released accordingly; and this being the judgment in his case it is established for law, ‘that the judges how great soever they be, have no right to fine, imprison and punish a jury for not finding a verdict according to the discretion of the court.’ And this, I hope, is sufficient to prove that jurymen are to see with their own eyes, to hear with their own ears, and to make use of their own consciences and understandings, in judging of the lives, liberties, or estates of their fellow subjects; and so I have done with this point.

“This is the second information for libelling of a governor that I have ever known in America, and the first, though it may look like a romance, yet, as it is true, I will beg leave to mention it:—Governor Nicholson, who happened to be offended with one of his clergy, met him one day upon the road, and, as was usual with him, under the protection of his commission, used the parson with the worst of language, threatened to cut off his ears, slit his nose, and at last to shoot him through the head. The parson being a reverend man, continued all this time uncovered in the heat of the sun, until he found an opportunity to fly for it, and coming to a neighbor’s house, felt himself very ill of a fever, and immediately writes for a doctor, and, that his physician might be the better judge of his distemper, he acquainted him with the usage he had received, concluding that the governor was certainly mad, for that no man in his senses would have acted in that manner. The doctor unhappily shows the parson's letter; the governor came to hear it, and so an information was preferred against the poor man for saying he believed the governor was mad; and it was laid in the information to be false, scandalous and wicked, and wrote with intent to move sedition among the people, and bring his Excellency in contempt. But by an order from the late Queen Anne, there was put a stop to that prosecution, with sundry others set on foot by the same governor, against gentlemen of the greatest worth and honor in that government.

“ And, may I not be allowed, after all this, to say that by a little countenance, almost any thing which a man writes may, with the help of that useful term of art, called an inuendo, be construed to be a libel, according to Mr. Attorney's definition of it; that whether the words are spoken of a person of a public character, or of a private man, whether dead or living, good or bad, true or false, all make a libel, for according to Mr. Attorney, after a man hears a writing read, or reads or repeats it, or laughs at it, they are all punishable. It is true, Mr. Attorney is so good as to allow, after the party knows it to be a libel; but he is not so kind as to take the man's word for it.

“ If a libel is understood in the large and unlimited sense urged by Mr. Attorney, there is scarce a writing I know that may not be called a libel, or scarce any person safe from being called to an account as a libeller; for Moses, meek as he was, libelled Cain, and who is it that has not libelled the devil; for, according to Mr. Attorney, it is no justification to say one has a bad name. Echard has libelled our good King William. Burnet has libelled, among many others, King Charles and King James, and Rapin has libelled them all. How must a man speak or write, or what must he hear, read or sing, or when must he laugh, so as to be secure from being taken up as a libeller. I sincerely believe, that were some persons to go through the streets of New York now-a-days, and read a part of the Bible, if it was not known to be such, Mr. Attorney, with the help of his inuendos, would easily turn it into a libel. As for instance, the sixteenth verse of the ninth chapter of Isaiah: ‘ The leaders of the people caused them to err and they that are led by them are destroyed.’ But, should Mr. Attorney go about to make this a libel he would read it thus:—‘ The leaders of the people (inuendo, the Governor and Council of New York,) cause them (inuendo, the people of this province,) to err, and they (the people of this province meaning,) are destroyed, (inuendo, are deceived into the loss of their liberty,) which is the worst kind of destruction. Or, if some person should publicly repeat, in a manner not pleasing to his betters, the tenth and eleventh verses of the fifty-fifth chapter of the same book, there Mr. Attorney would have a large field to display his skill, in the artful application of his inuendos. The words are, ‘ His watchmen are all blind, they are ignorant ; yea, they are greedy dogs, that can never have enough.' But, to make them a libel no more is wanting but the aid of his skill in the right adapting his innuendos. As for instance, ' His watchmen (innuendo, the Governor, Council and Assembly,) are blind, they are ignorant, (innuendo, will not see the dangerous designs of his Excellency,) yea, they, (the Governor and Council meaning,) are greedy dogs which can never have enough, (innuendo, enough of riches and power.)

" Such an instance as this seems only fit to be laughed at ; but I may appeal to Mr. Attorney himself, whether these are not at least equally proper to be applied to his Excellency and his ministers, as some of the inferences and innuendos in his information against my client. Then, if Mr. Attorney is at liberty to come into court and file an information in the king's name, without leave, who is secure, whom he is pleased to prosecute as a libeller ? And, as the crown law is contended for in bad times, there is no remedy for the greatest oppression of this sort, even though the party prosecuted is acquitted with honor. And give me leave to say, as great men as any in Britain have boldly asserted that the mode of prosecution by information, when a grand jury will not find a bill of indictment, is a national grievance, and greatly inconsistent with that freedom which the subjects of England enjoy in most other cases. But, if we are so unhappy as not to be able to ward off this stroke of power directly, yet let us take care not to be cheated out of our liberties by forms and appearances ; let us always be sure that the charge in the information is made out clearly, even beyond a doubt ; for though matters in the information may be called form, upon trial, yet they may be and often have been found to be matters of substance upon giving judgment.

" Gentlemen the danger is great in proportion to the mischief that may happen through our too great credulity. A proper confidence in a court is commendable ; but as the verdict (whatever it is) will be yours, you ought to refer no part of your duty to the discretion of other persons. If you should be of opinion that there is no falsehood in Mr. Zenger's papers, you will, nay, (pardon me for the expression,) you ought to say so ; because you do not know whether others, (I mean the court,) may be of that opinion. It is your right to do so, and there is much depending upon your resolution, as well as upon your integrity."

After some other remarks of similar application Mr. Hamilton concluded as follows :

" I am truly unequal to such an undertaking, on many accounts. And you see I labor under the weight of many years, and am borne down by many infirmities of body ; yet old and weak as I am I should think it my duty, if required, to go to the utmost part of the land, where my service could be of any use in assisting to quench the flame of prosecutions upon informations set on foot by the government, to deprive a people of the right of remonstrating, (and complaining too,) of the arbitrary attempts of men in power. Men who injure and oppress the people under their administration provoke them to cry out and complain, and then make that very complaint the foundation for new oppressions and prosecutions. I wish I could say there were no instances of this kind. But to conclude, the question before the court and you, gentlemen of the jury, is not of small or private concern; it is not the cause of a poor printer, nor of New York alone, which you are now trying. No! it may, in its consequences, affect every freeman that lives under a British government, on the main of America. It is the best cause; it is the cause of liberty; and I make no doubt but your upright conduct, this day, will not only intitle you to the love and esteem of your fellow-citizens, but every man who prefers freedom to a life of slavery, will bless and honor you as men who have baffled the attempts of tyranny; and by an impartial and uncorrupt verdict, have laid a noble foundation for securing to ourselves, our posterity, and our neighbors, that to which nature and the laws of our country have given us a right—the liberty—both of exposing and opposing arbitrary power in those parts of the world at least, by speaking and writing truth.”

The address of Mr. Hamilton was listened to with intense interest by a crowded audience, and was received with every possible mark of favor. At the conclusion of it, the Attorney General briefly replied, and the Chief Justice as briefly charged the jury, to the effect, that as the defendant had confessed the publication of the words complained of, the only question for the jury was, whether the words were libellous, and this being a question of law, they might safely leave it to the court. The jury withdrew, and in a short time returned into court with a verdict of not guilty.

The verdict was received with shouts. The judges threatened the leader of the tumult with imprisonment, when a son of Admiral Norris declared himself the leader, and invited a repetition of the huzzas. The judges had no time for a reply, for the shouts were instantly repeated, and Mr. Hamilton was conducted from the hall, by the crowd, to a splendid entertainment. The whole city renewed the compliment at his departure, and the next day he entered the barge under a salute of cannon. The Common Council of New York presented him the freedom of the city, “under a grateful sense of the remarkable service done by him to the city and colony by his learned and generous defence of the rights of mankind, and the liberty of the press.” A splendid gold box, in which to enclose the certificate of the freedom, was also purchased by subscription, on which the arms of the city were engraved, encircled with the words, “DEMERSAE SLEGES—TIMEFACTA LIBERTAS—HAEC TANDEM EMERGUNT;” in a flying garter, within, “NON NUMMIS, VIRTUTE PARATUR;” and on the front, “ITA CUIQUE EVENIAT UT DE REPUBLICA MERNIT.”

The argument of Mr. Hamilton, although open to criticism as a legal production, must be regarded as a most able performance under the circumstances of the case. The law was undoubtedly against him, but his exposition of its difficulties and absurdities was clear and able, while his address to the jury, and his whole management of the defence were skillful, and well calculated to accomplish the object he had in view. But it was, in a political point of view, that this trial became of great importance. The political opinions so boldly promulgated by Mr. Hamilton, within the jurisdiction of the most arbitrary governor in America, and before judges of his own creation, were eagerly responded to by the whole country. The result of the trial was proclaimed as a triumph of the people over arbitrary power, and gave a confidence to infant opinions, which caused it to be regarded as the morning star of American freedom. "But it was not one light alone that ushered in the dawn of our independence; the stars of a whole constellation sang together for joy."*

WINDMILLS.

Like most other Dutch villages of former times, the town of New Amsterdam exhibited to the traveler a striking feature in its windmills, which being generally situated on elevated points, towered above the humble edifices of the town, and spread their wings invitingly toward the vagrant breezes.

It must be remembered that windmills were very important machines in those days, when there was no water power convenient without going into the wildernesses of Westchester county and Jersey, and exposing Christian lives to the murderous savage; when steam was not thought of as a motor, and when the whole subject of economy of power was divided between the rival claims of horse power and wind power. There was a horse mill erected here almost as soon as the colonists settled the island, (its locality being the present South William street, near Broad street,) but upon the whole, as capital enlarged, it found its way into windmills in preference to the other method of wearing and tearing horse flesh; and indeed, upon the whole, it must be confessed that the greater popularity of this form of machine, was well deserved. Albeit its great unwieldy arms, its varying motion and the creaking of the sails, as they favored the course of the wind, were not exactly in accordance with the more scientific systems of machinery of modern days.

In the perspective view of the city, made by that accomplished merchant, Augustus Heermans, in 1656, the windmill adjoining the fort, and standing upon the present State street, was the most prominent object in view of the traveler approaching the city; and no doubt it was a pleasing one to the weary wanderer from a far-off home of civilization. It recalled the scenes of the old country. It spoke of habits of industry, and the realization of ideas of bread, at least, in this new scene of future residence.

Another windmill occupied the eminence immediately north of Wall street, the owner being Jan Vinje, at once farmer, brewer and miller. A curious sight it must have been to see the farmer's wagons laden with grain traversing the shore along the East river, winding up the romantic valley now called Maiden lane, and depositing their loads at this edifice then standing in the midst of a clearing of forest trees of native growth. The snug little stone farm house, with its loop hole windows to keep out marauding savages, the low door way with its bull's-eye windows in the panels, the motley assemblage of domestic animals and slaves of all sorts and sizes, which then formed the great part of a domestic establishment, the waving grain of the adjoining fields, the newly planted orchard, all formed a picture which can hardly now be idealized in connection with that ancient and long populated part of the city.

Farther eastward on the heights along the East river shore was another windmill, opposite the ferry landing from Long Island. Here also was a brewery, and likewise a house of entertainment wherein the farmer sojourned himself while waiting during the tedious intervals of the passage of the ferry boats. Some localities have their peculiar topics of conversation, and here it naturally turned to a discussion upon the changes of the tide, the probable duration of detention, the chances of the traveler reaching his home during the day, and kindred subjects. The "ferry" was as well known in those times as the City Hall is now.

Another windmill stood upon the south part of the present Park, then a desert spot, covered by stunted bushes and "hoop-pole" saplings, and offering no annoyance of forest trees to the free course of the winds above the underwood. It was here that the miller presented the attractions of his establishment to such of the farmers as cultivated the "vlachte" or flats of Harlem, then the agricultural garden of Manhattan Island, the rough road through the Commons bushes running directly past his door, which was in full view, though at a considerable distance from the city.

Then to attract the Jersey farmers, those venturesome men who had penetrated the wilderness and planted the fertile region of Hackingsack, and those too along the Jersey shore, in sections called by the Indians Ahasimus, Hohoken hacking and Carnocupa, there was another windmill erected on the North river shore, below the present St. Paul's church.

These and several others, erected from time to time, on prominent points of the landscape, were distinguishing features of the Dutch city of New Amsterdam. The business of miller was one of the most profitable of that day, for this city was for a long period the staple port where all flour designed for exportation was bolted, and whence all flour was exported. It was said that this was the principal cause of its prosperity in early times; and that when the privilege was taken away the prosperity of the city was reduced one half.

OBSOLETE NAMES OF LOCALITIES ON MANHATTAN ISLAND.

The Potters Field—In 1794.—The triangular piece of ground at the then junction of the Post and Bloomingdale roads, (now Madison square,) was appropriated to the use of the Alms-house for a burial-ground, and received the name of the Potters Field.

In 1797.—A portion of the Corporation property in that vicinity was granted to the State for arsenal purposes, and about the same time the place was abandoned as a public burial-place, on account of the opposition made to the public exhibition of funerals on the much frequented roads leading to this spot, and it was resolved to purchase a more secluded locality for the Potters Field.

A piece of ground, containing about ninety lots, parcel of the land of William S. Smith, bounded on the road leading from the Bowery lane, at the two mile stone, to Greenwich, having been purchased at public auction, and offered to the Corporation as a proper place for a public burial-ground, at the price of £1,800, it was resolved to purchase the same.

Opposition was made to this by the property owners in the vicinity, and the matter being referred to a committee, they reported, “That they had viewed a piece of ground which the petitioners will purchase at their own cost, and convey the same to the Corporation for a public cemetery, and find it well calculated for the purpose, so far as that it is removed a convenient distance from the Greenwich and Albany roads That the soil is sandy and covered with brush, which will hide the graves and yet not interfere with digging them. But the Committee are obliged to remark, that to get to this ground the hearse (the great subject of complaint) must travel either of the roads above-mentioned.”

The Board, however, refused to alter their purpose, and in spite of great opposition, the ground, recently purchased, was established as the new Potters Field. This was the present Washington square.

Crummashie Hill, was an eminence near Governor Stuyvesant’s farm. Mr De Witt, in his compilation of the old farms of New York, has written the name Krom-messie, and given a derivation of that name to the shape of the farm upon which it was situated, as being that of a shoemaker’s knife. The present Gramercy park is said to have derived its name from the old Crummashie hill.

Rose Hill was the name of the country seat of John Watts, Esq., prior to the Revolution. The estate covered some twenty-five blocks in the present Eighteenth Ward.

Bosch Bouwery, or Bush farm, was an old estate in the vicinity of the present Seventh avenue and Twenty-fifth street.

Horen Hook, a somewhat equivocal Dutch cognomen, given to the point of this island opposite Hell gate, was in after years changed to Horn's hook.

Brannon's Garden was about the year 1765, established as a place of public resort along the Greenwich road, on the North river shore, about the present foot of Canal street.

Fitzroy Road formerly led from Greenwich village to the present Forty-second street. It was originally a part of the Great Kiln Road, leading to a rivulet known as the Great Kill brook, near which was a glass furnace, on the northerly boundary of an estate of Sir Peter Warren.

The Parade.—This name was given, at an early period, to the space in front of the old Fort, now known as the Bowling Green.

1770.—Permission was granted that the equestrian statue of King George III, be erected thereon, on its arrival.

1770.—Ordered, That a temporary fence be erected round the Bowling green of posts and rails, not to exceed five rails high.

1771.—Whereas, The General Assembly of this province, have been at the great expense of sending for an equestrian statue of his majesty, (George III,) and erected the same on the Bowling Green, before his majesty's fort in this city, and this Board, conceiving, that unless the said Green be fenced in, the same will very soon become a receptacle for all the filth and dirt of the neighborhood, in order to prevent which, it is ordered that the same be fenced with iron rails, in a stone foundation, at an expense of £800.

1785.—A petition of Thomas Pool, praying that he may be permitted to exhibit some feats of horsemanship in the Bowling Green, was read and rejected.

1786.—A request of Mr. Daniel Ludlow, that he may be permitted to have the care and use of the Bowling Green, at the lower end of the Broadway, for two years, he being willing, at his own expense, to manure the ground, and sow the same with proper grass seed, and have it well laid down as a green; and a request of Mr. Chancellor Livingston, that the direction and use of the said Bowling Green may be granted to him, were respectively read.

Ordered, That the direction and use of the said Bowling Green, be granted to Mr. Chancellor Livingston, on the terms offered by Mr. Ludlow.

1789.—A Committee to remove the Federal ship* out of the Bowling Green, to have the fence repaired, and to let out the Bowling Green.

1791.—The Street Committee reported, that in their opinion, the Bowling Green, in front of the Government house, ought to be preserved, and that it will be necessary the fence should be raised in proportion to the regulation of Broadway. Agreed to.

1795.—Ordered, That the inclosed ground, commonly called the Bowling

* Federal ship HAMILTON, used in the procession, on the adoption of the new Constitution by the State of New York.

Green, in front of the Government house, be appropriated to the use of the Governor, for the time being.

1798.—Ordered, That Mr. John Rogers may have the use of the Bowling Green, on condition that he keep it in good order, and suffer no creatures to run in it.

Thysen's Garden.—A place of public resort, just on the outer side of the wall of New Amsterdam, along the present Wall street, was kept by Elizabeth Thysen. The town gate lay just by her door, and the nine o'clock evening bell has often in the olden time, hurried her loitering visitors to hastily betake themselves through the closing portals, or be shut out of the city for the night.

The Ould Kill.—This was the Dutch name of the stream which emptied the waters of the Fresh Water pond, into the East River; at about the present foot of James street. A bridge crossed the Ould Kill, at about the present junction of Roosevelt and Chatham streets, on the line of the principal highway to the city, from the north.

The Cherry Orchard.—This orchard, which gave the name to the present Cherry street, was originally planted by Govert Loockermans, one of the earliest Dutch settlers. It was situated on the present Chatham square, on the slope of a hill, leading down toward a swamp, which is now covered by Roosevelt, James and other streets. It was, no doubt, one of the earliest plantations of cherry trees on this island.

The Old Ferry.—We have formerly given particular descriptions of this locality, which was a point of great interest, in very early times, being situated at the present Peck slip.

Corlaer's Plantation.—A tobacco farm, from which the name of the present Corlaers hook is derived, lay along the East river, in the vicinity of the point so denominated. Its origin is of very ancient date.

Domine's Bowery.—This property which has been in litigation as a part of the Trinity Church property, has been several times particularly described in former numbers of the Manual.

Golden Hill.—The popular name of a place of public resort, in early times called Vandercliff's Orchard was situated along the East river, in the vicinity of the present John street, at its junction with Cliff street. This tavern was, for over fifty years, one of the most frequented suburban houses of entertainment; its location was esteemed the most agreeable at that period. It gave the name to a part of the present John street, which for many years was called Golden hill.

The "Waal".—When people, in the days of New Amsterdam, spoke of going down to the "Waal," they referred to a business locality, facing the East river, along the present northerly side of Pearl street, between the present Coenties slip and Hanover square. The name arose from the siding of boards along the river, to keep the tide from washing the street.

The Cingle.—What is now generally known as having been the city wall of New Amsterdam (along the present Wall street,) was, in those days, commonly called the Cingle, which was supposed to have been a Dutch term in fortifications.

Monument Lane.—Formerly forming part of the fashionable drive in the suburbs of New York, was established in 1768, as appears by the following record.

“Whereas, Francis Marsehalk, one of the city surveyors, on Thursday, the 11th of February, preferred a plan of two roads leading from the Bowery lane to the hill or sand bank toward Greenwich, for the approbation of this Board; they thereupon made choice of the widest of the two, and ordered that the persons claiming lands contiguous thereto, have notice to show cause on the Monday following, at the Common Council chamber, why the same should not be recovered, and to remain a public road forever; and whereas, no sufficient cause has since been shown to this Board to the contrary, this Board, thereupon ordered that the same be accordingly recorded a public road;” which said road, as agreeable to the plan now filed, runs from the old house, fronting the Bowery lane, north, seventy-three degrees and thirty minutes; west six chains and eighty-five links thence north sixty four degrees and forty five minutes, west twenty-two chains and thirty links, to the brook called by the Indian name Minetta water.”

The name of Monument lane was given to this road (of which the present Greenwich avenue is a portion), arose from its northern extremity being opposite an obelisk, raised in memory of General Wolfe.

Incleuberg —Or Fire beacon hill, a name of Dutch origin, and of very ancient date, would seem to denote a locality which had served the purpose of telegraphing to the people of New Amsterdam, the approach of savage foes from the more northern part of the island. This hill was situated near the present Thirty-sixth street and Fourth avenue; it was formerly a part of the common lands of the city, and was sold by the Corporation in 1806, for sixty-two thousand dollars; the property embraced thirty acres of land.

In 1751 the following order was made, in favor of Oliver Delancey, Esq., whose country residence was in that vicinity.

Ordered, That Mr. Oliver Delancey, have leave to lay out a road all round Inclamvenberg for the conveniency of riding round the same, under direction of a Committee of the Board, and under advice of a surveyor.

Sailors' Snug Harbor.—The property, formerly so called, consisted of land lying in the present Fifteenth Ward of this city, containing twenty-one acres, one rood, thirty-four perches and one hundred and thirty-two feet, which was left by the will of Captain Robert Richard Randall, together with other property, to certain trustees, to erect and build thereon “an asylum or marine hospital, to be called the Sailors' Snug Harbor, for the purpose of maintaining and supporting aged, decrepit and worn-out sailors.” Captain Randall, who had previously resided on this place, died in 1801. It was the intention of the donor to have the hospital built upon a part of the ground situated in the Fifteenth Ward, but in consequence of the rapid growth of the city, and of the great rise of property within its limits, and also considering the habits and character of seamen, the trustees became fully convinced that the benevolent design of the testator would be more extensively carried into effect, by reserving the whole of the ground in their possession, as a source of revenue for the support of the institution, and that the taste of the subjects of the charity would be more gratified, and their comfort greatly promoted by purchasing a site for the hospital on the river shore. They accordingly procured an act of the legislature, in 1814, authorizing them to purchase land for that purpose, and to lease the lots in the Fifteenth Ward. In May, 1831, the trustees purchased the farm on Staten island, now known as Sailors' Snug Harbor, containing one hundred and thirty acres of land, and subsequently added twenty acres to the original tract. The income of the property belonging to the Sailors' Snug Harbor, which in 1806 amounted to four thousand dollars per annum, amounted, in 1848 to thirty-seven thousand dollars per annum, arising, principally, from the ground rent of the property in the Fifteenth Ward.

"The Locust Trees," a hill on the North river shore, shaded by locusts, overlooking the river, with a fine view of the bay, was one of the places visited by loiterers and pleasure-hunting youth of New Amsterdam. It was on the outskirts of the tower being on the south-westerly side of the present Trinity church-yard, which was then inclosed and cultivated as a vegetable garden, for the use of the public officers of the West India Company.

Bylevelt's Bowery—One of the early farms, laid out by the Dutch authorities, was originally granted by the government to Leendert Aerden in 1645. It contained about eighty acres, and lay east of the Bowery.

Pannebacker's Bowery.—Also one of the early farms, set out by the government, laid east of the present Chatham square.

Bowery No. 5, was originally granted in the year 1645, to Cornelis Clasen Switz, and contained fifty acres; it laid east of Chatham square.

Laslaes Plantation and Van Twiller's Plantation, both cultivated as tobacco lands, were in the present Eighth and Ninth Wards, near Saponican or Greenwich.

Potter's Hill, along the shores of the Collect pond, was so called from Crolius' Pottery, established at an early period, between the present Chambers and Reade streets.

Schaape Waytie, or sheep pasture, a hill-side which, in the times of the Dutch, was not yet occupied for building purposes, running down from Wall street, the upper part of the present Broad street having been a part of the pasture.

Bestevaer's Cripple Bush.—This was the Dutch name for what was afterward called Beekman's Swamp, covered by the present Ferry, Gold, and adjacent streets.

The Company's Valley or Marsh.—There were several marshy sections on the island, which, soon after the settlement, received distinctive names. The above name was applied to the present locality of Broad street, which was originally a meadow traversed by an inlet.

The late Vauxhall, in the Bowery, was formerly the property of Jacob Sperry. This gentleman was born in Zurich, in Switzerland, in the year 1728, and emigrated to this country in 1748. He was educated a physician, and after obtaining his diploma, he abandoned the profession. Being fond of study and of flowers, he became a florist. Shortly after his arrival, he received funds from his parents, and purchased the above property when in a rough state, and established himself as a horticulturist. He there reared nine children, five daughters and four sons. There is but one grand son by that name now living in this city, Henry C. Sperry, who was born on the property in 1800. In 1803, Jacob Sperry sold the property to John Jacob Astor for £9,000, ($45,000). He then purchased a house and garden from a Mr. Jordan, on the corner of Nicholas William street, (now Seventh street.) In 1808 he died, in his eightieth year. Mr. Astor then gave a twenty-one year's lease to a Frenchman by the name of Delacroix, and he named it Vauxhall Garden. Mr. Delcroix moved the green house broad side on the Bowery, and converted it into a saloon. Subsequently the dwelling took fire, and partially burned down, but most of the timbers of the house and green-house remained until last fall, when the Astor heirs demolished them to make room for larger buildings.

Catiemut's Hill, along the Collect Pond, in former times kept as a public garden and place of entertainment. It was at the present south-west corner of Chatham and Pearl streets.

Rotten Row.—In the last century, a collection of houses facing the East river, and lying along the present Water street, north of Old slip.

Spring Garden, a place of public resort in the last century, situated on the present site of the Astor House; at one period known as the "Drover's Inn."

Saw-mill Creek.—Near Harlem.

Canvas Town.—The place so called, was made after the great fire in 1776. It lay toward the East river, and from Broad street to Whitehall street. It was so called from the temporary construction of the houses, and their being generally covered with canvas instead of roofs. Lewd and dissolute persons were generally their tenants, and gave them their notoriety and fame.*

The Vly.—The common name during the last century for the East river side of the city above Wall street. Derived from the Smith's Valley of the Dutch times.

The Mall.—The British army, about the time of the Revolution, gave this name to their parade in front of Trinity Church.

Chapel Hill, (well-known to the boys in sleighing seasons,) descended from the present St. George's Chapel in Beekman street.

VAUXHALL GARDEN 1803

FROM O.T. VALENTINE'S MANUAL 1856

The Barracks, erected about the time of the "Old French War," extended from the present Chatham street to Broadway, along Chambers street.

Vlattenbarck Hill—Formerly the name of a lane leading from Broadway to a bark mill on the present corner of Broad street and Exchange place. It is now known as a part of Exchange place. The same is supposed to be derived from its original use of leading to the bark-mill.

Cowfoot Hill—On the borders of the Collect Pond.

Jacob's Well—A mineral spring in Beekman's Swamp, now in Jacobs street.

Mount Pleasant—See "Bunker Hill."

Bunker Hill.—This pleasant eminence, from the top of which an extensive view was to be had of the lower section of the island, was, prior to the Revolutionary War, called Mount Pleasant, and from early times, was a place of resort for excursionists and parties from the city. It stood a short distance westerly from the Bowery Lane, the precise locality being on the blocks now within the boundaries of Centre, Grand, Broome and Elizabeth streets. On the south it sloped down to the meadows which surrounded the Collect Pond. On the north it was bounded by a line leading through Mr. Bayard's farm. On the west by the garden of Mr. Bayard, and on the east it descended gradually to the Bowery road. The hill was, after the Revolution, excavated, and the earth used to fill up the Collect Pond. At one period it was known as "Bayard's Mount."

Crown Point Road.—This was the name of the country road which, before the Revolutionary War, was the usual way of reaching Crown Point or Corlaer's Hook, from the Bowery. It lay along the present line of Grand street. It passed over a high hill, commonly called Jones' Hill, on the summit of which was then the residence of Thomas Jones, Esq. Jones' Hill was near the present junction of Division and Grand streets.

Green Hill—See "Jones' Hill."

Claver-waytie, or Clover pasture, a large field, belonging originally to the Damen farm, and situated on the south side of the present Maiden lane, in the vicinity of Nassau and William streets. This field, from having furnished pasture to the cattle of such of the town people, as desired to give their animals better pasture than the Commons afforded, became a well-known locality to the towns' people

Oyster Pasty.—This name was commonly applied to a locality on the shore of the North river, opposite the present Exchange place. The small lane, leading from Broadway west, (now a part of Exchange place,) was formerly called Oyster Pasty alley, and a fortification at the end of this lane, was known as the "Pasty Mount."

Pie Women's Lane, was the original name of the present Nassau street.

Schreyers's Hook.—This was the Dutch name of a triangular point of land on the North river side of the city, in the rear of the present Trinity church-yard.

Nortwick—A settlement on the North river, in the upper section of the island, was so called in the times of the Dutch.

Ranelagh.—A fashionable place of resort, named after the famous pleasure garden so called, in the vicinity of London, in the last century. Our Ranelagh was situated near the site of the present Hospital, (on the west of Broadway,) occupying an extensive section of land, diversified by ornamental gardens, laid out in the geometrical style, in fashion in those days, with umbrageous alleys and mysterious labyrinths, sacred to the sentimental wanderings of the romantic youth of the city. The view from Ranelagh was very pleasant, stretching away to the west over the Hudson, and eastward over the Fresh Water or Collect pond, while to the southward lay the inhabited parts of the town. The approach to Ranelagh from the city, was by a road nearly on the present line of Broadway, though that thoroughfare was not then extended beyond the present St. Paul's church.

Vauxhall Garden.—In early times called the Bowling Green Garden, was for many years one of the chief places of resort for pleasure-hunters from the city. Its situation was on the shore of the North river, about the present junction of Warren and Greenwich streets. The name was changed to Vauxhall about the year 1750; from which time New York had its Ranelagh and Vauxhall, as well as its great prototype, London. The gardens were highly ornamented, and were laid out in alleys, with shady walks, stretching along the northerly side of the present Warren street, from the river shore to the present Church street. Soon after the Revolution its rural aspect became lost in the maze of streets, although we believe the old house stood for many subsequent years on the corner of Warren and Greenwich streets, still occupied as a place of public resort, but not of the first fashion as of old.

Love Lane—New York, like many other villages, had at different times, its romantic, secluded and shady lanes, or by-roads, where youthful couples loved to wander from the more public paths, and to enjoy a summer walk, without fear of annoyance from obtrusive persons. The first of these umbrageous lanes was that called by the Dutch the "Maedge paetje," or Maidens path, now Maiden lane; the next, some century later, was situated near the present line of East Broadway, extending from the present Chatham square, nearly half a mile eastward; it was a road through the farm of Colonel Rutgers, and was quite secluded, no objection was made by the proprietor to the romantic intruders, and hence the name "Love Lane," was given to the road. Through the centre of the road ran a brook, which emptied into the East river, near the late Rutgers's mansion, after passing through an artificial pond, on the premises.

Jones' Hill.—A circular hill, formerly situated about the present junction of Grand and Division streets, was the most prominent landmark on the eastern part of the island. It received its name from being the residence of Thomas Jones, Esq., a leading member of the legal profession in this city. We believe Mr. Jones occupied the mansion on the summit of the hill, from about the year 1765. In after times, this became known as the Green hill, and was a prominent object, viewed in the distance from the City Hall. The mansion on the summit had been transformed into a tavern and place of public resort, under the name of the Belvedere.

Old Wreck Brook.—There are several very old descriptions of localities which seem to have been given before local causes gave names to places and which are curious for that reason, although we are unable, with certainty, to point out the precise place which these names represent; among these is that above-mentioned, which we find referred to in one of the oldest deeds on record, viz., in 1639; it is set forth in a grant to Peter Vanderlinden, tobacco planter, as “land on this island, where Tunis Kray lies next adjoining, beginning at the little brook called the Old Wreck till to Claes Sybrauts’, stretching along the East river three hundred paces, of three feet each.” The same observations as those above, with respect to the kill (or brook) called the “Old Wreck,” applies to two other streams, one called

“The Kil where the water is running over the stones, and

The Kil where the tree lies over the water.—If our readers have curiosity to search out these localities we will give them all the information in our power to aid them. The description being found in a grant dated in 1641, of “land on Manhattan island, in breadth betwixt the two creeks where the water is running over the stones, and the tree lies over the water, with the same breadth betwixt the two creeks into the woods. We think, however, that it means between the present Kip’s Bay and Turtle Bay. But while upon this intricate subject, we may as well go on a little further, in respect to those names of early times, and refer to that vicinity known, in 1639, as Deutel Bay.—Since corrupted into Turtle Bay. We find it thus mentioned at the above date, in a grant to two tobacco planters, “land on this island, extending in breadth from Deutel Bay along the East river till to the “Hill of Schempoes,” where

The beach tree lies over the water, one hundred rods deep in the woods.

The Great Kill, or (Great Creek,) present Harlem river, known as above in time of the Dutch.

The Otter’s Poor, or Otter Track. The name of land along the East river, near Harlem, date 1645.

Bylevelt’s Bowery.—In the time of the Dutch, was the name of a farm of about eighty acres on this island.

Corlaer’s Plantation.—In the vicinity of Corlaer’s Hook.

Flatland.—The region about Harlem was known to the Dutch by this name.

Rutgers’ Park.—By this name was formerly known the triangular uninclosed space, now called Chatham square. The old Rutgers’ mansion, (not the one at the eastern part of the farm,) occupied by Captain Harman Rutgers, stood at the present junction of Division street and East Broadway, facing the south. In front, their door-yard, at one period surrounded by a picket fence, extended in front of the mansion and was commonly called Rutgers' Park. In after times, this was the usual stand of hay wagons, and was thrown open to the public. When streets were laid out through Rutgers' Farm, the street in the rear of the house was called after Captain Rutgers' wife, Catharine, by which it is still known; while that now known as East Broadway was named after himself Harman, by which it was for a long time known.

The Two Ponds.—Along the Bowery road, in the vicinity of the present Grand street, formerly were two ponds, one on each side of the road, within the fence and opposite each other; they were at the foot of Mount Pleasant or Bunker hill, referred to in another place, and were probably the natural cisterns into which the waters from this hill were gathered.

Burnt Mill Point—A jutting point on the East river, at present known as the Dry Dock. The name above-mentioned arose from the circumstance that in former times a wind mill had been erected on Governor Stuyvesant's property, upon a small elevated island in the marsh at this point of the river. The old mill had been long destroyed by fire, but being situated upon this desert spot, was permitted to stand in ruins for many years and being a prominent mark from the river, gave a name to the locality.

Crown Point.—This name was for a time applied to the present Corlear's hook, the latter, however is the more ancient name, its origin running down to the time of the Dutch possession.

Egin Garden.—A large estate, so called about the commencement of the present century, situated on the Fifth avenue and Fiftieth street and the adjacent blocks.

Deacon's House.—As the poor house in the times of the Dutch was called, was situated on the present Beaver street, north side west of Broad street.

The Plain.—The present Bowling Green was so called, in 1671.

Spikendevil.—This name has been recently more generally known as Spuytenduyvel; but the former is the orthography of the earliest mention we find of it in the records, which occurs in the 1695 or nearly one hundred and sixty-five years since. At that period a proposition was made to build a bridge over it. The privilege, which was, in the first instance, granted by the legislature to the City of New York, but was surrendered by the Corporation to Frederick Phillipse, who became, about that time, the patentee of a great part of Westchester county, and who was about establishing his residence on his manor, and leasing out his lands. The bridge was a necessary way of communication, by land, with the city. It was about that time that Kingsbridge road was laid out through the wooded hill along the northerly part of Manhattan Island.

Stille's Bowbery.—The fact is pretty well known that Bowbery was the Dutch name of land under cultivation. When the Dutch first settled this island they divided up such parts of the land as was best adapted for cultivation, into convenient parcels, and granted them to individual settlers. There were two or three below the Park, and some along the North river, toward Sapokanican, or Greenwich, but the most fertile lay along the present Bowery, which received its original name, "Bowery lane," from its passage through these farming lands. Stille's Bowery was one of the original farms in the times of the Dutch. It was, when originally laid out, called "Bowery No. 6." It lay along the present south-east side of Chatham square, coming down to Pearl street.

Schipper Louw's Point.—This, in old Dutch times, was the designation of the outlet of the Fresh Water Creek into the East river, (then known as Ould Kill,) at about the present foot of James street. The word schipper designated the captain of a vessel, and it is probable this locality was, at a very early period, the residence of Captain Louw. This designation has, of course, been obsolete for a great many years.

Van Centen's Neck designated in the Dutch period, a point of land near Harlem.

Steenwyck's Orchard.—A part of the farm belonging to the eminent Dutch merchant of that name, lay along the present westerly side of the Bowery and Chatham square. Orchards were, in those days, much esteemed and cultivated by those citizens who could indulge in luxuries. The Bowery road was adorned with orchards. Next above Steenwyck's was situated Heerman's orchard, belonging to Augustyn Heermans, another wealthy merchant in the times of New Amsterdam.

Sapokanican.—This is one of the few Indian names of localities on this island, which have been preserved and can be identified. The name was applied to the vicinity afterward called Greenwich, and now in the Ninth Ward of the city. The name of Sapokanican to this locality was the common appellation in the times of the Dutch, and among their descendants, it continued to be used for several generations after the Dutch era. But among the English the name of Greenwich prevailed, and finally, threw out of use, entirely, the euphonious name which had been sent down from Indian times.

Rechawan.—This is another Indian name, and was applied to the vicinity of the present village of Harlem. This name was soon lost among the Dutch, and gave place to New Harlem, as that portion of the island was termed.

The Marsh.—In different eras, this name was popularly known. Thus, in very early times of the Dutch, (1643,) it was understood as designating the present locality of Broad street. As this part of the city became drained, filled up and occupied, the marshes on the outskirts of the city received this appellation. Thus, (taking them in order, we may mention Beekman's Swamp, Wolfert's Meadows and the Collect Swamp, which are more particularly mentioned in other places.

Zant Berg, or Sand Hill, was an elevated range of hills, traversing a part of the city through the Eighth and Fifteenth Wards. There were several prominent points on the Zandt Berg. The residence of Abraham Mortier, Commissary in the British army, was erected, about the year 1760, on one extremity of this range. This building was subsequently called the Richmond Hill House. The position of this house was near the present corner of Varick and Charlton streets. Andrew Elliott, Esq., erected a country seat near the other extremity of the range. His garden was laid out upon a round hill, having a carriage-way winding to its summit. The last named place was near the present junction of Eighth and Greene streets. To the north of the Zant Berg hills lay a valley, through which ran the brook called, by the Indians, Minetta, and by the whites Bestevaer's Killelje, or Grandfather's Brook, which traced its course, through meadow lands, from the springy marshes occupying the present locality of Washington square; thence wending, in a course nearly west, and emptying in the North river, near the present Hamersley street. On the south lay the Zant Berg hills, covered by a growth of forest trees; on the north, the cultivated fields, which an hundred years ago were a part of the farm of Admiral Sir Peter Warren, near Greenwich.

The Borec.—In the times of the Dutch, this name was given to a part of the Bowery road.

The "Drovers' Inn," a tavern of distinction, on the outskirts of the town, situated near the present site of the Astor House. It was, at one period, known as the Spring Garden, a place of public resort. It is believed to have been, originally, the farm-house attached to what was called the King's Farm, stretching along, north of Fulton street, as far as Chambers street, and from Broadway to the river. This farm was one of those originally laid out by the Dutch, on the first settlement of the island, and was reserved to the special use of the Company. Upon the conquest, by the English, it became government property, and was afterward leased to Trinity Church, in perpetuity.

Wolphert's Valley.—The Dutch name of a swamp covered by the present Roosevelt, James, Cherry and adjacent streets. The name arose from its original proprietor, Jacob Wolphertsen Van Cowenhoven, a brewer of New Amsterdam, who, at a very early period, received a grant of this natural meadow, a sort of land highly esteemed by the Dutch as pasturage.

The Great Meadow.—By this name the swamp covered by Canal street and neighborhood was formerly known in early times.

Shoemakers' Pasture.—The farm of the four shoemakers, lying north of and along Maiden lane, east of Broadway, south of Ann and west of Gold streets, was commonly known by this name. And it is one indication of the moderate value of the land in those days, (about one hundred and sixty years since,) that a farm, on the immediate borders of the town, should have been allowed to go into hands whose principal inducement was the actual produce of the land. It lay along the tan pits in Maiden lane.

LIST OF CITIZENS

ADMITTED AS FREEMEN OF THE CITY OF NEW YORK, FROM 1749 TO THE REVOLUTIONARY WAR.

In the first volume of the History of the City of New York, the compiler furnished a complete list of persons admitted to the privileges of citizens up to and including the year 1748. To present a full list from that period up to the time of the Revolution, it is supposed, will be satisfactory to many to whom the names and occupations of the business men of olden times is a matter of curiosity. These have been arranged alphabetically, as a more convenient form than to follow the records according to dates.

VERREZANO'S VOYAGE.

NOTE.—It has been a question considerably discussed whether Hudson is entitled the place in our history, commonly accredited to him, of having been the first European discoverer of the mouth of the Hudson river. By some it is supposed (and we confess ourself among the number) that Verrezano was the actual discoverer, nearly an hundred years previous to the visit of Hudson. That our readers may form an opinion on this subject from the original report of the voyage, as well as peruse an interesting account of one of the earliest European expeditions to the American coast, we furnish a copy (in which the ancient English orthography is preserved) of Verrezano's letter to his Royal Master, the King of France, under whose auspices the expedition sailed.

TO THE MOST CHRISTIAN KING OF FRANCE, FRANCIS THE FIRST:

The Relation of John De Verrezano, a Florentine, of the Land by him discovered in the name of his Maiestie. Written at Dicpe the eight of July, 1524.

I wrote not to your Maiesty, most Christian King, since the time we suffered the tempest in the north partes, of the successe of the four shippes which your Maiesty sent forth to discover new lands by the ocean, thinking your Maiesty had bene already duely enformed thereof. Now by these presents I will giue your Maiesty to understand how by the violence of the windes, we were forced with the two shippes, the Norman and the Dolphin, (in such evil case as they were,) to land in Britaine, where, after wee had repayed them in all poynts as was needeful, and armed them very well, we took our course along by the coast of Spaine, which your Maiesty shall understand by the profite that we received thereby. Afterwards with the Dolphin alone we determined to make discoverie of new countries, to prosecute the navigation we had already begun, which I purpose at this present to recount unto your Maiesty, to make manifest the whole proceeding of the matter.

The 17th of January, the yeere 1524, by the grace of God, we departed from the dishabited rocke by the isle of Madeira, apperteining to the King of Portugal, with 50 men, with victuals, weapons and other ship-munition, very well provided and furnished for eight months: and sailing westward with a faire easterly winde, in 25 dayes we ran 500 leagues, and the 20 of Februarie, we were ouertaken with as sharpe and terrible a tempest as euer any saylors suffered, whereof with the diuine helpe and mercifull assistance of almighty God, and the goodnesse of our shippe, accompanied with the good happe of her fortunate name, we were deliuered, and with a prosperous winde followed our course west and by north. And in other

25 dayes we made aboue 400 leagues more, where we discovered a new land, neuer before seene of any man either ancient or moderne, and at the first sight it seemed somewhat low, but being within a quarter of it, we perceiued by the great fires that we saw by the sea coast, that it was inhabited; and saw that the lande stretched to the southwards. In seeking some convenient harborough, wherein to anchor and to have knowledge of the place, we sayled fiftie leagues in vaine, and seeing the lande to runne still to the southwards, we resolved to returne backe againe towards the north where we found ourselues troubled with the like difficultie. At length, being in despaire to find any porte, wee cast anchor upon the coast, and sent our boate to shore, where we saw great store of people which came to the sea side; and seeing us approach they fled away, and sometimes would stand still and looke backe, beholding us with great admiration; but afterwards being animated and assured with signes that we made them, some of them came hard to the sea side, seeming to rejoyce very much at the sight of us, and marvelling greatly at our apparel, shape and whitenesse, shewed us by sundry signes, where we might most commodiously come alande with our boate, offering us also of their victuals to eat. Now I will briefly declare to your Maiesty their life and maners, as farre as we could have notice thereof: These people goe altogether naked, except only that they cover their privie parts with certain skins of beastes, like unto martens, which they fasten unto a narrow girdle made of grasse very artificially wrought, hanged about with tayles of divers other beastes, which, round about their bodies, hang dangling down to their knees. Some of them weare garlands of byrdes feathers. The people are of colour russet, and not much unlike the Saracens: their hayre blacke thicke, and not very long, which they tye together in a knot behind, and weare it like a little taile. They are well featured in their limbes, of middling stature, and commonly somewhat bigger than wee, broad breasted, strong armed, their legs and other parts of their bodies well fashioned, and they are disfigured in nothing, saving that they have somewhat broad visages, and yet not all of them, for we saw many of them wel favoured, having blacke and greate eyes, with a cheereful and steady looke, not strong of body, yet sharpe witted, nimble and exceeding great runners, as farre as we could learn by experience, and in those two last qualities they are like to the people of the east partes of the world, and especially to them of the uttermost partes of China. We could not learne of this people their manner of living, nor their particular customes, by reason of the short abode we made on the shore, our company being but small, and our ship ryding farre off in the sea. And not farre from these we found another people whose liuing wee think to be like unto theirs (as hereafter I will declare unto your Maiestie) showing at this present the situation and nayeure of the foresayd land. The shoare is all covered with small sand, and so ascendeth upwards for the space of 15 foote, rising in form of little hills, about 50 paces broad. And sayling forwards, we found certaine small rivers and armes of the sea, that fall downe by certaine creeks, washing the shoare on both sides as the coast lyeth. And beyond this we saw the open country rising in height above the sandy shoare, with many faire fields and plaines, full of mightie great woods, some very thicke, and some thinne, replenished with divers sorts of trees as pleasant and delectable to behold as is possible to imagine. And your Maiestie may not thinke that these are like the woods of Hercynia or the wilde deserts of Tartary, and the northerne coasts, full of fruitlesse trees; but they are full of palme trees, bay trees, and high cypresse trees, and many other sortes of trees unknowen in Europe, which yield most sweete savors farre from the shoare, the propertie whereof we could not learn for the cause aforesaid, and not for any difficultie to passe through the woods, seeing they are not so thicke but that a man may passe through them, neither doe we thinke that they partaking of the east world round about them, are altogether voyd of drugs or spicery and other riches of golde, seeing the colour of the land doth so much argue it. And the land is full of many beastes, as stags, deere and hares, and likewise of lakes and pooles of fresh water, with great plentie of fowles, convenient for all kinde of pleasant game. This land is latitude 34 degrees, with good and wholesome ayre, temperate betweene hot and colde; no vehement windes doe blowe in those regions, and those that doe commonly reign in those coasts, are the northwest and west windes in the summer season (in the beginning whereof we were there) the skie cleere and faire with very little raine; and if at any time the ayre be cloudie and mystie, with the southern winde, immediately it is dissolued and wareth cleere and fayre againe. The sea is calme, not boysterous, the waves gentle, and although all the shoare be somewhat sholde and without harborough, yet it is not dangerous to the saylers, being free from rockes, and deepe, so that within 4 or 5 foote of the shoare there is 20 foote deepe of water without ebbe or flood, the depth still increasing in such uniform proportion. There is very good ryding at sea, for any ship being shaken in a tempest can never perish there by breaking of her cables, which we have proved by experience. For in the beginning of March (as it is usual in all regions) being in the sea oppressed with northerne windes, and ryding there, we found our anchor broken before the earth fayled or moved at all. We departed from this place still running along the coast which we found to trend toward the east, and we saw everywhere very great fires, by reason of the multitude of the inhabitants. While we rode on that coast partly because it had no harborough, and for that we wanted water, we sent our boat ashore with 25 men; where by reason of great and continuall waves that beat against the shoare being an open coast without succour, none of our men could possibly goe ashore without losing our boate. We saw there many people which came into the shoare making divers signes of friendship, and shewing that they were content we should come aland, and by tryal we found them to be very courteous and gentle, as your Maiestie shall understand by the successe. To the intent we might send them of our things, which the Indians commonly desire and esteeme, as sheetes of paper, glasses, bells, and such like trifles, we sent a young man one of our mariners ashore, who swimming towards them, and being within 3 or 4 yards of the shoare, not trusting them, cast the things upon the shoare; but seeking afterwards to returne, he was with such violence of the waves beaten upon the shoare, that he was so bruised, that he lay there almost dead; which the Indians perceiving, ranne to catch him, and drawing him out they carried him a little way off from the sea. The young man perceiving they caried him, being at the first dismaied, began then greatly to feare and cried out piteously: likewise did the Indians which did accompany him, going about to cheere him and to give him courage, and then settling him on the ground at the foote of a little hil against the sunne, they began to behold him with great admiration, marvelling at the whitenesse of his flesh: and putting off his clothes, they made him warme at a great fire, not without our great feare which remained in the boate, that they would have rosted him at that fire, and have eaten him. The young man having recovered his strength, and hauing stayed a while with them, shewed them by signes that he was desirous to returne to the ship, and they with greate love clapping him fast about, with many embracings, accompaning him into the sea, and to put him in more assurance, leaving him alone, went unto a high ground and stood there, beholding him untill he was entred into the boate. This young man observed as we did alsoe, that these are of colour inclining to blacke as the others were, with their flesh very shining, of middling stature, handsome visage, and delicate limnes, and of very litle strength, but of prompt wit, farther we observed not

Departing from hence following the shore which trended somewhat toward the north in 50 leagues space we came to another land which shewed much more faire and full of woods, being very greate, where we rode at anchor; and that we might have some knowledge thereof, we sent 20 men aland, which entred into the country about 2 leagues, and they found that the people were fled to the woods for feare. They saw only one old woman, with a young maid of 18 or 20 years old which seeing our company hid themselves in the grasse for feare; the olde woman carried two infants on her shoulders, and behind her necke a child of 8 yeares old. The young woman was laden likewise with as many, but when our men came unto them, the women cried out, the olde woman made signes that the men were fledde unto the woods. As soone as they saw us to quiet them and to win their favour, our men gave them such victuals as they had with them, to eate, which the olde woman received thankfully, but the young woman disdained them all, and threw them disdainfully on the ground. They tooke a childe from the olde woman to bring into France, and going about to take the young woman which was very beautiful and of tall stature, they could not possibly, for the great outeries that she made, bring her to the sea; and especially having great woods to pass through and being farre from the ship, we purposed to leave her behinde, beareng away the childe only. We found those folkes to be more white than those that we found before, being clad with certain leaves that hang on boughs of trees, which they sew together with threds of wilde heme; their heads were trussed up after the same maner as the former were, their ordinary foode is of pulse, whereof they have great store, differing in colour and taste from ours, of good and pleasant taste. Moreover they live by fishing and fowling, which they take with ginnies, and bowes made of hard wood, the arrowes of canes, being headed with the bones of fishes and other beastes. The beastes in those parts are much wilder than in our Europe by reason they are continually chased and hunted. We saw many of their boates, made of one tree 20 foote long and 4 foote broad, which are not made with yron or stone or any other kind of metall (because that in all this countrie for the space of 200 leagues which we ranne, we never saw one stone of any sort:) they help themselves with fire, burning so much of the tree as is sufficient for the hollownesse of the boate. The like they doe in making the sterne and the fore parte, until it be fit to saile upon the sea. The land is in situation, goodnesse and fairnessse like the other; it hath woods like the other, thinne and full of divers sortes of trees but not so sweete, because the countrie is more northerly and colde.

We saw in this countrie many vines growing naturally, which growing up, took holde of the trees as they do in Lombardie, which if by husbandmen they were dressed in good order, without all doubt they would yield excellent wines, for having oftentimes seene the fruit thereof dried, which was sweete and pleasant, and not differing from ours, we think that they doe esteeme the same, because that in every place where they growe, they take away the under branches growing round about that the fruit thereof may ripen the better. We found also roses, violets, lilies and many sortes of herbes and sweete and odoriferous flowers different from owrs. We knewe not their dwellings because they were farre up in the land, and we judge by many signs that we saw that they are of wood and of trees framed together. We doe believe also by many conjectures and signes that many of them sleeping in the fields have no other covert than the open skye. Farther knowledge have we not of them; we think that all the rest whose countries we passed, live all after one maner. Having made our aboade three days in this country, and ryding on the coast for want of harboroughs, we concluded to depart from thence, trending along the shore betweene the north and the east, sayling only in the daye time, and ryding at anker at night. In the space of 100 leagues sayling we found a very pleasant place situated among certaine little steepe hills; from amidst the which hills there ranne downe to the sea an exceeding great streame of water, which within the mouth was very deepe and from the sea to the mouth of the same with the tide, which we found to rise 8 foote, any greate ship laden may passe up. But because we rode at anker in a place well fenced from the wind, we would not venture ourselves without knowledge of the place, and we passed up with our boate onely into the sayd river, and saw the country very well peopled. The people are almost like unto the others, and are clad with the feathers of fowles of divers colours; they came towards us very cheerfully, making great show of admiration, showing us where we might come to land most safely with our boate. We entered up the said river into the lande about halfe a league, where it made a most pleasant lake aboute 3 leagues in compasse, on the which they rowed from the one side to the other, to the number of 30 of their small boats, wherein were many people which passed from one shore to the other to come and see us. And behold upon the sudden (as it is woont to fall out in sayling) a contrary flaw of winde comming from the sea, we were inforced to returne to our ship leaving this land to our great discontentment, for the great commodity and pleasantnesse thereof, which we suppose is not without some riches, all the hills shewing mineral matters in them. We weyed anker and sayled towards the east for so the coast trended, and so always for 50 leagues being in the sight thereof, we discovered an islande in forme of a triangle distant from the mainland 10 leagues, about the bignesse of the island of Rhodes. It was full of hills covered with trees, well peopled, for we saw fires all along the coast; We gave it the name of your maiesties mother,* not staying there by reason of the weather being contrary.

And we came to another land lying 15 leagues distant from the island, where we found a passing good haven, wherein being entered, we found about 20 small boats of the people, which with divers cries and wonderings came aboute our shippe, coming no nearer than 50 paces towards us; they stayed and beheld the artificialnesse of our ship, our shape and apparel, then they all made a loud showt together declaring that they rejoiced. When we had something animated them, using their gestures they came so neere us, that we cast them certain bells and glasses, and many toys, which when they had received, they looked on them with laughing, and came without feare on board our ship. There were amongst these people 2 kings of so goodly stature and shape as is possible to declare, the eldest was about 40 yeeres of age, the seconde was a yong man of 20 yeeres olde, their apparell was on this manner; the elder had upon his naked body a harts' skin wrought artificially with divers branches like damask, his head was bayre, with the hayre tied up behind with divers knots; about his neck he had a large chaine, garnished with divers stones of sundry colours, the young man was almost appparelled after the same manner. This is the goodliest people and of the fairest condition that we have founde in our voyage. They exceede us in bignesse. They are of the colour of brasse, some of them incline more to whitenesse others are of yellow colour, of comely visage, with long and black hair, which they are very careful to trim and deeke up: they are black and quick-eyed, and of sweete and pleasant countenance imitating much the old fashion. I write not to your maiestie of the other partes of their body, having all such proportion as appertaineth to any handsome man. The women are of the like conformitie and beautie, very handsome and well favored, of pleasant countenance and comely to behold: they are as well mannered and continent as any women, and of good education, they are all naked save their privy partes, which they cover with a deeres skin branched or embroydered as the men use; there are also of them which weare on their armes very rich skins of Lucernes they adorne their heads with diuers ornaments, made of their owne hair, which hang downe before on both sides of their brestes, others use other kind of dressing themselves like unto the women of Egypt and Syria, these are of the elder sort: and when they are married they wear divers toys, according to the usage of the people of the east as well men as women.

Among them we saw many pieces of wrought copper, which they esteeme more than golde, which for the colour they make no account, for that among all other it is counted the basest; they make most account of azure and red. The things that they esteeme most of all those which we gave them, were bells, christal of azure colour, and other toys, to hang at their eares or about their necke. They did not desire clothe of silke or of golde, much lesse of any other sort, neither cared they for thyngs made of steele and yron, which we often showed them in our armour which they made no wonder at: and in beholding them they onely asked the arte of making them; the like they did at our glasses, which, when they behelde they suddenly caught, and gave them us againe. They are very liberal, for they giue that which they haue; we became great friends with these, and one day we entered into the haven with our ship, whereas before we rode a league off at sea, by reason of the contrary weather. They came in great companies of their small boats unto the ship, with their faces all bepainted with diuers colours, shewing us that it was a signe of joy; bringing us of their victuals, they made signes unto us where we might safest ride in the haven for the safeguard of our ship, keeping still our company, and after we were come to an anker, we bestowed 15 dayes in providing ourselues many necessary things, whither every day the people repayred to see our ship, bringing their wives with them, whereof they were very ielous, and they themselves entering aboard the ship and staying there a good space caused their wives to stay in their boates, and for all the entreatie we could make, offering to giue them divers things, we could neuer obtaine that they would suffer them to come aborde our ship. And oftentimes one of the two kings, comming with his queene, and many gentlemen for their pleasure to see us, they all stayed on the shore 200 paces from us, sending us a small boate to giue us intelligence of their coming, saying they would come and see our ship; This they did in token of safety, and as soone as they had answere from us, they came immediately and hauing staid awhile to behold it, they wondered at hearing the cries and noyses of the mariners. The Queene and her maids staid in a very light boat, at an iland a quarter of a league off, while the King abode a long space in our ship uttering diuers conceits and gestures, viewing with great admiration all the furniture of the shippe, demanding the property of euery thing particularly. He tooke likewise great pleasure in beholding our apparell, and tasting our meats, and so courteously taking his leave departed. And sometimes our men staying two or three daies on a little iland the ship for diuers necessities (as it is the use of seamen) he returned with 7 or 8 of his gentlemen to see what we did, and asked of us oftentimes if we meant to make any long abode there offering us of their provision; then the King drawing his bow and running up and downe with his gentlemen, made much sporte to gratifie our men. We were oftentimes within the land 5 or 6 leagues, which we found as pleasant as it is possible to declare, very apt for any kinde of husbandry, of corne, wyne and oyle; for there are plaines 25 or 30 leagues broad open and without any impediment, of trees of such fruitfulnessse that any seed being sowed therein, will bring forth most excellent fruit. We entred afterwards into the woods which we found so greate and thicke, that any army were it neuer so greate, might have hid itself therein, the trees whereof are okes, cipresse trees and other sortes unknownen in Europe. We found Pome, Appil, damson trees and nut trees and many other sortes of fruit differing from ours; there are beastes in great abundance as harts, deere, luzernes and other kinds which they take with their nets and bows which are their chief weapons, the arrowes which they use are made of great cunning and instead of yron, they head them with flint, with Jasper stone and hard marble and other sharp stones which they use instead of iron to cut trees and to make their boates of one whole piece of wood making it hollow with greate and wonderful art, wherein 10 or 12 men may set commodiously, their oares are short and broad at the end, and they use them in the sea without any danger, and by maine force of armes, with as great speedinesse as they left themselves. We saw their houses made in circular or round forme 10 or 12 paces in compasse made with half circles of timber separate one from another without any order of building, couered with mattes of straw wrought cunningly together, which save them from the winde and raine: and if they had the order of building and perfect skill of workmanship as we have there were no doubt but that they would also make eftsoons great and stately buildings. For all the sea coastes are ful of clear and glistening stones and alabaster, and therefore it is ful of good havens and harboroughs for shippes. They moove the foresaid houses from one place to another according to the commodity of the place and season wherein they will make their abode and only take off the mattes; they have other houses builded incontinent. The Father and the whole Family dwell together in one house in great number, in some of them we saw 25 or 30 persons. They feede as the other doe aforesaid of pulse which grow in that cuntry with better order of husbandry than in the others. They observe in their sowing the course of the Moone and the rising of certaine starres, and diuers other customs spoken of by antiquity. Moreover they live by hunting and fishing. They live long and are seldom sicke and if they chance to fall sicke at any time they heal themselves with fire without any physician, and they say that they die for very age. They are very pitifull and charitable towards their neighbours, they make great lamentations in their adversitie, and in their miserie, the kindred reckon up all their felicitie. At their departure out of life, they use mourning mixt with singing, which continueth for a long space. This is as much as we could learne of them. This Land is situate in the Paralele of Rome in 41 degrees and 2 terces but somewhat more cold by accidentall causes and not of nature (as I will declare unto your highnesse elsewhere) describing at this present the situation of the foresaid countrie, which lieth east and west. I say that the mouth of the haven lieth open to the south half a league broad and being entred within it between the east and the north it stretcheth twelve leagues where it weareth broader and broader and maketh a gulfe about 20 leagues in compasse wherein are five small islands very fruitful and pleasant, full of hie and broad trees among the which islandes any great navie may ride safe without any feare of tempest or other danger. Afterwards turning towards the south in the entring into the haven, on both sides there are most pleasant hils, with many rivers of most cleare water falling into the sea. In the middest of this entrance there is a rocke of free stone growing by nature, apt to build any castle or fortresse there for the keeping of the haven. The fift of May being furnished with all things necessarie we departed from the said coaste, keeping along in sight thereof, and we sailed 150 leagues finding it alwayes after one manner, but the land somewhat higher with certaine mountaines all which beare a show of minerall matter, wee sought not to land there in any place, because the weather serued our turne for sailing; but wee suppose that it was like the former, the coaste ran eastward for fiftie leagues. And trending afterwards to the north, wee found another lande, high, full of thicke woods, the trees whereof were firres, cipresses and such like as are wont to grow in cold countries. The people differ much from the other, and looke how much the former seemed to be courteous and gentle, so much were these full of rudeness and ill manners, and so barbarous that by no signes that ever wee could make, we could have any kind of traffic with them. They clothe themselues with beares skinnes, and luzernes and seales and other beastes skinnes. Their foode as farre as we could perceive, repairing often to their dwellings, we suppose to be by hunting and fishing, and of certaine fruites, which are a kind of roots which the earth yieldeth of her own accord. They have no graine, neither saw we any kind of signe of tillage, neither is the land for the barrennesse thereof, apt to beare fruit or seed. If at any time we desired by exchange to have any of their commodities they used to come to the sea shore upon certaine craggy rocks; and we standing in our bootes; they let downe, with a rope what it pleased them to give us, crying continually that we should not approach to the land, demanding immediately the exchange, taking nothing but knives, fish hooks, and tooles to cut withall, neither did they make any account of our courtesie. And when we had nothing left to exchange with them, when we separated from them the people shewed all signes of discourtesie and disdaine, as were possible for any creature to invent. We were in despight of them 2 or 3 leagues within the land, being in number 25 armed men of us. And when went on shore they shot at us with their bowes, making great outeries and afterwards fled into the woods. We found not in this land any thing notable or of importance, saving very great wood and certaine hils, they may have some mineral matter in them for we saw many of them have beadstones of copper hanging at their eares. We departed from thence, keeping our course northeast along the coaste, which we found more pleasant champion and without woods, with high mountains within the land; continuing directly along the coast for the space of fiftie leagues we discovered 32 islands, lying al neare the land being small and pleasant to the view high and having many turnings and windings between them, making many fair harboroughs and chanelles as the doe in the gulf of Venice in Slavonia and Dalmatia, we had no knowledge or acquaintance with the people; we suppose they are of the same maners and nature as the others are. Sayling north east for the space of 150 leagues wee approached the land that was in times past discouered by the Britons, which is in fiftie degrees. Having now spent all our provision and victuals, and having discovered about 700 leagues and more of new countries, and being furnished with water and wood we concluded to returne to France. Touching the religion of these people which we have found, for want of their language we could not understande, neither by signes nor gestures, that they had any religion or laws at all, or that they did acknowledge any first cause or mouer, neither that they worship the heaven or starres, the sunne or moon, or other planets, and much lesse whether they be idolaters; neither could we learne whether they used any kind of sacrifices or other adorations, neither in their villages have they any temples or houses of prayer. We suppose that they have no religion at all and that they liue at their own libertie. And, that all this proceedeth of ignorance, for they are very easie to be persuaded, and all that they see us Christians doe in our divine service they did the same with the like imitation as they saw us doe it.

ADDENDUM.

There has been, as the compiler remarked in the note introductory to the account of Verrezano's voyage, considerable discussion as to the probability of his having entered the bay of New York, as there are, it has been supposed, discrepancies in his account of the two harbors visited by him, which do not adapt either of them to the actual description of New York bay; but, to us, his narrative seems so plainly to point out the two harbors of New York and Newport as being these described by him, that our conviction is quite settled on the subject; and we think that the whole difficulty in reconciling his account with the supposition rests upon the difference in which the words "in compasse" are used in the ancient and modern vocabulary. While we of the present day give to those words the signification of "in circumference," they of the olden time gave them signification as "in diameter." This is proven by various passages in Verrezano's letter; as he says, for instance, the Indian houses were ten or twelve paces in compass, and yet that large families dwell therein. This could hardly be in a house ten or twelve feet in diameter, (which would be the size of a house thirty to thirty-six feet in circumference,) while in one from thirty to thirty-six feet in diameter it might very well be, and this latter was, doubtless, the size of the Indian domicils, as we know from contemporary accounts. The word "compass," in the old signification, was not a geometrical term, but one having the same sense of our word "size," and being commonly applied to circular forms the "size" or "compass" was understood as the extent across.

Taking this explanation, we find that Verrezano left latitude thirty-four degrees and sailed along the coast, without material variation of his course, a little east of north, and always in sight of land, for near one hundred and fifty leagues. That he then entered a sheltered cove, with hills in the vicinity. That a river emptied among the hills. That within the mouth of the river was deep water. That from the sea to the mouth of the river any great ship might pass up. That he entered the river with a boat sent from his sheltered anchorage, and found, when a mile and a half within the entrance, that it formed a lake about nine miles "in compass." This all corresponds with the actual description of New York bay and harbor. Further, that when he left his anchorage he sailed east, along the coast, fifty leagues, (about the extent of the Long Island shore.) That he discovered an island ten leagues distant from the main land, about the bigness of the island of Rhodes, (answering the description of Block Island.) That at fifteen leagues distance from the island he entered a harbor situated in latitude forty-one degrees two minutes. The mouth of the harbor lying open to the south and being half a league broad. That within, it stretched twelve leagues between the east and north, and became still broader further on, forming upon the whole a gulf twenty leagues "in compass" or length, wherein are five small islands. On both sides of the entrance there were pleasant hills, and in the middle of the entrance a rocky projection above the water. All this applies, with precise accuracy to the harbor of Newport, Rhode Island. That the coast thence trended eastward fifty leagues, and turned afterward, (around Nantucket,) toward the north, until he finally came to Newfoundland. It is to be remembered that in his estimate of distances Verrezano does not pretend to be precise, by measurement, but approximate, as well as he could judge.

WOODLAWN MANSION.

This picturesque property is beautifully situated on the Bloomingdale road, and was a well known hostelry or antique inn, as far back as the era of the Revolution. It was then called the "Strawberry Hill Hotel," and was a famous resort of the young people of our city up to the close of the last century. About that time, the manor came into the possession of John James, and was divided by him into smaller estates, and the manor house, as it now stands, put up for a rural residence. It subsequently passed into the possession of the Haywards, and on the partition of their estates, about the year 1845, became the property of the present owner, Wm. B. Moffat. The house commands a fine water prospect, as the eye, on a clear day, can enjoy a view of the lordly Hudson for many miles north and south, and desery objects from Sing Sing to the Narrows. In the future of this city, the manifest destiny of Woodlawn will probably be in fifty years the cite of a large ship building yard, where monster steamships will be launched, amid the clink of hammers and the roar of steam.

RANDOM EXTRACTS FROM THE CITY RECORDS.

The First Merchants' Exchange.

1752.—Whereas, Several gentlemen, in this city, having voluntarily subscribed toward erecting an Exchange, at the lower end of Broad street, near the long bridge, Mr. John Watts appeared before the Board with a plan thereof, and desired their approbation, to which plan they unanimously agreed, and for the encouragement of so laudable an undertaking, voted, that Mr. Mayor issue his warrant to the Treasurer, to pay one hundred pounds toward carrying on said building.

Bedlow's Island.

February, 1758.—Ordered, That Alderman Livingston and Alderman Lisperard do immediately wait upon Archibald Kennedy, Esq., and purchase of him, for this Corporation, the island commonly called Bedlow's Island, for any sum not exceeding one thousand pounds, in order to erect thereon a pest house, and make report thereof to this Board, how, and in what manner they have treated with him for the same.

The Committee, after conference with Mr. Kennedy, reported that they had agreed to give him one thousand pounds, in two payments, viz:—Five hundred pounds on 1st May next, and five hundred pounds on 1st May, 1759; which was approved.

January 30, 1759.—Ordered, That a pest house be erected on the island commonly called Bedlow's Island, recently purchased by the Corporation, for that purpose.

April, 1760.—Ordered, That the Clerk of this Board prepare a lease to Isaac Will, of the city of New York, gardener, for the island commonly called Bedlow's Island, for the term of one year, upon the following conditions, to wit:—That this Corporation will find and provide for said Will a pettiauger and one cow, and that the said Will is not to be permitted to sell or retail any strong liquors, or entertain any company on the said island, during the continuance of this lease; and, that if the said lease shall not be continued longer than for a year, that at the expiration thereof he shall leave the cow, for the use of the said Corporation, and shall repay them the price they paid for the said pettiauger; and that the said Isaac Will shall be obliged to continue on said island, during the continuance of the lease, in case any sick shall be lodged there, and afford them his and his family's assistance.

March, 1764.—It is agreed and ordered by this Board, that John Brown, of the said city, laborer, be, and is hereby appointed overseer and manager of Bedlow's Island, during the pleasure of the Corporation.

September, 1769.—Ordered, That Samuel Rogers, the present tenant of this Corporation, on the island commonly called Bedlow's Island, do forthwith remove himself and family from thence, this Board having no further service for him there; and ordered that Evert Pells be permitted to occupy the same, until he shall receive an order from this Board to the contrary.

*July, 1772.—*It is agreed that Elias Stilwell be permitted to take into his possession the island commonly called Bedlow's Island, and to occupy the same, until he shall receive an order to the contrary from this Board.

*September, 1773.—*Mr. Mayor informed the Board, that Col. Robinson signified his desire to obtain leave of the Corporation, to put a number of soldiers on Bedlow's Island, in the hospital there, and that he would engage to repair any damage that they may do to the same; Ordered, therefore, that he have leave accordingly, until the farther order of this Corporation.

The present Chatham street, (previously the Old Post Road,) surveyed as a Street.

1760.—Mr. Marschalk, one of the City Surveyors, produced to this Board the draft or plan of a road which he hath lately laid out, by the direction of this Corporation, in the West Ward of this city, and is in the following manner, viz:—Beginning from the Spring Garden House, where the street now is of the breadth of eighty-two feet six inches, and extending from thence north thirty-seven degrees, east thirty minutes, until it comes to the ground of the late Widow Rutgers, leaving the street thereof fifty feet in breadth; which is approved of by this Board.

Lighting of the Streets.

January, 1762.—Ordered, That a Committee be appointed to purchase, for the use of the Corporation, such a number of lamps and lamp-posts as they may conceive to be necessary for the illuminating of this city, agreeable to an act of assembly of this province.

Same date.—Ordered, That notice be given in the public gazettes, to such persons as are willing to contract with this Board, for lighting such lamps as will speedily be erected.

February, 1762.—Ordered, That a Committee be appointed, (in pursuance of an act of assembly, authorizing the raising of a sum not exceeding one thousand eight hundred pounds, by tax, for fixing of lamps, and providing a sufficient number of watchmen,) to erect lamps in such parts of the city as they shall judge most convenient.

General System of numbering the Streets adopted.

1793.—The Street Committee on Numbering the Streets, presented the following report: "That the following method, in the opinion of your Committee, will be the most simple and convenient, beginning at the next house in every street terminating at either of the rivers, where such street intersects the main street, next to the river, and all houses below such intersecting streets to be numbered separately, beginning with No. 1, looking upward in all the main streets, and downward in all the slips, on the one side of the street, and No. 2 on the opposite side, and so on to the end of the street or slip. That a board be put up at each end of every street with the name of the street, and an index or hand, pointing towards the street, painted thereon.

Paving of Broadway.

1790.—The Committee appointed to propose a plan for paving Broadway, from the new pavement at the Lutheran church, (formerly on the corner of Rector street) northwards, report: That in the execution of this duty, they have paid that attention which the importance of so principal a street required, and have obtained an accurate survey of the same, which accompanies this report. The result of their opinion is, that the regulation ought to take place from the corner of the Bridewell fence, and that the crown of the street be continued in a right line from that place, until it joins the new pavement at the Lutheran church, by which means a regular uniformity will be preserved, which will contribute to the beauty as well as the convenience of the street. To accomplish this desirable object, few difficulties occur in leading the water off to the westward, as the different avenues to the North river, in general, afford every facility that can be wished. Some inconveniences occur on the east side, to overcome which, two modes present themselves; the one, to lower the several streets leading from the Broadway to Nassau street, and eastward, the other, by constructing common sewers under the intended pavement of Broadway, at the places hereafter designated. The Committee, as well as the surveyors employed on this occasion, are unanimously of opinion that the latter is the most desirable, as well as most practicable mode, and cannot be attended with such a charge to the Corporation as to render it objectionable.

The places where the difficulty of leading off the water occurs, are, the head of Fair street, (now Fulton street), Little Queen street, (now Pearl street,) and Trinity church, opposite Wall street. Fair street is nearly a dead level, to William street, which being already paved, a material injury would arise to dig it down so as to lead the water eastward from Broadway. Here, therefore, a common sewer appears decidedly preferable, perhaps in the course of the operation the water may be led from the head of Little Queen street, eastward, or partly through the channel on the east side of Broadway, which may be left to the decision of the Committee employed to superintend the work. At Trinity church, a common sewer appears indispensably necessary, to lead the water into Wall street, as the distance between Provost street (now Franklin street,) and Mr. Cortland's corner, (Exchange Place,) is too great to drop sufficient to carry off the water. Although the Committee recommend the regulation to take place from the corner of the Bridewell, they propose that the pavement should only extend as far as Vesey street, consequently any future regulations must correspond and preserve the uniformity of Broadway, an object they consider of the utmost importance to the beauty of the city, as well as the credit of the Corporation." Which plan was adopted.

Alderman Bayard's Election.

1784.—Nicholas Bayard, was returned elected Alderman of the Out Ward, whereupon, Alderman Ives presented a representation to the Board, setting forth his objections to the eligibility of Mr. Bayard, for the following reasons. That Mr. Bayard, after having left the town, did voluntarily return thereto, enjoyed his property, and held employment under the British government during the war. Second, that upon examination, it will be found that a great number of persons voted at the election who ought not have been permitted to vote.

Mr. Ives' objections were, however, overruled, and Alderman Bayard was admitted to his seat as Alderman.

The Fort.

1789.—The Board having visited the ground at the Fort and Battery, which, by the Legislature, have been reserved for the public use, and for continuing the Broadway through to the river. The Mayor communicated to the Board, that the Governor had proposed to remove as much of the Fort as obstructed the line of the Broadway to the river, at the expense of the State, and signified, that it would be proper for the Corporation to run a wharf or bulkhead in the river, along the Battery, from Ell's corner to the Flat Rock, to receive the earth to be removed from the Fort, and to enlarge the area of the Battery. Whereupon, resolved, that this Board will run a wharf, in manner as above is suggested, and that a Committee be appointed to report the expense.

1790.—Ordered, That Messrs. Torboss, Van Zant and George Jaueway, be appointed Commissioners to superintend the taking down the stone, and removing the earth of the Fort.

Harlem Bridge.

1774.—Colonel Lewis Morris, of the manor of Morrisiana, in Westchester County, made application to this Board, and informed them that the present post-road, between this city and Eastchester, is twenty miles long, and passes over many high and steep hills, which render it very inconvenient. That a road between the places aforesaid, through Harlem, Morrissiana and the borough of Westchester, will be less than sixteen miles over a more level tract of country; that he the said Lewis Morris, and those who are tenants in fee of the soil adjoining Harlem river, through which such road must pass, will bestow upon the public the land which shall be necessary for laying out the same, and that to render the said road really beneficial, it will be requisite to build a bridge across Harlem river, which cannot be affected without the leave and permission of this worshipful Board, first had and obtained, and therefore hoped that this Board would indulge him with a grant and permission of the same.

This Board taking the same into consideration, thereupon ordered, that the said Lewis Morris, have permission, accordingly, to erect a bridge across Harlem river, for the public use only, and not for private enrolment.

VARIAN'S HOUSE.

The dwelling house represented by the engraving on the opposite page, was taken down some ten or fifteen years since to make room for the splendid edifices which now beautify the portion of the city in which it was situated. It was the residence of Isaac Varian, and the birth-place of his children, among whom were ex-Mayor Isaac L. Varian and the present Alderman, George W. Varian, and was occupied by him as his home at the time of his death, a few years since. The farm attached to the property contained about twenty-seven and a half acres, fronting originally on the Bloomingdale road, and covering the blocks within the present limits of Broadway, Twenty-sixth to Thirtieth streets, and extending nearly to the Seventh avenue. The northerly seventeen and a half acres were purchased by Mr. Varian of the executors of John De Witt, to whom the same were conveyed by Jacob Horn in 1751. The southerly ten acres were purchased from Adam Vanderburgh. The property is said to have been in the family about eighty years, and was cultivated as farming land. The old house is said to have shown evidences of having been in part constructed out of a ship's cabin, but from whence this relic was derived, we have no account. The building itself was a noticeable object in late years, when seen from the fashionable drive near which it was situated, partly owing to its humble appearance in the midst of a rapidly improving neighborhood, and partly from the pertinacity evinced by its wealthy occupant, who, although raised to very affluent circumstances by the rise in value of his land, yet clung to the humble homestead of his childhood, where his father had lived before him, until his grasp was released by death.

BROADWAY MODERNIZED.

Those who remember our great city artery twenty years since must, on reflection, often feel surprised, if not delighted, at the many splendid edifices which have been erected within that short period. Nowhere, however, is the change more apparent than from Park row up to Canal street. Most of the quaint looking edifices, erected by our Dutch ancestors, have been torn down, and their sites occupied with lofty structures of marble, brick or brown stone. We present a view of a large building, owned by Dr. Wm. B. Moffat, at the corner of Broadway and Anthony, as it used to be written, but which has changed its cognomen to Worth street. Before the Broadway Theatre was erected, in 1847, there stood on this spot a wooden structure, known to the denizens thereabout as the "Old Porter House." It was torn down the same year the Theatre was opened, and in a very summary manner. The occupant refused to quit after receiving legal notice, and an order of dispossession being granted by a Judge of the Supreme Court; the ground was cleared, in about six hours, of every stick or stone which made up the "Old Porter House," and the new edifice commenced forthwith.

SKETCH OF THE ORIGIN OF THE FIRE DEPARTMENT

OF THE CITY OF NEW YORK, AS AT PRESENT ORGANIZED.

The Firemen of the city of New York form one of the most notable fraternities known in our municipal history, and have become appreciated as a highly efficient organization even in the old cities of Europe. It is but recently, we believe, that the present sagacious Emperor of the French, who had formerly some personal opportunity of witnessing the alacrity of our firemen, complimented them by modeling parts of the dress and regulations of the Paris department upon those of our city. Our department is, besides, the parent stock from which the peculiar genius and spirit which now animate those of other cities and villages in the Union, has been derived. In its own circle, it has become concentrated into a powerful fraternity, banded together for charitable objects toward the widows and orphans of its deceased members, as well as a great organization, operating powerfully for the public good.

Our young men, enjoying the freedom of a participation in public affairs, and called upon for an active contribution toward the general welfare, find in this employment a sphere of co-operation well suited to those who delight in active physical exercise. The excitement, the dangers and (it may be so called) the glory of participation in the salvation of life or property from the devouring element, are attractions well suited to the tastes of this class of our people. Life is boldly ventured in the discharge of the duty, and, not unfrequently, hazards are taken with fatal results to the heroic firemen. In such cases the fraternity honor their deceased associates with ceremonious funeral; raise monuments of the most splendid description to their memory, and their names are recorded in the annals of the department, as men whose memories their friends delight to honor. A history of the deeds of self-sacrifice and disinterested valor, connected with the Fire Department of New York, would, of itself, furnish an instructive lesson equal to many stories of ancient and romantic heroism, with which history is ornamented.

In contemplating the present extensive scheme of our Fire Department, it is curious to go back to those ages of our municipal history, when the first germ of its organization sprung up. Look for instance at that earliest ordinance, adopting a system for the prevention of fires, which reads in these words:

(Translated from the Dutch.)

“Whereas, The Burgomasters of the city of Amsterdam, in New Netherland, have observed that within this city there is but little attention paid to the subject of fire and to the necessity of keeping the chimnies clean, in consequence of which there have already occurred several fires, and further dangers are to be apprehended, from the reason that the greater part of the houses in this town are built of wood, and among them some are covered with reeds and have wooden or platted chimnies: Therefore have we, with the approbation of the Director General and Councillors of New Netherland, appointed as Fire Wardens, Hendrick Hendrickson Kip, Govert Loockerman, and Christian Barents, who are hereby authorized to visit all the houses and chimnies within the city jurisdiction, and to perform their duties as Fire Wardens according to the custom of our fatherland. Done this 26th day of February, 1656.”

This is one of the first acts of the city authorities after the incorporation of New Amsterdam, and is in prosecution of an order to the same effect by the Director General and Council, in 1648. Within a year or two, the resolution was taken to provide buckets at the public expense, of which proceedings the following is the record:

1 August, 1658. Coenraet Ten Eyck, Reinhout Reinhoutzen, Ariaen Van Laer, Pieter Van Haalen, shoemakers, being sent for, appear in the Court of Burgomasters and the President stated to them that it was intended to have a considerable number of fire buckets made, showing them with that view two made in this country, and requesting from them an estimate of the lowest price they will make them for.

“Whereupon, Coenraet Ten Eyck is heard and declared his unwillingness to make a proposition, and Pieter Van Haalen declares there are no materials to be had.

“The Burgomasters thereupon enter into an agreement with Reinhout Reinhoutzen and Ariaen Van Laer on the following conditions, “Reinhoutzen undertakes to make the aforesaid buckets, and to do every thing that shall be necessary to them, except cordage, for each of which buckets he shall receive six guilders, ten stuyvers, half seawant (Indian bead-money) half-beavers (beaver skins which passed current.) It being well understood that the fourth part of the beavers shall be half beavers (beaver skins divided in two parts) and three fourths whole beavers; and upon such terms a contract is entered into with him to make one hundred buckets.

“On the same conditions Arien Van Laer agrees to make fifty buckets.”

Style of Engine used in 1812.

On the completion of the leathern buckets, a few months afterward, the Burgomasters resolved to hang them up in the houses of the following persons:

These primitive efforts at an organization for the prevention and extinguishment of fires, were made at a time when this city was but a village of less than two thousand inhabitants.

It will be seen that as respects the system adopted in anticipation of alarms of fire, the buckets were distributed through the city at convenient places of deposit, which, being made known to the public, they could resort to the most convenient depot without loss of time. There were at that time no other public utensils to assist in extinguishing fires. But in the actual scene of a conflagration, we are of course to fancy the domestic auxiliaries furnished in the shape of tubs, pails, blankets, etc. The firemen were not organized as a body, and the active co-operation of men, women, children and slaves, was counted upon in the emergency; the kitchen poured out its sooty domestics, and the parlor, (if there were such things in those days,) its worthy master and mistress of the household to join in the labor for the common weal. Each property-holder was then his own insurer, and the citizen could not then as now look on the conflagration of his houses, barns and all his worldly property, with the consoling conviction that somebody beside himself was the loser.

This latter circumstance occasioned great care that every precaution should be taken for the prevention of fires, and the “searchers of chimnies,” as they were called, were kept in a constant state of activity in making periodical examinations of the premises through the town. These worthy officers, whose duty led them into those parts of the domestic establishment, where they were not always welcome, and were sometimes, albeit they were men of high personal character, the victims of abuse and ridicule. The following minute of a trial before the court of Burgomasters, exhibits something of the spirit of the times on this subject.

“1658.—Complaint is made of Madaleen Direks, for having presumed to insult the Worshipful Fire-wardens of this city on the public highway, and to make a street riot.

“Defendant Madaleen Direks appears alone in Court, and admits that she and her sister passed by the door of the firewarden Litschoe, and as they always joked when the firewardens came to their house, she said there is the chimney sweep in the door, his chimney is well swept, and not another word was said about it.

The judgment of the Court is, that as such things cannot or ought not to be tolerated, on account of its bad consequences, the defendant is condemned in a fine of two pounds Flemish, to be applied one half to the church and one half to the poor.”

Under this system the city continued during a period of sixty years, with some trifling alterations, such as the following ordinance.

“February, 1687 Whereas great damages have been done by fire in this city by reason of the want of instruments to quench the same; Now, for the prevention thereof it is ordered that every inhabitant within the city, whose dwelling house has two chimnies, shall provide one bucket for that use, and every inhabitant whose dwelling house has more than two hearths shall provide two buckets. That all brewers shall have six buckets and all bakers three.”

After a fire, and the consequent confusion, it was the custom for the town erier to give notice of a general exchange of buckets which had gotten into wrong hands.

Having thus given a general view of the condition of the Fire Police of the city up to that period when fire engines were first introduced in New York, from England, it will be interesting to trace the history of fire engines in the old country.

The oldest machines used for conveying water through a hose, or through pipes, to a fire, are described, by Roman historians, as being leathern bags, filled with water, and fastened to long pipes in such a manner that by pressing the bags the water would be forced through the pipes to the place which was in flames.

In the year 1657 a traveler was struck with admiration, on seeing, at Nuremberg, a fire engine which had been made there by John Hautsch; it stood on a sledge ten feet long and four feet wide; the water cistern was eight feet in length, four in height and two in width. It was moved by twenty-eight men, and forced a stream of water an inch in diameter to the height of eighty feet, consequently over the houses. The machine was drawn by two horses. Hautsch distributed, through Germany, an engraving of it, with an offer of constructing similar ones at a moderate price, and teaching the use of them. But, at this period, the engines were still very imperfect; they had neither an air chamber or buckets, and required a great many men to work them. They consisted merely of a sucking pump and a forcing pump, united, which projected the water only in spirts, and with continual interruption. Such machines, on each movement of the lever, experienced a stoppage, during which no water was thrown out, and the pipe being fixed, it could not convey water to remote places, although it could reach a fire at no great distance where there were doors and windows to afford it a passage; at the same time the workmen were exposed to danger from the falling of the house on fire.

Style of Engine used in 1842.

In England, at the close of the sixteenth century, hand squirts were in use for extinguishing fires. They were made of brass, of the capacity of from two to four quarts. A syringe capable of discharging two quarts of water was about two and a half feet long and one and a half inches in diameter, that of the nozzle being half an inch. Every syringe required three men to work it; one man on each side, grasped two of the handles of the instrument with one hand and the nozzle with the other, while a third man worked the piston, or plunger. Several of these instruments are still preserved in some of the museums at London.

Newsham's engine was patented in England in the early part of the last century, and continued in use in that country until the year 1832, when the insurance offices in London having combined in forming a general fire engine establishment, adopted an improved form of engine.

Newshem's engine consisted, essentially, of a strong oak cistern, about three times as long as it was broad, mounted upon four wheels. The pump and air vessel were inclosed in a case, from the top of which issued the jet-pipe. The suction pipe was of strong leather, with a spiral piece of leather running throughout its length, to prevent it from collapsing as soon as the air within it became rarified by the first working of the pump. One extremity of this pipe was secured to a nozzle at the lower end of the cistern, the other extremity being furnished with a strainer immersed in the water. In cases where the suction pipe could not be used, water was poured, by means of buckets, into a wooden trough, furnished with a strainer, from whence it passed into the cistern. A three-way cock, situated beneath the hinder trough, was turned according as the water was drawn through the suction pipe or was poured in by hand. The piston rods were connected by chains with a double sector. There were two chains to each piston, one passing from the top of the sector to the lower end of the piston rod; the other from the top of the piston rod to the bottom of the sector. The chains were riveted to the sector, and attached to the piston rod by screw nuts. Long handles, connected with the sectors, could be worked on each side; with such an engine the water could be thrown, in a continuous jet, to the height of sixty or seventy feet, and with such a velocity as to break windows. The engine was successful on its first introduction. Its reputation found its way to New York, and the city authorities, in the year 1731, resolved to import two of these machines from London. From this period may be dated the origin of the Fire Department of this city, as at present organized.

The following extracts exhibit the proceedings of the city authorities on the first organization of an enrolled Fire Department.

“May 6, 1731. Resolved, That this Corporation do, with all convenient speed, procure two complete fire engines, with suction and materials thereunto belonging, for the public service. That the sizes thereof be of the fourth and sixth sizes of Mr. Newsham’s fire engines, and that Mr. Mayor, Alderman Cruger, Alderman Rutgers and Alderman Roosevelt, or any three of them, be a committee to agree with some proper merchant or merchants to send to London for the same by the first conveniency, and report upon what terms the said fire engines, &c., will be delivered to this Corporation.”

“June 12, 1731. The Committee appointed to procure two fire engines for the use of this Corporation, do report that they have proposed to Messrs. Stephen Delancey and John Moore, merchants, to send for two fire engines to London, by the ship Beaver, of Mr. Newsham’s new invention, of the fourth and sixth sizes, with suction, leathern pipes and caps, and other materials thereunto belonging; and that the said Mr. Delancey and Mr. Moore will undertake to purchase and procure the same, and deliver them to this Corporation on the return of the said ship Beaver to this Port, at the rate of one hundred and twenty per cent. advance on the foot of the invoice (exclusive of commissions and insurance) and that the money be paid for the same within nine months after the delivery thereof. Which report is approved, and ordered the said Committee agree with the said Mr. Delancey and Mr. Moore for the said fire engines accordingly.”

“December 1, 1731. Ordered that Alderman Van Gelder and Alderman Roosevelt be a Committee to employ workmen to fit up a convenient room in the City Hall of this city, for securing the fire engines of this Corporation, with expedition." "And further ordered, that the said fire engines be cleaned and the leathers oiled and put into boxes that the same may be fit for immediate use."

"April 15, 1736. Ordered that a convenient house be made, contiguous to the Watch-house in the Broad street, for securing and well keeping the fire engines of this city."

Style of Engine built in 1855.

"The Committee appointed 24th January, 1735, for agreeing with an overseer of the fire engines, &c., have made their report in the words following, to wit: In obedience thereto we have agreed with Jacobus Turk, gunsmith, to take care of the fire engines from the 1st day of May, 1736, for one whole year to keep them clean and in good repair, upon his own cost, for the sum of ten pounds per annum, 'except some of the material should give way, which should be upon the cost of the Corporation.'

"Which report is agreed to, and further ordered that the sum of Ten pounds be advanced to said Jacobus Turk to enable him to go on with finishing a small fire engine he is making for an experiment."

October 19, 1737.—Ordered, That the legislature be petitioned that leave be granted the Corporation to appoint four and twenty able-bodied men, inhabitants, within this city, (who shall be called the firemen of this city,) to work and play the fire engines within the same, upon all occasions and emergencies, when they shall be thereunto required by the overseer of the said engines or the magistrates of the said city; and that the said firemen,

Governor of the State of New York in Council
- ca. No. 2. - &c. &c.

May it please your Excellency

As the Change of Government has now taken place on the Arrival of your Excellency in this City - We the Fire Engines of the several Fire Engines and Companies belonging to the same, beg leave to lay before your Excellency, the State and Condition of the Fire Engines &c. - as also of the several Companies and Members of Men now belonging to the same.

We further beg leave to represent to your Excellency that the Fire Engines with the other implements belonging, were before the late Fire all in good Condition and the Companies under good Order and Regulations; And as there are at present a number of Iron Buckets wanting and also some Pumping to be done (occasioned by the late Fire) to the several apparatus belonging to the Engines, which require immediate dispatch, not knowing how soon they may be wanted - We think it our duty and therefore take this early Opportunity to represent this matter to your Excellency, as the safety and preservation of this Metropolitan at Times depend greatly in keeping the Engines in good Order -

We no less have to inform your Excellency that

We hold our Commission's Sincerity and Devotion, under the late Governor Robertson, and are happy to say we always gain'd applause from the Citizens for Our good Conduct in the alarming time of Fire

A LAW FOR REGULATING AND DECLARING THE DUTY OF FIREMEN IN THE CITY OF NEW YORK.

September 19, 1738.—Whereas, By an act of the General Assembly of this colony, made in the eleventh year of his present majesty's reign, entitled "an act for the better extinguishment of fires that may happen in the city of New York," among other things it is thereby enacted, that it shall and may be lawful to and for the Mayor, Aldermen and Commonalty of the said city, to make rules for the government of persons nominated as firemen, and to impose fines upon them for neglect of duty. Therefore, be it ordained :

First.—That when fires, happen within this city, the firemen, upon first notice thereof, shall repair to the engines and draw them to the fire, and there, under direction of the magistrates or the engineer or overser of the engines, "shall, with their utmost diligence, manage, work and play the said fire engines, and all other tools and instruments, at such fire, with all their power, strength, skill and understanding," and when the fire is out shall draw the engine back.

Second.—Any fireman, absent from a fire, without reasonable excuse, to be fined twelve shillings.

Third.—Once in each month the firemen are to exercise the engines, and wash and cleanse them.

Fourth.—Any person taking upon himself the office of fireman and neglecting his duty, to be removed from office.

Fifth.—The firemen shall be exempt from serving as constable, surveyor of highways, juror, or on inquests, or serving in the militia or any of the independent companies.

Sixth.—The fines upon the firemen to be disposed of, one-half to the informer, the other half to the city.

for, and the other the Honourable for the temporary Government of our glorious revolution.

We therefore most earnestly request, that your Honors will be pleased to take their case into consideration, and that it may be, to make an ordinance, authorizing the Memorialists who either occupied, rented, or leased their houses in 1776, from persons who have either remained, or returned from the enemy's lines, to repossess the same upon their own account, and directing that such houses as are part of the public property be appropriated, until the Legislature shall otherwise direct, for the better accommodation of your Memorialists; and that you will be pleased to direct the methods and means of providing houses for the same, with a due sense of their merits, their necessity, and their distress.

We request as much as possible those irregularities and inconveniences which on such an occasion may be apprehended, as well as the assistance of the citizens, your Memorialists beg leave further to request, that a competent number of prudent persons may be appointed by your Honorable Board for the purpose of distributing the same, and that such ordinance as your Honorable Board shall think proper to make in pursuance of your Memorialists, who as in duty bound,

September 1, 1783.

Wm. L. Garrison

To His Excellency GEORGE CLINTON, Esquire, Governor, and the other the Honourable Members composing the Board, constituted by Law for the temporary Government of the Southern District of the State:

THE MEMORIAL of the Subscribers, in Behalf of themselves and others, the REFUGEE CITIZENS of

NEW-YORK :

HUMBLE SHEWETH,

THAT your Memorialists were among the first of the citizens of America, who in the early stages of British usurpation, asserted their rights as free men; and who openly contended against the unconstitutional and arbitrary measures which were adopted and pursued by the King and Parliament of Britain, to reduce the inhabitants of this continent to the abject state of unconditional submission, to such exercises of power as their aversion or ambition might dictate. And your Memorialists, after a series of unavailing applications to the British court for redress, can also ascribe to themselves the honour of making the first overtures to their then sister colonies for establishing that union among themselves, which, under the protection of Divine Providence, has proved the happy means of their common preservation; and which has enabled them, with such unparalleled success, to repel the powerful exertions of an exasperated enemy, and to clothe the hazardous contest by compelling even that bloody enemy to acknowledge these United States as a free, sovereign and independent nation.

That your Memorialists, conscious of the rectitude of their intentions, the justice and importance of the cause in which they were engaged, stimulated by the most sacred regard for the civil and religious liberties of their country, and possessing the fullest dependence upon the honour, the exertions, and support of their fellow sufferers, citizens and countrymen, to solemnly promised and pledged by voluntary associations, declaring to the world, that at every hazard, expense and danger, they would defend and maintain their rights against every invader.—Governed by such motives, and depending in such assurances, your Memorialists in demonstration of the purity of their professions, most cheerfully abandoned their comfortable habitations, their property, and many of their every means of support, upon the approach of the British armament to this State in the year 1776. Perhaps too sanguinely reasoning from the dictates of their own hearts, that a people on whose generosity and gratitude they were thus confidentially depending, and for whose safety, interest and cause they were thus fully devoting themselves, would receive them with the most cordial expressions of friendship, favour and esteem.

At this period, and in the most delicate and diversified circumstances, commenced the various, aggravated and severe hardships, which, in the course of a few years exile, your Memorialists have experienced; and, notwithstanding of which, animated by the hope of being eventually successful in the great cause in which they had embarked: they have on all occasions, with fortitude and firmness, continued to manifest their zeal and perseverance, by contributing according to their power and opportunity, whatever has been required from them in common with others, for public use or service: Patiently, though anxiously waiting for that happy day, which would relieve them from such mortifying scenes of misery, by restoring them triumphantly to their native city with liberty and peace.

Such having been the conduct, the fortitudes, and the sufferings of your Memorialists, through the tedious periods of the war, there can be but few among all the citizens of America who have more real cause of rejoicing at the auspicious prospect of an honourable peace.—But when they reflect upon the present circumstances of the city, and compare them with their own:—When they remember that a very considerable part of it is reduced to ashes, and the residue in the occupation of adherents to the British government, and followers of the British army, possessed, not only of all the advantages derived from trade and business of every kind, but also of wealth and influence to secure those advantages to themselves.—Your Memorialists would be filled with the most painful and alarming apprehensions for their future means of subsistence and support, were they not comforted by the confidence and trust which they repose in the justice and wisdom of that government, which they have done so much to establish.

Your Memorialists have derived great satisfaction and encouragement from the provident measures adopted by the Legislature, which under prudent limitations, constitutes a temporary government for the southern district of the State, especially as they flatter themselves that a generous attention to the state and circumstances of the dispersed and unfortunate citizens of New-York, as a principal end, dictated the expediency and propriety of this judicious and necessary act. And your Memorialists, possessing the same confidence in the justice, generosity and wisdom of your Honourable Board, entreat no doubt but that you will be equally disposed to take your Memorialists under your immediate protection and favour, and to exert the powers with which you are invested for the purpose of promoting their speedy and effectual re-establishment, as far as may be practicable, in their former habitations, or in as comfortable a manner as the reduced condition of the city will permit.

Reduced in property, and destitute as many of your Memorialists are, and notwithstanding they have devoted to many years of the most valuable part of their lives to the common cause of their country, yet they never would think themselves warranted to solicit the interposition of your Honourable Board for their interest or accommodation in any instance where their application or claims would operate against the true interest of the State at large, or with the rights of those who were entitled to the favour of government; but your Memorialists are fully persuaded that when the merits of their present requests are dispassionately and impartially investigated, the most ample demonstrations of attachment, perseverance and zeal, through all the vicissitudes of the arduous contest; and that on the other hand, those who are in possession of the city have prerogatives, with equal perseverance, exerted themselves to support our enemy and to defeat the measures which have been pursued for the preservation of our lives, liberty, and the establishment of our freedom and independence; nor can there be a doubt, but that exasperated by their disappointment and disgrace, they will retain the same vindictive rage and enmity against our happy condition and government; and intimidated by their unconquerable prejudices, will exert every means in their power to attempt their ruinous. And when it is considered how far the insiduous, principles and examples of the citizens of the metropolis prevail through the remote parts of the State, there can be little doubt about the policy of guarding against the dangerous effects which so reasonably might be apprehended from allowing the wily insidians and suffering the capital of the State to remain an asylum for the dissipated, and a nursery of Tory principles.

Having thus freely, but they hope, with becoming respect, stated to your Honourable Board the peculiar embarrassments and difficulties of your present situation; and also taken the liberty to suggest such arguments as they truth, will sufficiently vindicate the justice and propriety of their claims: your Memorialists leave to represent, that many of them were tenants, and rented houses either by the year, or upon lease for a term of years, which they abandoned, and with the American army retired from the city in the fall of the year 1776. That others of your Memorialists occupied houses their own property, which, since the enemy have had possession of the city, are consumed by fire, and that comparatively, there are but very few of those citizens who withdrew from New-York upon the approach of the enemy, who have either the means or prospect of being able to procure a covering for their families upon their return, especially as in their present circumstances, they cannot afford to pay such extravagant rents as are demanded by the proprietors, particularly by those who have adhered to the enemy or remained within their power and protection during the war, and which are frequently given by dissipated and dissipated, as your Memorialists apprehend, thereby to gain a residence and establishment in the place.

Under such a complication of difficulties, your Memorialists are constrained to present their case and claims to your Honourable Board:—They again declare that they wish for nothing incompatible with the rights of whig citizens, or which would embarrass government in their decisions; and they flatter themselves, that while they only claim to be provided for, as faithful and zealous citizens and subjects, in preference to those who have been open and avowed enemies, their applications will neither be deemed unreasonable, nor rejected by a government convinced of the truth of the facts which they assert, and friendly to the principles of our glorious revolution.

Your Memorialists do therefore most earnestly request, that your Honourable Board will be pleased to take their case into consideration, and as soon as conveniently may be, to make an ordinance, authorizing such of your Memorialists who either occupied, rented, or leased houses in the year 1776, from persons who have either remained, or removed within the enemy's lines, to repossess the same upon their return to the city. Also directing that such houses as are part of confiscated estates be appropriated, until the Legislature shall otherwise determine for the further accommodation of your Memorialists; and prescribing such other methods and means of providing houses for the Refugee Citizens as a due sense of their merits, their necessity, and your wisdom may suggest.

And in order to prevent as much as possible the irregularities and confusions, which on such an occasion may be apprehended, as well as for the convenience of the citizens, your Memorialists beg leave further to request, that a competent number of prudent persons may be appointed by your Honourable Board for the purpose of distributing the houses, agreeable to such ordinance as your Honourable Board shall please to pass in favour of your Memorialists, who as in duty bound, shall ever pray, &c.

THE PUBLIC LIBRARIES OF NEW YORK.

BY R. G. HORTON.

Probably no institutions in this city are so justly a matter of pride to its citizens as its public libraries. They mark the increasing attention given to scientific and literary pursuits, and their support and encouragement afford a fair criterion whereby to judge of the intelligence of the people among whom they are founded. To be sure, we cannot boast of any such gigantic collections of books as do many cities of Europe, nor are our library-rooms fitted up in such a style of magnificence as those of the ancients are represented to have been, the floors of which are said to have been paved with marble, their walls covered with glass and ivory, and their shelves and desks composed of ebony and cedar, though it may be justly claimed that we are closely approximating this sumptuous degree of elegance in some of the library edifices recently erected in our city. When we consider, however, that modern libraries have all sprang up in the space of less than four hundred years, and also remember the stern battles our forefathers were compelled to fight to wring from an uncultivated soil a scanty subsistence, we are surprised that we have developed that degree of literary taste, of which so many library institutions furnish a convincing proof.

In the beginning of the fourteenth century, the library of Louis IX. contained only four classical authors; and that of Oxford, in England, in 1300, consisted of a few tracts, kept in a chest. In 1316, an old abbot died in Germany, who had amassed about two thousand manuscripts, a literary treasure which excited such general attention, that princes and eminent men of that day traveled very far to visit it. But the multiplication of books by the art of printing worked a wonderful change in respect to the extent of all libraries, both public and private. The Paris National Library is said to contain 824,000 volumes; Munich Royal, 600,000; St. Petersburg Imperial, 446,000; Copenhagen Royal, 412,000; Gottengen University, 360,000; Berlin Royal, 500,000; and the London British Museum, 490,000. From a calculation made by an English author, we learn, that computing the books in the various libraries of the minor states of Germany, there are 450 books to every one hundred of the population; in Denmark, 412; in Prussia, 200; in Hungary, 167; in Russia, 75; in Great Britain, from 63 to 53. The very small position which England holds, and even which the United States would undoubtedly hold in comparison to the continental states, in respect to the extent of their public libraries, may appear, at first glance, improbable. But in England, as well as in this country, books are doubtless more generally distributed among the population, while on the Continent they are more usually confined to the libraries. But one feature of the public libraries of Europe deserves particular notice and commendation; they are nearly all free. In France there are 107. In Paris alone there are 7, in Vienna 3, in Florence 6, but in London, up to 1850, there were none. Since that time efforts have been made to establish some, and, we believe, have succeeded; the Marylebone and Finsbury being the most prominent ones. In 1853 a free library was opened at Bolton. One was also opened in Liverpool, on the 18th of October, 1852, with 13,456 volumes to commence with. The other free libraries in England are at Manchester—Chetham's Library, founded nearly three hundred years ago, and the Free Library, established in 1851.

If we are asked to point to our free libraries we can, with pride, refer to that munificent monument of private liberality, the Astor Library, or, if more is asked, we may, with equal satisfaction, call attention to the 11,748 Public School Libraries of our State, containing, in the aggregate, according to the last report of the Superintendent of Public Instruction, no less than 1,505,370 volumes. Nothing like this has yet been attempted in any country, if we except the effort made to establish libraries for teachers in France. There can be no doubt that in small collections and general diffusion of books, the United States is ahead of any country in the world. If we compare the different cities of Europe, as regards the number of books they contain, with New York, "the Empire City" is shorn of its laurels. In 1848 Paris contained 1,474,000 volumes in her public libraries, while the aggregate number in our own city, at present, as we have ascertained it, falls short of 350,000. This is higher than it has ever before been estimated, Norton's Literary Register, for 1854, putting the number at 295,000. The same author gave the number of volumes in the libraries of Boston, as 150,000; Philadelphia, 238,000; Providence, 69,300, and Albany, 87,000. New York has only fairly commenced her career of intellectual greatness. Most of the more prominent libraries have for years been laboring under severe financial embarrassments, and these difficulties have been augmented, in some cases, recently, by the building of new edifices, indispensable for their proper accommodation. Through the generous liberality of our citizens the darkest days of many of these institutions have been passed, and there is now before them a brilliant career of usefulness and prosperity. In the details which follow, it will not be wholly uninteresting to watch the steps a young but mighty city has made in the attention it has bestowed upon letters. The charge is too often made, that we have neglected learning, and that the prodigious development of the physical capacities of our country has excluded advancement in the more polite and genial accomplishments of literature. This assertion is easily disproved by facts, for, considering the difficulties we have been forced to encounter, it is doubtful whether any people ever made an equal advancement in the same space of time with ourselves, either in bibliography, science, or art. In the list of libraries we have noticed, there are some which do not come under the designation of public, but we have chosen to include them, in order to give a general glance at the attention which has been paid to the collection of books in our city. Besides those we have enumerated, there are several parish, church and circulating libraries, in addition to which, many of the Ward Schools have considerable collections of books for the use of the scholars.

THE ASTOR LIBRARY.

While the other libraries of our city have been collected together by the laborious care of years, the Astor Library is a sudden monument of generous munificence. John Jacob Astor, its founder, is too well known to require at our hands an extended notice. An uninterrupted residence in this city of over sixty years, where, by uncommon business talents, he had acquired a colossal fortune, made him not only well known here, but rendered his reputation world-wide. The history of the Astor Library commences with the clause in his will establishing it, which is as follows:

“Desiring to render a public benefit to the city of New York, and to contribute to the advancement of useful knowledge and the general good of society, I do, by this codicil, appropriate four hundred thousand dollars out of my residuary estate to the establishment of a public library in the city of New York.” By the same instrument this sum is to be applied and disposed of

“First, in the erecting of a suitable building for a public library.

“Second, in furnishing and supplying the same, from time to time, with books, maps, charts, drawings, paintings, engravings, casts, statues, furniture, and other things appertaining to a library for general use, upon the most ample scale and liberal character.

“Third, in maintaining and upholding the buildings and other property, and in defraying the necessary expenses of taking care of the property and of the accommodation of persons consulting the library.

“The said sum shall be payable, one-third in the year after my decease, one-third in the year following, and the residue in equal sums in the fourth and fifth years.

“The said library to be accessible at all reasonable hours and times for general use, free of expense to persons resorting thereto, subject only to such control and regulations as the trustees may, from time to time, exercise and establish for general convenience.

“The affairs of the institution shall be conducted by eleven trustees, to be, from time to time, selected from the different liberal professions and employments in life, and the classes of educated men.

“All the property and effects of the institution shall be vested in the said trustees. They shall have power to direct the expenditure of the funds, the investment, safe keeping and management thereof, and of the property and effects of the institution; also, to make such ordinances and regulations, from time to time, as they may think proper for the good order and convenience of those who may resort to the library or use the same; also, to appoint, direct, control and remove the superintendent of the library, and all librarians and others employed about the institution; and, also, they shall have and use all powers and authority for promoting the expressed objects of this institution, not contrary to what is herein expressed."

Other clauses in the will fix the site of the library edifice, limit its cost to seventy-five thousand dollars, exclusive of the lot; authorize an expenditure of one hundred and twenty thousand dollars in the purchase of books and for other purposes, and direct the residue to be invested as a permanent fund for its maintenance and gradual increase.

Something was done toward collecting books for the library previous to Mr. Astor's death, in 1848. The first purchase was made in 1839, at the sale of Major Douglass' books, and those formed the nucleus of the present gigantic collection. Mr. Astor, himself, purchased Audubon's Birds of America, the only work in the library of which the same remark can be made. Not more than 1,000 volumes, however, were bought previous to the death of its founder, and the collecting of books cannot be really said to have commenced until about nine months after his decease. In October, 1848, Dr. J. G. Cogswell, who had been selected by the trustees as librarian, was authorized to go to Europe and expend twenty thousand dollars in the purchase of books. He visited London, Paris and Brussels, and obtained a valuable collection of books, many of which were purchased at the auction sale of the Duke of Buckingham's large library in the first-mentioned city. The collection now numbered about 20,000 volumes, which were placed temporarily in a house in Bond street, rented by the trustees for that purpose. In 1851 the librarian again visited Europe and obtained about 25,000 volumes more. The next year he again returned to Europe, and collected nearly 20,000 volumes more, making now a total of some 75,000 or 80,000 volumes.

During the time occupied in collecting the books the library edifice in Lafayette place had been in the course of erection. The corner-stone was laid on the 14th of March, 1850, and the entire building was completed in July, 1853. By December of the same year the books were arranged on the shelves, and ready for use. On the 9th of January, 1854, the library was opened for inspection, and on the 1st of February finally thrown open to the public for use.

The Astor Library cannot be said, strictly speaking, to be a popular one, that is, the books do not consist of ephemeral works of fiction. It is intended as a library for reference and study, embracing works in all languages. Three of its most distinctive features are Scandinavian and Oriental literature, and the transactions of learned societies. There has been added to these, by the liberality of W. B. Astor, Esq., son of the founder, a special department, devoted to the industrial arts. It proves a valuable and important addition to the institution.

The library is perfectly free to visitors. Small tickets are used, upon which the applicant is required to write the title of the book wanted, and deliver it to the attendant. On the reverse of these tickets are the following regulations:

“ASTOR LIBRARY REGULATIONS.”

- “1. The library is open every day, except Sundays and established holidays, from 10 A.M., until half an hour before sunset.
- “2. Admission free to all persons over sixteen years of age.
- “3. When a book is wanted, its title is to be written on this ticket, with the name of the applicant. The ticket is then to be given to an attendant, who will look out the book, if in the library, and put it into the hands of the reader without delay.
- “4. Readers must return their books before leaving the library, and take back their tickets, otherwise they continue responsible for the books.
- “5. No one is allowed to enter the alcoves, or remove a book from its place, unless accompanied by an officer of the library.
- “6. Readers wishing to consult costly works of art, must make special application for that purpose.
- “7. In taking notes from books, pencils, not pen and ink, are to be used.
- “8. Smoking strictly forbidden in any part of the library.”

The library building is erected in the style of the royal palaces of Florence, and presents a very elegant and imposing appearance. It is one hundred and twenty feet in length by sixty-five wide. The library hall on the second floor is one hundred and fifty feet in length by sixty in width, and fifty in height. It is surmounted by a grand sky-light, fifty-four feet long by fourteen broad, and formed of thick glass, set in iron. Upon each side of the room are the alcoves, which being open front and rear, afford great space for books. On the first floor are the lecture and reading rooms, the latter being located on each side of the building, while the lecture room is in the rear. The entire edifice is probably the best constructed and the most admirably adapted for the purpose for which it was intended, of any in our country. Joseph G. Cogswell, LL.D., Librarian.

THE NEW YORK SOCIETY LIBRARY.

The Rev. John Sharp, chaplain to the Earl of Bellamont, Governor of the province of New York, is believed to have been the founder, in the year 1700, of “the Public Library of New York,” from which the present institution originated. In 1729, the English Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts, presented to the city of New York the library bequeathed to them by the Rev. Dr. Millington, Rector of Newington. Both of these collections appear to have been known for several years under the name of the Corporation Library. But after the death of Rev. John Sharp, that efficient care which it had received from the outset was not bestowed upon it, and it fell into disuse and neglect. At length, in 1754, a number of gentlemen organized themselves into a society and founded the present institution. The Corporation Library, above alluded to, having been closed for some time, on account of mismanagement, a resolution was adopted, giving the Society Library the charge of it, and also the privilege of depositing their own collection with it, in the City Hall. From this time the library increased and prospered. In 1772, a charter was granted to it by King George III, and, in the language of the instrument, sundry persons, "who conceived a public library would be useful as well as ornamental, to our said city of New York," were constituted a corporate body, under the name of the "New York Society Library." There are enumerated in this charter, as members at that time, twenty-eight esquires, twenty merchants, three gentlemen, two distillers, one D.D., one printer, one apothecary, one surgeon, and one widow.

Upon the reorganization of the library, valuable books were imported, and the collection soon became an important one for that early day. But the revolutionary war dispelled all the flattering prospects of its usefulness, and the members were driven from their homes by the disasters which attended the American arms. The records were closed, and its books, which were deposited in the old City Hall in Broad street, fell a prey to the fortune of war. Upon the testimony of Mr. John Pintard, it is stated that the enemy's soldiers, then in possession of the town, were in the habit of lugging off knapsack loads of books to barter for grog!

The confusion of the times almost destroyed the library. For fourteen years, or from the last Tuesday in April, 1774, to the 21st of December, 1788, no meeting of the trustees was held. At that time, the following gentlemen were chosen trustees: Hon. Robert R. Livingston, Robert Watts, Brockholst Livingston, Samuel Jones, Peter Kettletas, Walter Rutherford, Mathew Clarkson, Samuel Bard, Hugh Gainé, Daniel C. Verplanck, Edward Griswold, and Henry Remsen. The next year, the old charter was revived, and the society once more commenced the collection of books. In 1793, a building of considerable elegance for the time, was erected in Nassau street, near Liberty; and here, for a long time, the society continued, increasing its collection, and affording to the public an agreeable and advantageous place of resort. At length the pressure of commercial demands drove the society to seek new quarters, and in 1836, the property in Nassau street was sold. In 1838, the New York Athenæum was merged into the Society Library.

The library removed to temporary rooms in the Mechanics' Society's building, in Chambers street, where it continued until the new building in Broadway, corner of Leonard street, was erected, in which the institution was finally established in 1840. In 1849, the society received a bequest of $5,000 from Mrs. Demilt. The brief period of a dozen years barely elapsed, when the society found itself again obliged to change its location, and remove to the upper or dwelling part of the city. It found temporary accommodations at the Bible Rooms in Astor Place. A lot of ground, however, one hundred and four by seventy feet, was immediately purchased in University place, between Twelfth and Thirteenth streets, and a new library building commenced in April, 1855.

The new edifice has fifty-two feet front, leaving a space unoccupied on each side, so as to give light by windows to the interior. Toward the rear, however, the building spreads out and covers the whole width of the lot. The front is in the Italian style of architecture. The entrance is ornamented with coupled Corinthian pilasters, supporting the entablature over which is a balustrade inclosing a small balcony. The door is surrounded by an architrave with keystone. The wall is faced with ashlar, with horizontal grooves cut into it, and supports a cornice. Above the first story is a pedestal, on which rest the piers and window ornaments. The angles of the piers have rustic quoins running up to the cornice at the top of the building. The windows in the side divisions are ornamented architraves and pilasters supporting consols, which in turn support the cornice and pediment. The middle window contains a triple window with Corinthian pilasters and entablature, in the frieze of which is the inscription "Founded A. D. 1751." Over the windows are stone panels. Those in the side divisions are filled with ornaments. The one over the middle window contains the name of the building, "Society Library." The walls are faced with fine bricks above, which is a massive entablature of iron consisting of an architrave, frieze and cornice, over which is a continued balustrade between pedestals.

On entering the front door, the visitor finds himself in a hall forty-seven feet long and twelve wide, handsomely paved with tessellated pavement. On the left hand is a comfortable room for a ladies' reading room, sixteen feet by thirty. A similar room on the right is used as a conversation room. At the end of the hall are folding doors opening into the large reading room, thirty-one feet by seventy-three, well lighted and well furnished with papers and periodicals. In the hall, near the entrance to the large reading room, an easy flight of stairs leads to the library, which offers to view a noble apartment, thirty-five feet high, and taking in the whole depth and width of the building, having pleasant and quiet alcoves below, with two galleries rising above and receding as they rise, leading the eye up to the oblong dome of the roof, that with its fine large skylight sends down a flood of light on all below. The galleries are also divided into alcoves, and the whole building most conveniently and comfortably arranged, affording room for 100,000 volumes.

The first catalogue (octavo, ninety-nine pages,) of this library was published in 1793; others were published in 1813, 1838 and 1850. The catalogue of 1850, the last one, is a well arranged work, and was prepared by Mr. P. J. Forbes, late librarian. The library now numbers about 40,000 volumes, a few manuscripts of modern date, maps and charts of great value, a few sheets of ancient church music on vellum, numerous collections of engravings, a small but beautiful collection of bronze medals, one set of casts of the Elgin marbles, forty-eight in number, and one set of Waterloo medals, fifty in number. One of the most curious collections of books in the library, is one of about 275 volumes, presented to the society by the late Francis B. Winthrop, formerly the property of his ancestor, John Winthrop, first governor of Connecticut. They relate chiefly to alchemy and magic, including books in regard to the Rosicrucians. A very important feature of the library is its extensive files of newspapers, both of the present and last century. No library has taken more pains to obtain and preserve these daily records of current events. Their great utility for reference, both for public and private affairs, is demonstrated almost daily. The collection of historical and biographical works, and also that of voyages and travels, is full, interesting and important. The number of French and Italian works is also considerable—the latter having been mostly presented to the society some years since by Mr. Du Ponte.

The library is open daily, (Sundays excepted,) from eight, A.M., until sunset. The reading rooms are open until ten, P.M.

Persons entitled to the use of the library are, members who pay twenty-five dollars for a right, and then six dollars per annum, or the annual payments can be commuted for seventy-five dollars, making a free share cost one hundred dollars. Temporary subscribers, ten dollars per year. Strangers may be introduced and enjoy the use of books, reading room, &c., for one month.* John MacMullen, Librarian.

THE MERCANTILE LIBRARY ASSOCIATION.

This association arose out of a very obvious public necessity. Young men who enter the mercantile business almost always do so at a comparatively early age, and before they have had time to enjoy that mental training so absolutely necessary to any degree of general intelligence. After they go "behind the counter," it is impossible for them to receive the usual advantages of a school; and that very important period of a young man's life which is usually denominated "the teens," is more than likely, unless some particular influence draws him out, to be passed in slothful indifference as regards all attempts at literary attainments. There may be individual instances, as those of Sherman and Franklin, where a love of study has been so powerful as to rise superior to the ordinary transactions of life; but the majority of mankind are not so—they need some stimulus to animate the wavering desire for knowledge; and in a large city where innumerable inducements for recreation and amusements exist, this is emphatically true.

* The writer is indebted to John MacMullen, Esq., and P. J. Forbes, Esq., for a portion of the foregoing sketch; also, to Robert Mook, Esq., architect, for the description of the new library building.

The Mercantile Library Association owes its origin to a desire on the part of a few energetic, public spirited individuals to afford the advantages of a reading-room and circulating library to the merchants' clerks of this city, thereby furnishing both an opportunity and, by the interest which pride, if nothing else, would compel them to take in its success, an incentive to mental cultivation.

The first public meeting of merchants' clerks, as we learn from the reports of the association, for the purpose of considering the expediency of establishing a library and reading-room, was held on the 9th of November 1820. A constitution was adopted and officers elected at a subsequent meeting, on the 27th of the same month. The library was opened on the 12th of February, 1821, in a room at No. 49 Fulton street, and contained at that time 700 volumes. The number of subscribers at the end of the first year was 175, and the volumes had increased to 1000.

The early years of the institution were years of great difficulties and embarrassments. It was indeed an undertaking which required considerable perseverance, and one, too, surrounded with more than ordinary difficulties, for a body of individuals, without capital, to establish a library of any influence or extent. To add to this inconvenience, which, however, was one that its founders anticipated, there was another which they had not the least idea of meeting. This was the opposition of a large number of merchants, who fancied that the attention of clerks to the library would interfere with their obligations to their employers. This narrow-minded notion gave rise to more or less hostility among merchants, and nothing but the practical working of the institution, and the spread of more liberal and enlightened views, overcome the stupid and ridiculous prejudices.

In 1825, special efforts were made to increase the library and extend its usefulness. The first catalogue was published in this year, and so prosperously were its affairs progressing, that the next year it was removed to more spacious apartments in Cliff street, where a reading-room was first established. In 1827, lectures were commenced, and have since become one of the most popular features of the institution. In February, 1828, at a meeting of the prominent merchants who felt interested in the success of the association, it was agreed to raise by subscription a sum sufficient for the erection of a building for the permanent accommodation of the library. The contributors formed themselves into a company called "The Clinton Hall Association," and $33,500 were raised during the year, in sums varying from $1000 to $100. A building was erected on the corner of Beekman and Nassau street, and, under the name of Clinton Hall, was dedicated on the 2d of November, 1830, with appropriate ceremonies, to literature and science. The entire cost of land and building was about $55,000. The Clinton Hall Association stands in the relation of a guardian to the Mercantile Library Association, the latter being assured of a full and perpetual ownership of the property as effectually as if the title were in its own corporate name. The library, when removed to the new building, numbered 6,000 volumes.

In the new location, the library prospered as rapidly as its most sanguine friends anticipated, and although it labored under some embarrassments, yet the debt on the building was gradually liquidated, until the last payment was made in the year 1852. At this time the growth of the library had rendered the accommodation in Nassau street altogether too limited; a large number of books could not be properly placed upon shelves, the reading-room was small, and the encroachments of business which had driven private residences "up-town" seemed to imperatively demand that the library should follow the example. Early in 1853, steps were taken for obtaining a new site, which resulted in the purchase of the Italian Opera House, in Astor place, at a cost of $140,000. The property in Nassau street was sold for $100,000. The Opera house was not entirely demolished, but it was necessary to give it a thorough and complete remodeling, the cost of which somewhat exceeded $100,000. To meet this large expenditure, beyond the means of the association, new stock was issued, which was liberally subscribed for by the merchants of the city. On the first of January last the debt on the building was $75,000, but efforts were being made to get the amount subscribed, and with good prospects of success. When the association is free from debt, the library will have an annual income, arising from the rents of those portions of the building not occupied for library purposes, of $10,000, which must be expended in adding to the collection of books.

The new Clinton Hall is one of the best appointed and most commodious library edifice in the city. In the basement is a lecture room, easily accessible and well ventilated, capable of seating 1,100 persons. The reading-room is on the second floor, 60 feet wide and 90 feet long, agreeably lighted on two sides. The library is on the third and fourth stories, the principal room being on the third; it is elliptical in form, surrounded by Corinthian columns, surmounted by a dome, and has room for the accommodation of 120,000 volumes. The other part of the building, not rented, is occupied by the class-rooms, committee rooms, &c. On the 19th of April, 1854, the first load of books left the old quarters in Nassau street for the new edifice, and on the 8th of June following, the announcement was made that Clinton Hall, in Astor place, would be inaugurated on that evening by appropriate ceremonies, at the Church of the Puritans in Union Square. Addresses were delivered by His Excellency, Governor Seymour, J. Romeyn Brodhead, Esq., and the Hon. Charles King. Since the opening of the library in its present location, it has rapidly extended the sphere of its usefulness, and during the first five months nearly 50,000 visits were made to its reading-room.

A feature of this institution, worthy of special reference, is what is called its "class department." It originated in 1838, and has been in operation every succeeding year. In these classes instruction is furnished to young men in the French, German, Spanish and Italian languages, book-keeping, penmanship, chemistry, music, elocution, drawing, mathematics, and phonography. These classes have generally been fairly attended, though.

it is to be regretted, they have not been fully equal to the expectations of their friends. They afford the means of instruction to those who cannot conform to the hours of teaching in academies and public schools, and thus present to young men, privileges, the value and importance of which cannot be too highly estimated.

The association has a collection of from 2,000 to 3,000 specimens of mineralogy, conchology, geology, fossils, &c., which have been well arranged and labelled by Mr. R. H. Browne, librarian of the Lyceum of Natural History. Steps have been taken to organize a geographical department, by the collection of maps, charts, maritime surveys, and topographical and astronomical information generally. The committee who have had the subject in charge have met with a good degree of success, and hopes are entertained that this department, the want of which has been so long and severely felt by those engaged in commerce and navigation, will soon assume a prominent place among the other features of the institution.

The library now numbers upward of 47,000 volumes. The association has 4,500 members, and an annual revenue of $11,000; more than 25,000 volumes are lent out annually. Merchants' clerks are entitled to the use of the library, on subscribing to the constitution and paying an initiation fee of one dollar, and one dollar for the first six months. Others are admitted on the payment of an annual subscription of five dollars, but are not eligible to office.

The reading-room forms one of the most attractive features of the institution, in its present locality; it contains about 250 newspapers, magazines, &c., of different kinds, embracing all the principal periodical literature of the United States, England, France and Germany; it also contains valuable and important books of reference, including files of a number of the leading newspapers of the world. While this department is free to the members of the institution, it can be subscribed to separately from the library upon payment of three dollars annually.

The removal of the library to Astor place, rendered the establishment of a down-town office necessary, so that persons living in Brooklyn and Jersey city might avail themselves of its advantages. Rooms were accordingly procured at No. 1, Nassau street, where books may be ordered and returned, and other necessary business transacted. S. Hastings Grant, Librarian.

NEW YORK HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

This Society was founded in 1804. The object of it, as stated in its constitution, was "to discover, procure and preserve whatever may relate to the natural, civil, literary and ecclesiastical history of the United States in general, and of this state in particular." The plan of forming a state historical association, appears to have originated with Judge Benson and John Pintard, Esq., more particularly with the latter, who may be regarded as its founder, and through whose exertions several meetings were held in a room of the old City Hall, in the year 1804. The first regular meeting was convened on the 20th of November of the same year. Eleven persons, among whom was De Witt Clinton and John Pintard, assembled in the picture-room of the above-named edifice, and formed themselves into a society.

The meetings were for some time held in the old City Hall, situated where the Custom House now stands, and often called Federal Hall, from its having been occupied by the Congress of the United States after the adoption of the Federal Constitution. It was in the balcony of this edifice that Washington was inaugurated the first President of the United States. Some of the desks, &c., used in the building for the accommodation of the members of Congress, now serve to furnish the rooms of the society.

On the 4th of September, 1809—it being then just three hundred years since Henry Hudson entered the river which bears his name—the association determined to commemorate the event by a festival. The use of the front court-room in the Federal Hall was granted to the society for the occasion. The Rev. Dr. Miller delivered a learned and interesting discourse, after the conclusion of which they adjourned to the City Hotel, (which stood on the block bounded by Broadway, Cedar, Thames and Lumber streets,) where the members and invited guests—in the language of the minutes of the society—“sat down to an elegant dinner, consisting of a variety of shell and other fish, with which our waters abound, wild pigeons and succotash, (the favorite dish of the season,) with the different meats introduced into the country by the European settlers.”

The first volume of “Collections” of this society was published in the year, 1809. Addresses were frequently delivered before the association. They were usually given on the annual festival, commonly celebrated on St. Nicholas day, the 6th of December. The customary place of dining on these occasions was, for several years, at Kent’s Hotel, No. 42 Broad street. In the same year, the society removed to rooms in the Government House, which was immediately in front of the Bowling Green. Where this building stood was originally the site of Fort Amsterdam., which, after the conquest of New Netherlands, and the defeat of the intrepid Dutch Governor, Pieter Stuyvesant, in 1664, was called Fort James, in compliment to the Duke of York. In the reign of William and Mary it was called Fort William; and in the following reign, Fort Anne and Fort George. In 1790, the legislature passed an act authorizing the Corporation to demolish Fort George, and, at the same time, to erect a proper house to be used by the government of the state, and also for the temporary use and accommodation of the President of the United States, during such times as Congress should hold their sessions in this city. Such was the origin of the Government House. It was, however, never occupied by the President, as intended, Congress being about the same time removed to Philadelphia. In 1815, the Government House was sold, and rooms appropriated for the library in the large building, formerly in rear of the City Hall, and called the New City Hall.

LITH BY G. HARRISON & WATSON ST. N.Y.

FORTS FISH & CLINTON. 1814.

FROM D. VALENTINE'S MANUAL, 1850.

In 1832, the society again removed, and took possession of a new hall in Remsen's building, corner of Broadway and Chambers street. The payment of rent here, and other causes, combined to seriously embarrass its finances; and, in 1837, having the offer of rooms in the Stuyvesant Institute, (then just completed) free of any charge for rent, it was induced to remove to that building. In 1841, it took possession of the rooms it at present occupies in the New York University.

The pecuniary embarrassments to which this society was subject, during the earlier years of its existence, were distressing and severe; but the resolute determination of some of its members to keep the institution alive, reflects the highest credit upon their intelligence and patriotism. They were actuated by the noble determination to rescue from destruction the innumerable records of our colonial history, which were scattered in every form all over the land.

And exceedingly well have they succeeded. The library contains about 25,000 volumes, which bear, in a direct manner, upon the early history of our State, and the habits and customs of its primitive Dutch inhabitants. It has, beside printed books, nearly 2,000 volumes of bound newspapers, some 15,000 MSS. original letters, papers, &c.; a variety of maps, charts and engravings, and about 2,000 medals and coins. It has also a considerable collection of Indian relics and curiosities, together with portraits and busts of many of the distinguished men of our Revolutionary era.

The society has now a new building in process of erection in Second avenue, corner of Eleventh street, which will be completed during the present year. It is a fine stone edifice, and will afford ample accommodations for the library. The terms of membership to the society, and use of the library, are an initiation fee of five dollars, and five dollars annually as dues; or, in lieu thereof, a life membership fee of fifty dollars, as a commutation of all regular dues and fees. George H. Moore, Esq., Librarian.

THE GENERAL SOCIETY OF MECHANICS AND TRADESMEN.

There is a tradition among some of the members that this society was organized before the Revolution, and was broken up by the events of that period; but there does not appear to be any well-established facts to warrant this opinion. If it were established at that time, no records of it exist, though these might have been scattered and destroyed by the British soldiers, who occupied the city at the time.

The prime moving cause of the organization of the General Society of Mechanics and Tradesmen, was probably the fact of the very low and impoverished state of the arts and manufactures in the country at the close of the Revolutionary War, though it may have arisen from the idea of "mutual benefit," which was the motive of all the early societies among the different trades. To form a union by which these societies could act in concert, and to adopt such measures for their mutual advantage as might be deemed advisable, was also another thought which gave rise to this institution, which has, since that time, adopted so many excellent features, and gradually extended its usefulness in almost every department of human advancement and benevolence. To assist the industrious, protect the distressed, succor the widow, befriend the orphan, and afford the means of intellectual attainments to a large class of the youth of our country, who will eventually become so emphatically the bone and sinew of the land, have been its distinguishing features.

The first record of its organization is dated the 17th of November, 1785, when a meeting was held at the house of Walter Heyer, which it is believed was located in the lower part of Pearl street, near Cedar. At this meeting, Robert Boyd was appointed chairman. From this time until 1792, the society does not appear to have been any thing more than a kind of Congress, to which all the mechanics' societies in the country sent delegates, and hence arose the name of the General Society of Mechanics and Tradesmen. The society started on the principle of economically saving its funds; and one of the resolutions adopted at the first meeting gave an earnest of its future usefulness and prosperity. It voted to purchase a chest for the purpose of depositing in it the funds; "said chest to be provided with three locks, and the price thereof to be £7." As illustrating the object of the formation, as well as showing the feeling of the public mind upon a question which has been greatly agitated since, we may state that on the 24th September, 1788, the society received a letter from the associated mechanics of "the town" of Boston, complaining of the course of the government in neglecting to protect American manufactures, in which they say that "the system pursued since the peace, of importing such articles as can be manufactured among ourselves, tends to discourage the whole body of tradesmen and manufacturers of these states; and this practice, unless speedily checked by the prudent exertions of those who are more particularly interested, must eventually prove ruinous to every mechanical branch in America." On the 26th of February, 1789, they received a letter from the mechanics of Baltimore of the same import. At this period, the various mechanic societies in different parts of the country united in a petition, asking of Congress the adoption of a tariff for the protection of American manufactures, and it is believed that the passage of the first tariff act, under the Federal Constitution, was owing, in a great measure, to the efforts of this society.

An interesting incident in the history of the society, and which is fully detailed in its minutes, is the annual meeting of the society on the 5th of January, 1789, which was celebrated at "Samuel French's Tavern," then located at No. 39 Cortlandt street. Among the toasts given on that occasion were the following:

"May we breakfast with health, dine with friendship, drink a bottle of wine with mirth, and sup with contentment."

On the 14th of March, 1792, an act was passed by the Legislature, incorporating the society, and at this time it is believed that the feature of affording support to the indigent members of the corporation, and to the widows and children of persons having been members of it, was established. In 1811, this act having nearly expired by its own limitation, another was passed, by which the powers and privileges of the society were considerably increased. In 1821, an amendment was made to this act, by which the society was empowered to appropriate such a part of its funds as it may deem expedient “to the establishment and maintenance of a school for the education of the children of its indigent or deceased members, and also to the establishment and support of an apprentices’ library, for the use of the apprentices of the mechanics of New York.” In 1842, this act was renewed and extended to the year 1860, and the society was authorized to receive pay for tuition in its school from pupils other than those who were entitled to gratuitous instruction. Such is a rapid survey of the advancement of the society, and shows how the commencement of one good work leads the way to the adoption of another.

The benevolent operations of the society are confined strictly to the widows and children of its deceased members, who are in indigent circumstances. Widows, whose names are on the pension list, are entitled to twenty-five dollars per annum, and each child, under five years old, to five dollars. A child, who has no parents living, is entitled to fifteen dollars per annum. The committee of almoners are also authorized to relieve urgent cases, which will not admit of delay, at the rate of ten dollars per month for each applicant, during the continuation of their necessities. We cannot state the progress of the society more clearly than by quoting a portion of an address delivered by the late M. M. Noah, at the opening of the library and reading rooms at their present place, No. 472 Broadway, in 1850. He says:

“For thirty-five years—that is to say, from the year 1783 to 1830—the operations of the Mechanics’ Society were confined chiefly to benevolent objects, the relief of its indigent members, their widows and orphans; and in 1820 the school and library were established. The object of the school was to relieve the less fortunate mechanics from what they deemed the humiliation of sending their children to a charity school, by having them educated in the same school with pay scholars—the knowledge of pay and free scholars being confined to members of the school committee. The practice, delicate and proper in itself, is still maintained. The school improved rapidly, and is now, I am pleased to state, in a flourishing condition, and ranks as high as any in the city. It has been sustained at considerable cost to the society, receiving from the public only the usual allowance for the number of free scholars taught, and has about five hundred scholars, and about twenty teachers, each department, male and female, arranged into separate classes, taught in separate class-rooms. The library was established at the same time, receiving small contributions of books and money from our fellow-citizens, and was opened at the time I have before stated, in the old free school building, at the corner of Chatham street and Tryon row. The new building in Chambers street was erected in the following year. In 1832, the society was enabled to purchase the High School in Crosby street, to accomplish which some aid was received—say five thousand dollars—chiefly from our own members; and that, with about one thousand dollars, received from the late Mechanics' and Scientific Institution, and six hundred dollars from private donations, is all that was received in aid of the important improvements. In 1845, the lot on Broadway was purchased, and an entrance made for the accommodation of the young ladies, and also to the lecture-room."

The society has owned, and continues to own, a considerable amount of property. The first real estate it had, was the building at the head of Chatham square, which is sold to the Corporation. It subsequently purchased the building at the corner of Broadway and Park place, now occupied by William Hall & Son, which it still retains. When the school and library were established, it removed to Chambers street. At the time the State granted the charter of incorporation to the Mechanics' Bank, it granted the right to every member of the society to subscribe to ten shares each. At that time bank stock was not so plenty as at present, and was thought to be a very desirable investment. On account of this, there was a great rush for membership in the society; and as their constitution prohibited the admission of any but those who were regular mechanics, and as there was more or less latitude claimed in the definition of that term, it gave rise to considerable difficulty. At this time Robert Fulton applied to be admitted as a member, and was refused, because he was not a practical mechanic.

The library of the society now numbers about 18,000 volumes. During the past year very great improvements have been made. Heretofore, the library has been sadly deficient in a catalogue, but through the exertions of its new librarian, William Van Norden, Esq., a good analytical as well as alphabetical arrangement of the books has been made. New shelving room has been furnished, the books newly arranged, and a large number added. A reading room has been set apart for the use of those who frequent the library, which is well supplied with the leading newspapers, magazines and reviews. The energetic management which has recently been inspired in the society ought to awaken a corresponding animation among its old friends, as well as obtain for it many new ones. The terms on which the library and rooms are open to readers are as follows: To apprentices, or youths employed as apprentices, without charge; to journeymen, teachers, students in academies or colleges, youths in the offices of lawyers, physicians or artists, one dollar per year; mechanics, tradesmen, artists, &c., in business on their own account, two dollars per year.

THE NEW YORK FREE ACADEMY.

The Free Academy of the city of New York, located in Twenty-third street, at the corner of Lexington avenue, was established in 1848, by an act of the legislature, passed the year previous. It is under the superintendence of the Board of Education, and the care, management and government of an Executive Committee appointed by the board. All the expenses of the institution are defrayed out of the public treasury. The students are admitted in annual classes, and the full course of study embraces five years, though a more limited period is allowed to those who prefer it. No student can be admitted to the academy unless he be a resident of the city, is thirteen years of age, shall have attended the common schools in the city eighteen months, and can pass a good examination in the elementary branches.

The Free Academy owes its origin to that spirit of advancement which has contributed so powerfully to exalt and perfect the common schools of our state. The antiquated notions in regard to the means of educational improvement have undergone a great and rapid change in the course of a few years. It is no longer looked upon as heretical to advocate the importance of a system of free education, which affords the opportunity to every person, no matter how limited his means, to furnish to his children advantages which will place them on a level with the graduates of our colleges and universities.

The Free Academy is the key-stone in the arch of this popular system. It was founded for the purpose of fostering and encouraging remarkable talent developed in the common schools, by furnishing, gratuitously, to such talent, without distinction, the means of a higher classical, scientific, and practical education, of which it would otherwise have been wholly deprived. The course of instruction adopted in the institution is practical, and adapted for fitting the students for the ordinary business of life. It has ten departments, embracing mathematics, history and belles lettres, languages and literature, drawing, natural and experimental philosophy, chemistry and physics, anatomy and hygiene, civil engineering, moral and intellectual philosophy, and law and political economy. This course of study commends itself immediately to the good sense of every one. Of the dead languages only Latin and Greek are taught.

The library of this institution is an important and valuable feature. Means for founding and sustaining it are obtained from appropriations made by the Regents of the University of the State of New York, made from the Literature Fund. The amount thus received is from eight hundred to one thousand dollars per annum. The whole number of volumes is about 15,000, two-thirds of which are text books. The miscellaneous portion of the library is devoted to works of general interest, history, biography, voyages, travels, &c. It has a complete set of Niles' Register, a work now extremely rare. The collection of philosophical, mathematical and chemical apparatus is very good. Some attention has been paid to the establishment of a department of Natural History, and about 3,000 specimens in conchology, mineralogy and geology have been made. Librarian, J. G. Barton; Assistant, J. Oakley Nodyne.

THE NEW YORK LAW INSTITUTE.

The establishment of a law library in this city is owing, in a great degree, to the exertions of the late Judge Kent. The first meeting in relation to its organization was held at the residence of Judge McCoun, about the year 1829. The want of an institution which would furnish an extensive and easily accessible collection of works in every department of legal investigation had long been felt, and it was a desideratum which could not be supplied without some difficulties. The expense of obtaining such books is far greater than that incurred in any other department of literature. This is occasioned partly by the substantial manner in which they are got up, but is mainly owing to their limited circulation. The average cost of works in our public libraries does not generally exceed one dollar per volume; but a large number of the books in this have cost ten dollars a-piece.

The New York Law Institute was incorporated by an act of the legislature in 1830. It was declared to be founded "for literary purposes, the cultivation of legal science, the advancement of jurisprudence, and the formation of a seminary of learning in the law, and the formation of a law library." All counselors, solicitors and attorneys were eligible to membership on the payment of twenty dollars admission fee, and ten dollars annually thereafter; and, by an arrangement of the by-laws, he was declared a stockholder in the institution when the amount he had paid in reached a certain specified sum. All the judges of the United States Courts, judges of the State Courts, all lawyers who do not practice in the city, or in Kings county, and strangers generally, are permitted and invited to visit and use the library. The books are not, however, allowed to be taken from the library, beyond the City Hall. Gentlemen of the bar, while in the argument of causes in the various courts which hold their sessions in the City Hall, frequently need books of reference. In these cases they send an order to the library for such works as they need, and they are furnished by the librarian. Important cases in the Circuit Courts in this state are sometimes adjourned to New York city solely for the purpose of enjoying the superior advantages which this library affords.

It now contains about 6,000 volumes, embracing one of the most extensive and valuable collection of the kind in the United States. Besides the various works upon every department of law, it has the statute laws of the United States, and every state in the Union. It has, likewise, a large number of the public records of Great Britain and Ireland, which were published in London, under the direction of commissioners appointed for the purpose. These records contain the origin and foundation of English, and consequently American law, as the latter is derived directly from the former. Among these are the Anglo-Saxon laws from Æthelbirht to Canute, laws of Edward the Confessor and William the Conqueror, laws ascribed to Henry I., and the "Monumenta Ecclesiastica" from the seventh to the tenth century.

The library is now located at No. 45 Chambers street, where it was removed in April, 1855. It has a large and commodious room on the second story, twenty-five feet wide and one hundred and fifty-two long, running through from Chambers to Reade street. John Anthon, Esq., is the present President of the Institute; Hon. William Kent, Librarian; John L. Tillinghast, Assistant Librarian.

THE AMERICAN INSTITUTE.

The library of the American Institute was organized in 1833. A Committee, appointed for the purpose, reported a plan of the library, and the institute made an appropriation, on the 23d of July of that year, of five hundred dollars, toward the purchase of books. At first, only the shareholders in the library were entitled to take books from it, but by a subsequent arrangement the privilege was extended to all the members of the institute. The library was first opened in Liberty street, in 1833, and in 1834 was removed to No. 41 Cortlandt street. In 1836 the institute took a lease of the building No. 187 Broadway, where it remained for three years. In 1839 the institute and library were removed to rooms in the new City Hall, (since burned down,) which they occupied until 1848, when the Common Council terminated the lease which it had granted them gratuitously. The institute then removed to the corner of Broadway and Anthony street, but, owing to the want of accommodation for the library, the books remained boxed up until it occupied its present location, No. 351 Broadway. Here it has a library room eighty feet long by twenty-five feet wide, which has been conveniently fitted up, with cases, tables, &c., for the accommodation of books and readers. A reading-room, connected with the library, is well supplied with all the daily papers of the city, and most of the prominent journals throughout the country.

As the institute had, at various times, voted appropriations of money to the library, increasing its value, questions arose as to the relative right of the shareholders and the members of the institute in the library. The members of the institute were not entitled to take a volume from the library until the 1st day of May, 1850, when that privilege was given to them by the new by-laws. For the purpose of settling the questions as to the rights of the shareholders, a paper was drawn up and signed by a number of them, releasing their rights as such, to the institute, and which was presented at a meeting held on the 11th of April, 1850; whereupon a resolution was passed that shareholders who should release their rights in the library should be made life-members of the institute, and a special vote of thanks to those shareholders who had so released their rights was passed. Since that time nearly all the shareholders have released their rights and become members of the institute for life.

Since 1850 there have been added to the library about 3,000 volumes, and its gradual increase has been provided for by an annual appropriation, passed by the institute in 1851, of five hundred dollars a year, for five years. The library now consists of 7,500 volumes of works in the various departments of science and literature. Although the library is general in its character, it is designed to devote it more particularly to works relating to the objects of the institute, viz: agriculture, commerce, manufactures and the arts.

Mr. Ezekiel A. Harris, the librarian, prepared an entirely new catalogue of the library, which was printed in 1852, and consisted of two hundred and twelve octavo pages. The works were arranged in the catalogue both alphabetically and analytically, in the same manner as in the last catalogue of the New York Society Library. The works are arranged upon the shelves analytically, that is, classified according to their subjects.

The privileges of the library and reading room are confined to the members of the institute. A person may become a member of the institute by submitting a proposition for membership and paying an initiation fee of five dollars. The dues are two dollars a year.

The library is open every day, (Sundays and holidays excepted,) from 9 o'clock, A.M., to 6 o'clock, P.M., and on Tuesday and Thursday evenings of each week until 10 o'clock.

The American Institute Library is now the largest in the lower part of the city. E. A. Harris, Librarian.

COLUMBIA COLLEGE LIBRARY.

About 1757 Mr. Joseph Murray bequeathed to Columbia College, his property, worth about eighty thousand pounds, including his library. This was three years subsequent to the date of its charter, and the donation of books received from him may be considered the first substantial commencement of the present library. Not long after this the Rev. Dr. Bristowe, of London, also bequeathed his library, of about 1,500 volumes, to the college. It also received presents from the Earl of Bute and others, and from the University of Oxford. Indeed, upon the breaking out of the Revolution, it had a very respectable collection, but that stormy period scattered and almost entirely destroyed it. The college was taken possession of by the British troops and converted into a military hospital. The library was deposited in the City Hall, but, without any care, it fell a prey, like the Society Library, to the rapacity of the soldiers of royalty who, it is said exchanged the books "for grog." Of the books recovered from the wreck 600 or 700 volumes were found, thirty years after, along with about as many belonging to the Society Library, in a room in St. Paul's Chapel, and no one could tell how they came there. In 1792, a large addition was made to the library, by a grant of money obtained from the legislature. Some purchases of private libraries have been made, the most important of which were the library of Professor Kemp, in 1813, and of Professor Moore, in 1838. In the interesting collection of the library may be mentioned an Egyptian papyrus, a series of bronze medals, illustrative of the Elgin marbles, and two marbles bearing Greek inscriptions. The number of volumes is 20,000. William A. Jones, A.M., Librarian. Connected with this institution are two literary societies, the Philolexian, founded in 1802, and the Peithologian, founded in 1806, which have each a library of 2,000 volumes.

LIBRARY OF THE UNION THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY.

This library was founded in 1835, and is called the "Van Ess Library," the principal part of it being the collection of Leander Van Ess, of Germany, the editor of the Septuagint and Vulgate. It was purchased in 1839, and consisted of about 15,000 distinct works. The remainder of the books have been chiefly donated by friends of the institution. The library contains about 450 Incunabula, most of them printed before A.D., 1500, and many of them exceedingly rare. Of the original editions of the Reformers, Luther, Melancthon and others, it has some 1,900 distinct works. It embraces the most valuable editions of the Fathers, and many of the largest collections in Church History, viz:—The "Acta Sanctorum," the "Bibliotheca Patrum," and the "Bibliotheca Maxima," the Acts of Councils, the various editions of Baronius, etc. The library is mainly intended for the use of students connected with the seminary, but its use is also allowed to those who may have a permission from a professor. The increase during the past six years has been about 600 volumes a year. About fifty periodicals, mostly religious magazines of this country and Europe are received. There is only a manuscript catalogue. The library is located in the seminary building, No. 9 University place. The number of volumes is about 24,000. Professor Henry B. Smith, Librarian.

GENERAL THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY OF THE EPISCOPAL CHURCH.

This institution was founded in this city in 1817, but in 1820, was removed to New Haven, Connecticut. The following year, however, it was united with the Diocesan Theological Seminary of New York, and moved back to this city. It was incorporated in 1822, and permanently established under a board of trustees, of which the bishops of the church are ex officio members. It is located between Ninth and Tenth avenues and Twentieth and Twenty-first streets, upon grounds donated to it by Clement C. Moore, LL.D. The present income of the institution is derived mainly from a bequest of one hundred thousand dollars made by Frederic Kohré, of South Carolina. Peter G. Stuyvesant endowed a Professorship of Church History, with twenty-five thousand dollars. The Library Fund amounts to six thousand dollars, the larger portion of which was given by Trinity Church. From the same source, also, came books, valued at six thousand five hundred dollars, which formed the foundation of their present excellent library. In 1852, the Society for Promoting Religion and Learning, in the Diocese of New York, gave the Seminary three thousand one hundred and forty-four dollars, which was expended for choice volumes of the late Doctor Jarvis' library. There is a reading-room connected with the library which is supplied with most of the American and some of the English Church periodicals. The students of the Seminary have free access to the library, and are allowed to take out books, under certain regulations. Books can be taken out only on Monday and Thursday afternoons, between half past two and half past four o'clock, but the library is open for consultation every day, during the same hours. The present number of volumes is 12,000. Rev. Christian F. Cruse, D.D., Librarian.

LYCEUM OF NATURAL HISTORY.

In 1817, a number of gentlemen, desirous of improving themselves in Natural History, and also of diffusing a taste for the subject, formed the Lyceum of Natural History. It was incorporated in 1818, and since that time, notwithstanding repeated embarrassments of no trifling character, it has steadily pursued its object, and has now a large and valuable museum and library. These have been principally formed by donations from individuals, and from the various scientific societies of this country and Europe. The museum contains extensive collections in mineralogy, geology, fossils, conchology, ichthyology, entomology, amphibia, reptiles, radiata, corals, botany and small collections of birds and quadrupeds. The collection of radiata is probably the best in the United States. The library contains about 3,000 volumes relating to Natural History, including the transactions of the various societies of Europe and America. The society has published five volumes of its "Annals," consisting of papers read before it by its members. The first location of the society was in "the New City Hall," (old Alms-house,) where rooms were appropriated it by the Common Council. It remained there until 1828, when it was removed to the City Dispensary, in White street. After eight years there it took possession, in 1836, of a building between Spring and Prince streets, in Broadway, which place it was compelled to relinquish, owing to the commercial embarrassments of the time. It subsequently occupied rooms at No. 596 Broadway, and finally at the Medical College, in Fourteenth street. The members are divided into three classes, honorary, corresponding and resident. Among the early friends of the society may be mentioned the names of Dr. Samuel L. Mitchell, Dr. Hosack and the venerable Dr. Francis. In promoting its interests, none have been more indefatigable than R. H. Brownne, its present Recording Secretary. The Librarian is O. W. Morris, Esq.

LIBRARY OF THE NEW YORK HOSPITAL.

The Society of the New York Hospital was founded in 1770, but it was not until 1796 that any thing was done toward forming a library. In this year, upon the recommendation of the Medical Faculty of Columbia College, the Governor of the Hospital appropriated five hundred dollars to the purchase of a medical library. This formed the nucleus of the present valuable and extensive collection. Members of the faculty, from time to time, contributed books, and in 1800, the collection was augmented by the purchase of the library of the late Dr. Romayne. In 1805, "The Medical Society of New York" gave its library to it, upon condition that such of the sons of its members as should become physicians should enjoy the free use of the hospital library. Various sums have, from time to time, been appropriated by the Governors of the Hospital to the increase of the library, and valuable additions have thereby been made. One of the most important of these was the excellent botanical library of Dr. Hosack. The library consists of works mostly on medicine and surgery, and the collateral branches of science, such as chemistry, botany, &c. It has many of the most costly and splendid works on anatomy and natural history. Fine rooms have been fitted up for it in the main Hospital buildings in Broadway.

The present number of volumes is 6,000. There is also a valuable pathological cabinet connected with it. It is in contemplation by the Governors of the Hospital to erect a building, distinct from the hospital, for the accommodation of the library and pathological collection. J. L. Vandervoort, M.D., Librarian.

YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION.

This association was organized in June, 1852. Its object is the improvement of the religious, mental and social condition of young men, residents of the city, or those who may come here from the country or from other cities. There are each year a large number of young men who, for business purposes, seek the great commercial metropolis of the United States, and, who arriving here often without friends, need some avenue for proper social intercourse thrown open to them. The ends this association aim to accomplish are, therefore, not confined to a single object. Besides the mental and moral improvement of its members, it has committees organized for the purpose of procuring employment for those who desire it, as well as proper boarding places, church sittings, &c. To aid in the general objects it desires to accomplish, it has secured very attractive rooms in Clinton Hall, Astor place, which are used for the purposes of a library, reading room, and for general intercourse. The reading room is furnished with eight daily papers, fifty weekly and semi-weekly, thirty-two monthly, bi-monthly and semi-monthly, and twelve quarterly publications. A large proportion of the periodicals are religious, including the newspapers and reviews of different denominations, from all parts of this country and Great Britain. The rooms are open from eight, A.M., to ten, P.M.

The library contains about 2,000 volumes, and though not large, is well selected and much used. A weekly prayer meeting is held on every Wednesday evening, and on Sunday afternoons a Bible class, conducted by the President of the Association, Professor Howard Crosby. Each winter a series of lectures is delivered before the association, in the different churches, by the prominent clergymen of different denominations. The annual meeting of the Association occurs on the third Monday of May in each year. The present number of members is about one thousand. Benjamin Lord, Librarian.

LIBRARY OF THE MECHANICS' INSTITUTE.

The Mechanics' Institute was founded in 1830, and incorporated April 24, 1833, for the purpose of promoting the general diffusion of useful knowledge among the mechanical classes. For this purpose a library and museum were founded, and classes established in the various branches of natural philosophy, the physical sciences, and most of the modern languages. The resources of the institute have been derived from school fairs, exhibitions, lectures, assessments of members, &c. The success of the institution has not been very flattering. It has met with the usual obstacles incident to all new enterprises, but which seem to have had more than their ordinary effect in retarding its growth and usefulness. The library numbers about 3,000 volumes, which are badly arranged and still more miserably catalogued in a manuscript volume. A new librarian has, however, recently been appointed, and under his supervision there may be a visible improvement. The society also contemplate moving from their present rooms, No. 1 Bowery, to a more advantageous location. The terms on which persons may become members, and with their families enjoy all the privileges of the library, reading rooms, lectures, &c., are, initiation fee, one dollar, and a yearly payment of two dollars; life membership is twenty-five dollars. William H. Chase, Librarian.

PRINTERS' FREE LIBRARY.

This institution is under the control of the New York Typographical Society, which was instituted in 1809, for the purpose of affording relief to indigent members and their families. It was incorporated in 1818, re-chartered for fifteen years, in 1832, and in 1847, incorporated under the general law of the state. The library was commenced in 1823, and has been chiefly augmented by donations from members and friends of the society. Publishers have also contributed a large number of the books. This library has been forced to contend with numerous difficulties, the most prominent of which has been a doubt, among the members of the typographical profession, of its utility. The demonstration which a practical example affords has, however, now removed this impediment, and the friends of the library indulge a reasonable hope that their severest difficulties have been surmounted. The Printers' Library enjoys the enviable distinction of being the pioneer of free public libraries in this city, and it is to be regretted that they have not more suitable accommodations to throw open to the public at all hours. The library was first located at No. 300 Broadway, but now occupies lofty rooms at No. 3 Chambers street, which are only open on Saturday evenings. The library contains 3,000 volumes of well selected works in the various departments of general literature. The reading room is supplied with most of the city newspapers and periodicals. John Crow, Librarian.

COLLEGE OF PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS.

By an act of the legislature, in 1791, the Regents of the University of the State of New York were authorized to establish a College of Physicians and Surgeons in the State; and in 1807, the Regents, by charter, created the "College of Physicians and Surgeons in the city of New York." The first course of lectures was delivered in the winter of 1807-8. This institution, therefore, occupies a special relation to the Regents of the University of the State, for, while all our colleges and higher schools make their reports to the Regents, none have been established by them except this institution. During the past year the college has removed from its old building in Crosby street, and taken possession of its new edifice at the corner of Fourth avenue and Twenty-third street. Here it has lecture rooms of the largest size and most approved construction, dissecting, hospital apartments, &c. The museum and library are also located in the building. The former contains about 5,000 specimens in pathology and demonstrative anatomy. The library numbers about 1,500 volumes, which, owing to the removal of the college, have not been recently properly attended to. A librarian has been recently appointed, and they are to be arranged in the new edifice and properly catalogued. Gouverneur M. Smith, M.D., Librarian.

LIBRARY OF AMERICAN BIBLE SOCIETY.

This library is almost entirely biblical and theological. It has grown out of the wants and demands of the society in its work of translating and revising the Scriptures. It has the Bible, or portions of it, in over one hundred different languages and dialects, besides commentaries in English and foreign languages, grammatical works, dictionaries, concordances and miscellaneous works of various kinds, most of which have been presented to it by the friends of the society. Number of volumes, 1,500. Rev. Dr. Bigham, Librarian.

PRESBYTERIAN BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS.

This society has a very interesting collection of books at their rooms, No. 23 Centre street. The library was commenced in 1836, and has now grown to about 3,000 volumes, without any particular effort to bring about the result. The books are mostly donations from missionaries in foreign lands, friends of the society in this country, and other sources. It has a good collection of Bibles in nearly all languages, a fair assortment of dictionaries, grammars, &c. The most curious, and a unique collection, is about 1,000 volumes of Chinese books, donated to the society by D. W. C. Olyphant, Esq., a merchant of this city. No well arranged catalogue of the books has ever been published, though one is understood to be in course of preparation. Walter Lowrie, Librarian.

AMERICAN BIBLE UNION.

This organization was formed in 1850, having for its primary object the re-translation of the Bible. The library contains about 4,000 volumes, most of which have been purchased for the purpose of affording the translators engaged in revising the Bible the facilities for performing their work. Some of the books are very valuable, and others quite rare. It has several editions of the Christian Fathers; Walton's Polyglott Bible, a folio in six volumes, published in 1657; and also, the Paris edition of the Polyglott Bible, 1645, in ten volumes, and in seven different languages, the Hebrew, Samaritan, Chaldaic, Greek, Syriac, Latin and Arabic. A large portion of the library is composed of lexicons in all languages. It has rooms in the First Baptist Church, corner of Broome and Elizabeth streets. Rev. C. A. Buckee, Librarian.

AMERICAN AND FOREIGN BIBLE SOCIETY.

This society has rooms at No. 117 Nassau street, where it has a choice collection of about 1,000 volumes, consisting of ancient and modern editions of the Bible, lexicons, &c. W. D. Ward, Esq., has charge of it.

MERCHANTS' AND CLERKS' LIBRARY ASSOCIATION.

This institution was founded in 1853, for the purpose of collecting a library, maintaining a reading-room, &c. The object also seems to have been to secure a more down-town location than any other library now in the city; one clause of the constitution prohibits its removal above Reade street, unless with the consent of two thirds of the members of the association. It has already made considerable progress in the collection of a library, at No. 60 William street, where it also maintains a reading room. Number of volumes 600.

AMERICAN GEOGRAPHICAL AND STATISTICAL SOCIETY.

This society was first organized in 1852, under the general law of the state, and subsequently re-organized under a special charter granted by the legislature on the 12th of May, 1854. The object of the society is the collection and diffusion of geographical and statistical information. But little has as yet been done toward furnishing a library; it has, probably, about 300 volumes mostly relating to topographical science and physical geography. It occupies rooms in the New York University, in University place. Francis L. Hawks, D.D., is President, J. Calvin Smith, Librarian.

SPINGLER INSTITUTE.

This is an educational institution for young ladies; is furnished with an important and valuable library of about 2,000 volumes; they are mostly books of reference, and have been selected by the Rev. Gorham D. Abbott, the principal of the institution, with especial regard for their adaption to the purposes of female education.

RUTGER'S FEMALE INSTIUTE.

This excellent female educational institution, now successfully conducted for sixteen years, has a fine library of 2,190 valumes, embracing a good selection in general literature, history, reference books, &c.; it has also a fine collection of medals, coins and a small mineralogical cabinet, &c. It is located at No. 264 Madison street. There is no regular librarian, the principal, the Rev. D. C. Van Norman, A.M., having its general superintendence.

LIBRARY OF THE NEW YORK UNIVERSITY.

The New York University has a library of about 1,000 volumes, mostly works of reference; Professor Howard Crosby is librarian. Besides this library there are two others connected with this institution, one belongs to the Euclain and the other to the Philomatheon Society. The former contains about 1,300 volumes and the latter 400. Edward Snyder is librarian of the Philomatheon and Thomas Carter of the Euclain.

AMERICAN ETHNOLOGICAL SOCIETY.

The object of this society has been the preparation and publication of original papers on ethnology. It has a small library and cabinet, and occupies rooms in the University. E. Robinson, D. D. President.

NEW YORK BAPTIST HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

This society was incorporated at the last session of the legislature, and something has already been done toward collecting a library. The main object of the organization is to collect and preserve books, documents, &c., bearing upon the historical progress of the Baptist denomination. It, at present, has accommodations at No. 115 Nassau street. David T. Valentine, President. R. G. Horton, Librarian.

CITY LIBRARY, NO. 12, CITY HALL.

Whereas, The Corporation Library room being nearly completed, and as it contains choice and valuable collections, requiring care and supervision, therefore

Resolved, That the especial care and supervision of the Corporation Library be confided to the Clerk of the Common Council, under the general direction of the Committee on Arts, Sciences, and Schools, of both Boards.

Adopted by the Board of Aldermen, April 2, 1849.

Adopted by the Board of Assistants, June 11, 1849.

Approved by the Mayor, June 20, 1849.

In pursuance with the above resolution, the City Library was opened, under the immediate control of the Clerk of the Common Council, and shortly after a librarian, Mr. Theodore S. Nims, was duly appointed. The library is designated particularly for the use of members of both branches of the city government, but is open and free to the public at all times.

The nucleus of the library was the valuable collection of French statistical works, presented by Mons. Vattemare, on behalf of the city of Paris, but now contains besides, about 2,000 volumes, consisting of all the printed proceedings of the Common Council, since the year 1830; the laws of this state, and the proceedings and documents of the legislature, a complete set of the New York Directories, from the Year 1789; Niles' Register, Striker's Register, American Almanac, Valentine's Manual, and History of New York, Documentary History of the State, Patent Office Reports, Audubon's Birds and Quadrupeds of America, Congressional Globe, and numerous other statistical and authoritative works. Theodore S. Nims, Librarian.

FEDERAL PROCESSION

IN HONOR OF

THE CONSTITUTION OF THE UNITED STATES.

To testify the animated joy of the citizens of New York, upon finding the federal constitution of government ratified by a sufficient number of states to make it operative, it was determined, that on the twenty-third day of July, 1788, they should so appear in procession, as to demonstrate to the world the pleasure that, in consequence of this event, had pervaded all ranks and degrees of the community.

The day having been more than once postponed, in the interesting hope that this state,* then in convention, would likewise accede to the union, the committee of arrangements found it impossible any longer to oppose the patriotic ardour of their fellow-citizens. It was remembered, however, that the great object of exultation was not the ratifying of the constitution by any one particular state, but the already present existence of an era in the history of man, great, glorious, and unparalleled, which opens a variety of new sources of happiness, and unbounded prospects of national prosperity! The adoption of the federal plan by this state, though not then expected to be immediate, was, however, with certainty considered among those events which time, increasing light, and an overruling Providence, would bring to our view.

About 10 o'clock, 13 guns were fired from the federal ship Hamilton, being the signal for the procession to move; the different bodies of which it was composed, having already collected from their various places of meeting. It now set out from the Fields,‡ proceeding down Broadway to Great Dock street,‡ thence through Hanover square, Queen,‡ Chatham, Division, and Arundel streets; and from thence through Bullock street§ to Bayard's house, in the following order :

HORSEMEN WITH TRUMPETS.

Company of Artillery, and Field Piece.

After these, the whole procession was marshaled into ten divisions, each of which was preceded by a white flag, borne to the honour of the ten states that had then acceded to the new constitution.

* This state adopted the constitution three days after.

Ten journeymen, dressed in white, with blue sashes, carrying implements of the craft.

A stage, drawn by two bay horses decorated.

Four masters, with the federal loaf, ten feet long, twenty-seven inches in breadth, and eight inches in height, with the names in full length of the ten states which have ratified the constitution, and the initial letters of the other three.*

A flag, representing the declension of trade under the old confederation. Motto,

"When in confusion I was made,
Without foundation was I laid;
But hope the federal ovens may
My sinking frame full well repay."

On the reverse, the representation of their trade in a flourishing situation, with two ovens. Motto,

* Baked of one whole barrel of flour.

“ We are well built, both sound and tight,
 We hope to serve the ships in sight,
 With the best bread, bak'd with good flour,
 When congress have the federal power.”

In the centre, the spread eagle and crown, holding on the left the old confederation, on the right, the new constitution; Fame, with her trumpet, over it; followed by eighty masters, journeymen and apprentices, with white aprons.

Motto, "Americans, encourage your own manufactures;" followed by thirty-one of the trade, in buckskin waistcoats, faced with blue silk, breeches, gloves and stockings, with a buck's tail in their hats. To these, Mr. W. Thompson, the parchment manufacturer, attached himself, with a standard of parchment, and the inscription, "American manufactured."

THIRD DIVISION.

Cordwainers.

Headed by Mr. James M'Creedy, who supported a small flag representing the arms of the craft; motto, "Federal Cordwainers;" followed by twelve masters, representing twelve states.

A stage, drawn by four white horses, with two postillions in livery; a shop on the stage, with ten men diligently prosecuting their business, emblematical of the ten states that have adopted the constitution, with colors extended over the whole length of the shop, representing, in front, his Excellency General Washington coming out of the state house at Philadelphia, and presenting the constitution to Fame; she receiving it standing in her Temple, and ready to proclaim it to an astonished world! On the reverse, a full view of our own harbour, with the arrival of a ship with Crispin, who is joyfully received by St. Tammany.

Then followed the main body, three hundred and forty men. Mr. Anthony Bolton in the rear, with a small flag, as in front.

FOURTH DIVISION.

Carpenters.

Four masters, with each a rule in his hand; Vice-President, with a blue riband at his breast, with a scale and dividers, and a drawing square in his hand; secretary and treasurer, with a green sash and architect book in their hands; the apprentices in sections, each bearing a white wand of five feet long in his hand; the standard borne by eight journeymen with red sashes, representing, under the standard of the United States, a portraiture of General Washington: motto, "Freedom's favorite Son." Two Corinthian pillars, supporting a pediment half finished, expressive of the yet unsettled state of the Union; under this, thirteen pillars, gilt, united by one entablature, with a purple riband; ten of them bearing the names of the states, in the order of their adopting the new constitution. A motto on the frieze, "The Love of our Country prevails;" in the pediment a shield; motto, "Honour God."

The journeymen in sections; the masters in sections; the President with a blue riband at his breast, with scale and dividers, and a star or union on his left breast, and a drawn square in his hand. Four masters, with two feet rules in their hands, two hundred and two rank and file.

Furriers.

Messrs. Lot Merkel, and John Siemon, carrying a white valuable fox skin, manufactured; followed by an Indian, properly accoutred, with the dress and habiliments of his nation, as just coming out of the woods, loaded with various kinds of raw furs, as if bringing them for sale; followed by journeymen, each of them carrying furs and manufactures, the produce of this country. Likewise, a horse, with two bears, each sitting on a pack of furs, led by an Indian in a beaver blanket and round hat with black feathers, followed by two journeymen furriers in their working habits, with master aprons, their coats trimmed with black martins, their hats decorated with black feathers and white cockades.

A red flag, on which a tyger, as large as life, was displayed, and above it a large muff of real ermine, as an emblem of the craft; followed by two journeymen in like habits as the first. In the rear of these, came Mr. Lyon Jonas, dressed in a superb scarlet blanket, and an elegant cap, ornamented with a beautiful plumage, smoking the Indian pipe and tomahawk.

Matters.

Preceded by ten men in their working dresses, ornamented with blue sashes, and carrying bows, decorated with blue ribands. The flag, displaying the emblems of the branch, on a blue field, supported by two masters. Journeymen and apprentices, followed by masters, being sixty in number, with blue cockades and blue aprons, headed by Mr. Walter Bicker.

Stone Masons.

Flag; on the front an elegant plan of the President's (of Congress) house; at a distance was displayed a remote view of the temple of fame, supported with thirteen pillars, ten finished, and three unfinished; over the temple these words inscribed :

“The foundation is firm, the materials are good,
Each pillar cemented with patriot's blood.”

Over the centre of the flag a spread eagle; below the temple, a gentleman, and a stone mason showing him a draught of the temple; between the president's house and the temple; a grove of trees, and an elegant walk.

On the reverse, an elegant figure of the master mason; over his head was displayed the American flag, with the mason's coat of arms; at a distance a mason's shop in a shade of trees, a man at work in it; at a little distance, two men cutting stone; near the bottom of the flag, a man sawing marble, with a number of blocks and tools of all kinds lying round.

The order, consisting of thirty-two, headed by Mr. George Lindsay and William M. Kinney.

Bricklayers.

Preceded by Mr. John M'Comb, one hundred and two in number, supporting a flag, representing, under the colours of the United States, a medallion of His Excellency General Washington, encircled with laurel; in the centre, the bricklayer's arms. Motto, "In God is all our trust." Over the arms, a riband, written, "The Amicable Society of Bricklayers," all in gold letters; on the lower part of the flag, a building with scaffolding, and men at work, attended with labourers. The whole painted on white silk.

Painters' and Glaziers' Flag.

A view of a street with a number of buildings, one nearly painted, and a man in the attitude of painting on a ladder, the front of a house; a ship, and a man painting the stern; a pillar with ten stripes circular; above the pillar the union flag, standing on the platform, supported by ten pillars, three pillars lying down underneath; in the two upper corners, two men in each, at different work, painting and glazing; in the centre of the two, the arms of the painters and glaziers. Arms, or three shields gule; on the first a hammer, proper; in the second a diamond; in the third a lederkin; on the two upper shields a rule; in the centre of the field a paint pot and brush; crest, a glass eap; supporters, on the dexter side, a man holding a pillar and pencil; on the sinister, a man holding a sash frame. Motto, "May we succeed." Over the two poles that supported the banner, a scroll, surmounted with a star; this motto, "May Trade Flourish and Industry be Rewarded."

Cabinet Makers.

Headed by Messrs. Carmer, Rueker and Anderson. Robert Carter, bearing the arms of the profession, followed thirty apprentices, four abreast; twenty journeymen in the same order.

Stage drawn by horses, on which, during the march, a cradle and table were completed; on the stage, colours fixed, representing a furniture warehouse, where the different species of their craft were displayed. Motto, "Unity with Fortitude." Sixteen master workmen, four and four, closed the order.

Windsor and Rush Chair Makers.

Headed by Messrs. Thomas and William Ash, of the Windsor, and Jacob Smith and Mr. Dow, of the rush chair manufactory, followed by sixty men, with green and red cockades in their hats, emblematical of their business; the standard, borne by two men,* representing a large manufactory shop, with a number of workmen at work; in front of the shop, a view of the river, several vessels bound to different parts, taking in chairs; boys carrying them to the wharves; in one corner, the American union; in the other, the chair maker's arms; a turning lathe, and two windsor chairs properly emblazoned. Motto, "Free Trade."

O'er all the world our chairs are found."

* Francis Tillou, &c.

Ivory Turners and Musical Instrument Makers.

Headed by Mr. Ahasuerus Turk, and other masters of the above business, two and two. They bore a beautiful standard; in the upper part was the figure of Apollo, (the god of music,) sitting in the clouds, playing on a lyre; round his head were brilliant rays of gold. In a festoon, from Apollo to the corners, and down the sides, hung the different instruments of music, in the manner of trophies. Underneath Apollo, was America, standing hand in hand with Europe, Asia, and Africa, emblematical of love and friendship with all the world.

Our breath he fills with true federal fire;
All nature smiles on this auspicious day,
When love and friendship join the new era.”

Drum Makers.

A flag; drum maker's arms; two drums in the corners; a sheaf of flax in the centre at top; a lamb underneath; on the left of the arms, an oak tree; on the right, a man leaning on the arms, representing the drum maker. Motto, “Federal Drum Makers.”

“Tho' peaceably inclin'd we are,
Let us prepare, lest there be war;
Our enemies may overcome,
Should we neglect the federal drum.”

Upholsterers.

Accompanying the federal chair of state, a most elegant exhibition, each carrying a banner ornamented with fringe, painted to represent the different articles of their business. Ten of these were topped with brilliant stars, and three with stars obscured in different degrees. The federal chair was carried upon a handsome stage, covered with the richest carpet; over it stood a magnificent canopy, nineteen feet high, overlaid with blue satin, decorated with beautiful festoons, fringe, &c., and various emblematical figures. On the right stood a comely lad,* in the character of Liberty, suitably dressed, and bearing her staff and cap, with a roll of parchment, inscribed, “Federal Constitution, 1788.” On the left, another, in the character of justice, carrying the sword and balance. On the back of the chair were seen two angels elevating a laurel wreath, with this motto, “The reward of virtue,” and on its top stood the bird sacred to Minerva. On the highest part of this beautiful canopy stood the American eagle with expanded wings, supported by a globe representing the United States; a variety of other emblematical circumstances might be noted, such as two watchful tygers, in a recumbent posture, intimating the necessary union of strength and prudence. On the front of the stage, a banner, representing Fame in a flying posture, carrying the constitution, was supported by one in the habit of a native American, but richly decorated with feathers, plumes, &c. The motto, "May the Federal Constitution be supported by Liberty and Justice."*

Lace and Fringe Weavers.

Bearing orange colours, elevated on a gilt standard, ornamented by their own manufactory; the device, an angel holding out a scroll with the words, "Federal Constitution," and underneath,

"O never let it perish in your hands,
But piously transmit it to your children."

Paper Stainers.

A flag displayed, representing a piece of paper of a verditure blue ground, printed with a figure of General Washington, with the words "New York Manufacture," in blue letters, on a gold ground, borne by Mr. John Colles, attended by an apprentice in a coat and cap of paper laced with bordering, and others carrying decorated tools. In the centre of the flag an oval figure, including ten golden stars, for the ten ratifying states; and on the exterior, three stars in silver, representing the states that have not acceded to the constitution. On the borders of the flag, "Under this constitution we hope to flourish."

Civil Engineers.

Carrying a design for erecting a dock for building and repairing men of war and other large vessels.

SIXTH DIVISION.

Shipwrights' Flag.

In front a large oak tree, a ship in frame, with pieces of timber lying promiscuously. Noah's ark above, with the motto, "The bulwark of a nation." On the extended corner, an eye.

Blacksmiths and Nailors.

A flag with two smiths' shops represented; in one, a number of men forging an anchor; in the other, men shoeing a horse and making nails. Their coat of arms, three hammers crowned; over which was seen an eagle; under, the words, "The new constitution." Between the two shops, a large anchor. Motto,

"Forge me strong, finish me neat,
I soon shall moor a federal fleet."

A man with his arm extended, with a hammer, in it, with this motto:

"By hammer in hand,
All arts do stand."

The number, one hundred and twenty, in order, headed by Mr. John M'Bain. During the march the blacksmiths exerted themselves in the federal cause. They began and almost completed an anchor upon the stage, besides making a number of other articles, as hooks and thimbles, horse-shoes, nails, &c.

Ship Joiners.

A flag, with their arms; in the field various instruments of the craft displayed, crested with a ship, and ornamented. Motto,

“Our merchants may venture to ship without fear,
For pilots of skill shall the Hamilton steer.
This Federal ship will our commerce revive,
And merchants, and shipwrights, and joiners shall thrive;
On the ocean of time she's about to set sail.
Fair Freedom her compass, and Concord the gale.”

Boat Builders.

Headed by two masters. Barge rowed by proper bargemen in proper dress. Flag, field, thirteen stars and stripes; a print of His Excellency General Washington, and under him a boat building, axe and addee across, and drawing knife and plane. Motto, “Accept, great chief, that share of honour's praise.

A grateful people to your merit pays;
Verse is too mean your virtues to display,
And words too weak our meaning to convey.”

The Block and Pump Makers.

Finished a pump, turned three dozen sheaves and pins, made thirteen blocks, sheaved and pinned complete, on the stage during the procession. A flag, with thirteen different kinds of blocks painted in an oval form, a pump boring in the centre. Motto, “May our industry ever recommend us to employment under the Federal Government.”

A ship off the stocks with only her lower masts in. Motto,

Sail Makers.

A stage drawn by four horses, on which was displayed their flag, representing the flag of the United States; directly below, the ship New Constitution under full sail; in the centre of the flag, Colonel Hamilton, the new constitution in his right hand, and the confederation in his left; Fame, with a trumpet, and laurels to crown him; under, this motto:

May justice be our guide;
The Federal plan we keep in view.
We fall if we divide.”

Below this, on the left, the inside of a sail-loft; the master workman cutting out sails, with men at work. On the right of this, a view of a river; a ship at anchor, representing Commerce; a boat taking in sails to carry on board; the outside of a sail-loft, at which men are reefing sails,

During the procession was finished on the stage, a ship's fore-top-mast-stay-sail, a steering sail cut out, on which was sewed about fifty-six yards, which was performed by four men in white shirts and trousers, their sleeves tied up with blue riband. The remainder of the branch (thirty-seven in number) followed the stage, carrying in their hands yards and measure lines, &c., the boys dressed in canvass vests and trousers, a blue sash tied round their waists, and a pine branch in their hats, with blue ribands; in the branch ten stars, in honor of the ten states that have adopted the constitution. Headed by Mr. George Warner.

Riggers.

The whole number, forty-one, with blue ribands in their hats, two drummers and fifers, a flag with thirteen stripes and thirteen stars, and a ship just from the carpenters, with men heaving her foremast in with the windlass, and a rigging loft on the wharf, with seven men at work, three of them serving a rope; one with a bowl of punch, drinking success to the new constitution. A cartman, with a cart load of rope at the left door; Fame, with a trumpet, sounding "Federal Riggers;" the motto,

"Fit me well, and rig me neat,
And join me to the Federal fleet."

On the other side, a ship almost finished, with men at work aloft; likewise, a rigging loft, with men at work. A cartman taking out a gang of rigging from the loft; the motto,

"Now I am rigged, both neat and strong,
And joined to the Federal throng."

The standard borne by Mr. Richard Clark.

SEVENTH DIVISION.

Federal Ship Hamilton.

A frigate of thirty two guns, twenty-seven feet keel, and ten feet beam, with galleries, and every thing complete and in proportion, both in hull and rigging; manned with upwards of thirty seamen and marines, in their different uniforms; commanded by Commodore Nicholson, and drawn by ten horses.

At the hour appointed for the procession to move, thirteen guns were fired from the ship as a signal for marching. She then got under way, with her top-sails a-trip, and courses in the brails, proceeding in the centre of the procession. When abreast of Beaver-street, she made the proper signal for a pilot, by hoisting a jack at the fore topmast-head, and firing a gun. The pilot boat appeared upon her weather quarter, the frigate threw her main-topsail to the mast; the boat hailed, and asked the necessary questions; the pilot was received on board, and the boat dismissed. The frigate then filled, and moved abreast of the fort, where the crew discovered the president and members of congress. She immediately brought to and fired a salute of thirteen guns, which was followed by three cheers, and politely answered by the gentlemen of congress. The procession then moved; when the ship came opposite to Mr. Constable's, the crew discovered at the window, Mrs. Edgar, who had generously honoured the ship with the present of a suit of of silk colours; immediately they manned ship and gave three cheers. When she arrived abreast of the Old slip, she was saluted by thirteen guns from his Most Catholic Majesty's packet, then in the harbour, which was politely returned. She then made sail, and proceeded through Queen-street* to the Fields,† when squalls came on, and the wind ahead, she beat to windward by short tacks, in which the pilot displayed his skill in navigation, heaving the lead, getting ready for stays, putting the helm a-lee, by bracing and counter bracing the yards, &c. In the Fields, she had to descend several hills, in raising which she afforded a delightful prospect to the spectators, her topsails appearing first, and then her hull, in imitation of a ship at sea; exhibiting an appearance beyond description splendid and majestic. When she arrived at her station abreast of the dining tables, she clued up her topsails, and came to, in close order with the rest of the procession, the officers going ashore‡ to dine. At four o'clock, she gave the signal for marching, by a discharge of thirteen guns, when the procession moved by the lower road.§ The manner in which the ship made her passage through the narrow part of the road was highly interesting and satisfactory, being obliged to run under her fore-top-sail, in a squall, and keep in the line of procession; this was accomplished with great hazard, by the good conduct of the commander, and the assiduity of the seamen and pilot; she arrived at her moorings abreast of the Bowling Green at half past five, amidst the acclamations of thousands; and the different orders, in procession, as soon as they were dismissed, honoured her with three cheers, as a mark of approbation for the good conduct of the commodore and his crew.

Pilot Boat.

Eighteen feet in length, and four feet in breadth, commanded by Mr. Edward Wilkie, with four lads; embellished with two flags, representing the Lighthouse, Highlands, Staten-Island, and the sea; ships going in and out, the pilot boats attending them; drawn on a wagon by two horses.

Pilots.

Marine Society.

President with a gold anchor at his left breast, suspended by a blue riband, and two vice presidents, treasurer, secretary and attorney. Standard bearer, with a white silk flag, representing a ship cast on shore; a dead body floating near her; a woman and children in great distress, lamenting the sad catastrophe, are consoled by Hope, leaning with one hand on a large anchor, and pointing with the other to Charity, who holds a chart, inscribed, "New-York Marine Society;" in the upper part, handsomely Former Officers—Standing Committee.

Printers, Book Binders and Stationers.

Preceded by Messrs. Hugh Gaine and Samuel Loudon, on horseback.

The standard alternately supported by Messrs. Bryce, Carroll, Harrison and Purdy.

A handsome stage, drawn by four horses. Upon the stage, the federal printing-press complete; cases, and other typographical implements, with pressmen and compositors at work. During the procession, many hundred copies of a song and an ode, adapted to the occasion, were struck off, and distributed, by Messrs. A. M'Lean and J. Russel, among the multitude.

A small flag on the top of the press, on which was inscribed the word "Publius," in gold letters. Mr. John Loudon, representing a herald, mounted on the back of the press, dressed in a flowing robe, and a cap, on which were written the words, "The Liberty of the Press;" with a brazen trumpet in the right hand, proclaiming, "The epocha of Liberty and Justice," pending from the mouth of the trumpet. In the left hand, a parchment scroll, representing the new constitution. The master Printers, Booksellers and Bookbinders, with their journeymen and apprentices, four abreast, following the stage.

Description of the Standard.

Fame, blowing her trumpet, and supporting the medallion of his excellency Doctor Franklin; Liberty attending, holding her cap over his head; the electric fluid darting from below; on the upper corner, the union flag, and Stationers' arms; and below, the Bible and federal constitution, representing the religious and civil constitution of our country. Mottos,

1st. "Ars artium omnium conservatrix."

2d. "May the liberty of the Press be inviolably preserved, as the pælladium of the constitution, and the centinel of freedom."

And surrounding the medallion of his excellency Doctor Franklin, the following words: "Where liberty dwells, there is my country."

Cartmen.

A cart painted red, with the words, "Federal cart," in white letters; ornamented with green boughs, and drawn by an elegant bright bay horse, neatly caparisoned, and "Union" inscribed under each ear; driven by Mr. Edward Fowler, dressed in a white frock and overalls, with a blue sash and white bow. On the cart was erected a standard, with a broad flag; one side representing Murray's wharf, Stewart and Jones's store, and three vessels discharging and taking in cargoes; carts passing and repassing; the harbour; a view of Long Island; the rising sun; a vessel under sail, named the "Federal Ship Hamilton;" a coat of arms; motto, "By this we live," in yellow letters. On the reverse, Jones's wharf and store-houses, with a view of the river, Long Island, horses and carts, the rising sun, and federal ship; over which, on both sides, were these lines:

"Behold the Federal ship of fame,
The Hamilton we call her name;
To every craft she gives employ,
Sure cartmen have their share of joy."

Followed by three hundred cartmen, each wearing a laurel in his hat, and conducted by Messrs. T. Amerman, A. Mattiny, J. Demeroy, and W. Furman.

Horse Doctor.

Walter Gibbons, horse-doctor, dressed in an elegant half shirt, with a painted horse on his breast, a balling iron in the horse's mouth, and the Doctor putting a ball of physic down his throat, with implements of farriery ready for use. Over the horse written, "Federal Horse Doctor." At the bottom, "Physic." On his back a horse skeleton, the doctor examining the head; over his head, "Federal Horse Doctor," at bottom, "Dissection."

Mathematical Instrument Makers.

In an oval compartment, encircled with ten stars, a Hadley's quadrant, telescope, azimuth compass, and time-glass, with suitable decorations. Motto, "Trade and Navigation;" supported by Mr. Thomas Biggs.

Carvers and Engravers.

The Carvers and Engravers (united) were led by Messrs. Richard Davis and Peter Maverick; the banner supported by R. B. Davis. On the banner, which was of silk, bordered with an elegant fringe, of American manufacture, were displayed the arms of the United States, viz: a chief, azure on thirteen pieces, argent and gules. In the centre was placed an escutcheon, parted, proper, pale. Argent, a chevron, or, between two gravers in chief, proper, a copper-plate on a sand bag in base, proper, for Engravers. Argent, a mallet and gouge, proper, for Carvers. Motto, "Arte et Labore." This banner was suspended by the two upper ends to a gilt staff, which was crowned by a circle, two feet diameter, of thirteen stars, ten of which were gilt, three ungilt. In the centre the American eagle soaring. On a carved riband, between the banner and the stars, this motto, "Nous brillerone tous bien tot."

Coach and Coach-harness Makers.

A stage in front, drawn by ten black horses, three postillions dressed in yellow, and jockey caps trimmed yellow. Four workmen on the stage at work in the different branches. The flag extended on the stage, representing a coach-maker's shop, with doors open; hands at work, a coach finished. At the door, a vessel lying at the wharf, taking on board carriages for exportation. Over the shop, the union flag; over the ship the nine federal members from this country. In the centre, the coach and coach-harness-makers' arms, on a blue field, three open coaches, supported by Liberty on one side, holding in her left hand a cap of liberty; on the other side by Peace, holding in her right hand a cornucopia of plenty; Fame, blowing her trumpet over their heads; motto, "The Federal star shall guide our ear." A genteel green monument, supported by ten pillars, with an union in the centre. Crest on the top of the arms, an eagle soaring from a globe.

Coppersmiths.

Headed by Messrs. Asher Myers and Chas. White. A standard emblematical of the branch. Motto, "May the labour of the industrious be crowned with success."

Founders' Colour.

Furnace, sand-trough, two pillars, an urn, cannon, two moulds. Motto, "May the Founders, through principles of Amity, agree in Unity."

Tin Plate Workers.

Headed by Messrs. Kempton, Hardenbrook, and other masters, followed by their journeymen and apprentices, with white cockades, emblematic of their business; their standard borne by two of their profession, exhibiting a square; on the other side, the Federal Tin Manufactory; on the other, the Federal Tin Warehouse; in the square are raised ten pillars, with lamps to each, lighted, emblematical of the ten states that have adopted the constitution. On each of the ten pillars is a different article of tin manufactory; in front is a view of the river; the federal man of war appears, and shows the poop lantern; at a great distance appears a lighthouse, and a ship in the offing. The ship of war shows the federal flag of ten stripes. On the manufactory are inscribed the words "Federal Constitution," and

"When three more pillars rise,
Our union will the world surprise."

Pewterers.

Bearing an orange-coloured silk flag, on which was elegantly painted the United States' colours; underneath which, the pewterers' arms, supported by two miners, holding burning lamps in their hands. Motto, "Solid and pure," in gold letters; on the front part of the flag, the words, "Society of Pewterers," with the representation of a Pewterer's workshop, in which the different branches were at work, and some of their work finished. Above this were the following lines, viz :

"The federal plan, most solid and secure,
Americans their freedom will ensure;
All arts shall flourish in Columbia's land,
And all her sons join as one social band."

Gold and Silversmiths.

A gold Federal Eagle on the top of the standard. The goldsmith's emblematical arms on white silk, emblazoned, the crest representing Justice, sitting on a helmet, holding in one hand the balance, in the other the touchstone; the arms supported by two savages, the field quarterly, or, two eagle's heads cross'd, azure two cups inverted between two gold buckles; the motto, "Justice is the Queen of Virtues." The supporters resting on a globe, representing the United States. Standard supported by the four senior goldsmiths, followed by twenty-five.

Potters.

A flag, on which was represented specimens of stone and earthen-ware. A stone-ware kiln in full flame, with different parts of both branches. A stage drawn by two horses, three hands at work, turning a number of vessels of different forms. Motto on the flag, "The Potter hath power over the clay."

The Chocolate-maker's Device.

The old Constitution represented by the naked body of a man, denoting Congress, without power, with thirteen heads, looking different ways, showing the clashing interest of the states in union, with these lines :

"When each head thus directing,
The body naught pursues;
But when in one united,
Then energy ensues."

The ten men, well dressed, representing the ten states, supporting the head of a man, representing the new constitution united in a federal head. Across the loins of the naked man, in a circle, a scroll from the right hand to the left, pointing with the fore finger to a rising sun, and the federal head, with these lines in it :

"In all creation my like is not,
Adopt the new, and let me be forgot
Behold how beams yon bright and rising sun,
O happy era! tyranny is fled;
Since federal government is now begun,
United in one presidential head."

On the pedestal on which it stands are these words, "The Old Constitution." Beneath, a hand-chocolate-mill, with two men grinding chocolate. On the opposite side of the flag, thirteen stripes, representing that no alteration can dissolve the federal compact entered into by the first congress, when they declared independence.

Tobaccoonists.

Headed by Mr. Dennis M'Ready, displaying a white silk flag, on which was elegantly painted, gilt, (encompassed by thirteen tobacco plants.) their arms, on a superb shield. Motto, "Let brotherly love continue." Their flag was preceded by thirteen boys, dressed in white, with blue ribands each carrying a hand of tobacco with eleven leaves bound close together; then followed the masters and journeymen, to the number of forty-five.

Dyers.

Headed by John Morrison and Robert Dodds. Journeymen, apprentices; arms, three madder bags. Motto, "Give glory to God."

Brushes.

Headed by Messrs. Cooper and Watson, carrying a white flag, decorated with ribands, representing the brushmaker's arms. Motto,

“ May love and unity support our trade,
And keep out those who would our rights invade.”

Joined by journeymen and apprentices, each wearing their aprons, and carrying, upright, a large brush, called a Turk's head, staffs twelve feet long.

Tallow Chandlers.

A flag with thirteen stripes; under these the figure of General Washington, with these words over him, “ The illustrious Washington, may he be the first president of the United States.” At the opposite end was placed the figure of Col. Hamilton. Between the two, the coat of arms of the branch, over which were placed thirteen candles, with the name of the state each represents; those representing the ratifying states were all burning, and united in one common flame. At the top of the flag, New York and North Carolina were lighted, but not joining the rest.

Saddlers, Harness and Whip-makers.

Saddlers, to the number of twenty-four. Mr. J. Young, Mr. Henry Broadwell, and Mr. J. Amory, the principal whip-makers.

Then followed their emblematical figure of their profession; an elegant horse, decked with a bun hunter saddle, and rich scarlet furniture, with broad gold lace round the whole, and ornamented with embroidered tassels, making a very brilliant appearance. The bridle was grand, and displayed much taste in the ornaments. The horse was led by a groom, dressed in character, carrying an elegant whip, and attended by two black boys as ostlers. The other masters and journeymen following in the rear.

NINTH DIVISION.

The gentlemen of the bar in their robes, two and two, preceded by the sheriff and coroner. In the centre of their body, the constitution of the United States, elegantly engrossed on vellum, and decorated with ribands, emblematical of the union, was borne by John Lawrence, Esq., counsellor at law, supported by John Cozine and Robert Troop, Esqrs., counsellors at law. Ten students at law followed, singly, bearing in order the ratifications of the constitution by the several states as they came into the union. The rest two and two.

The Philological Society.

The secretary, bearing a scroll, containing the principles of a federal language.

Vice president and librarian; the latter carrying Mr. Horne Tooke's Treatise on Language, as a mark of respect for the book, which contains a new discovery, and as a mark of respect for the author, whose zeal for the American cause during the late war subjected him to a prosecution.

Josiah Ogden Hoffman, Esq., the president of the society, with a sash of white and blue ribands. The standard bearer Mr. William Dunlap, with the arms of the society, viz:—Argent, three tongues gules, in chief, emblematical of language; the improvement of which is the object of the institution. Chevron, or, indicating firmness and support, an eye, emblematical of discernment, over a pyramid, or rude monument, sculptured with Gothic, Hebrew, and Greek letters. The Gothic on the light side, indicating the obvious origin of the American language from the Gothic. The Hebrew and Greek upon the reverse, or shade of the monument, expressing the remoteness and obscurity of the connexion between those languages and the modern. The crest, a cluster of cohering magnets, attracted by a key in the centre, emblematical of union among the members of the society in acquiring language, the key of knowledge, and clinging to their native tongue in preference to a foreign one. The shield, ornamented with a branch of oak, from which is collected the gall used in making ink, and a sprig of flax, from which paper is made; supported on the dexter side by Cadmus, in a robe of Tyrian purple, bearing in his right hand leaves of the rush, or flag papyrus, marked with Phœnician characters, representing the introduction of letters into Greece, and the origin of writing. On the sinister side, by Hermes, or Taaus, the inventor of letters, and god of eloquence, grasping his caduceus, or wand. Motto, “Concedat Laureæ Lingue,” expressive of the superiority of civil over military honours. The flag, embellished with the Genius of America, crowned with a wreath of thirteen purple plumes, ten of them starred, representing the ten states which have ratified the constitution. Her right hand pointing to the Philological Society, and in her left a standard, with a pendant, inscribed with the word “Constitution.” The members of the society in order, clothed in black.

University.

A flag, emblematical of science, motto, “Science and Liberty mutually support and adorn each other.” Supported by a standard bearer, preceding two large globes. The President and professors, in their academical habits, followed by the students, bearing different kinds of mathematical and astronomical instruments; after these moved the medical students, and the instructors of schools.

Merchants and Traders.

The merchants and traders were preceded by John Broome, Esq., president of the chamber of commerce, and William Maxwell, Esq., vice-president of the Bank, in a chariot, together with William Laight, Esq., secretary to the chamber, on horseback, bearing a standard with an oval field, surrounded by thirteen stars. The field, a Mercury standing on the shore, holding in his hand the arms of the city, surrounded by the emblems of commerce; the motto, “Non nobis nati solum,” not born for ourselves alone. The spear terminating in an American eagle, gilt, bearing on his breast the arms of the United States.

TENTH DIVISION.

Physicians, Strangers and Gentlemen. Porters.

A blue flag, with thirteen stripes, on one of which was inscribed, "September 17th, 1787." Thirteen stars on the field, and a standard supported by two porters, with the words "ten to three, we carry it." Under the Stripes, "stands, we stand—falls, we fall."

Artillery and Field Piece.

The line of procession, containing nearly five thousand people, extended upwards of a mile and a half. The march was slow and majestic, and the appearance of the scene as far surpassed every one's expectation, as mere description must fall short of it. While numberless crowds were pressing every side, the doors and windows of houses were thronged by the fair daughters of Columbia, whose animated smiles and satisfaction contributed not a little to complete the general joy. As this splendid, novel, and interesting exhibition moved along, an unsuspected silence reigned throughout the city, which gave a solemnity to the whole transaction suited to the singular importance of the cause. No noise was heard but the deep rumbling of carriage wheels, with the necessary salutes and signals. A glad solemnity enlivened every countenance, while the joyous expectation of national prosperity triumphed in every bosom. The whole body having arrived at Bayard's house, were disposed in a line, and reviewed; after which, the varied insignia of the procession being left upon the Fields, the citizens were conducted to their several dining tables. Here they were honoured by the company of congress, of many foreigners of distinction, and the patriotic and respectable clergy of the city.

The two principal sides of the building provided for this entertainment, consisted of three large pavilions, connected by a colonnade of about one hundred and fifty feet front, and forming two sides of an obtuse angle; the middle pavilion majestically rising above the whole, terminating with a dome, on the top of which was a figure of Fame with her trumpet, proclaiming a new era, and holding in her left hand the standard of the United States, and a roll of parchment, on which was inscribed, in large characters, the three remarkable epochs of the late war; independence, alliance with France, peace. At her side was the American eagle, with wings extended, resting on a crown of laurel, placed on the top of the pedestal. Over six of the principal pillars of this colonnade were placed small escutcheons, inscribed with the cyphers of the several powers in alliance with the United States, viz: France, Spain, Sweden, Prussia, Holland, Morocco; and over these were displayed the colours of these respective nations, which added greatly to the brilliancy of the entablature, already beautifully decorated with festoons and branches of laurel. The extremities of this angle were joined by a table forming part of a circle, and from this ten more colonnades were extended, each four hundred and forty feet in length, as the rays of a circle, the whole having one common centre, viz: the centre of the middle pavilion, where sat the president of congress. At the extremity of each colonnade was a pavilion nearly similar to the three before mentioned, having their outside terminated in a pediment crowned with escutcheons, on which was inscribed the names of the ten states which had then ratified the constitution. The whole of the colonnades were adorned with curtains elegantly folded, and with wreaths and festoons of laurel every where dispersed.

In the area contained within the angle first described, was placed the music, but so disposed as not to intercept the prospect from the seat of the president through the whole length of the ten colonnades above mentioned. This noble and beautiful edifice, erected in less than five days, covered a surface of ground eight hundred and eighty-feet by six hundred, and was calculated to accommodate six thousand persons.

The taste and genius of Major L'Enfant, so often displayed on other public occasions, and to whom the city is indebted for the design and execution, appeared in the present instance to have derived additional brilliancy from the dignity of the object on which it was employed.

Dinner being ended, the following toasts were drank:

- 1st. The United States.
- 2d. The states which have ratified the new constitution.
- 3d. The convention of the state of New York; may they soon add an eleventh pillar to the federal edifice.
- 4th. General Washington.
- 5th. His Most Christian Majesty.
- 6th. His Catholic Majesty.
- 7th. The States General of the United Netherlands.
- 8th. The friendly powers in Europe.
- 9th. The patriotic framers of the present national constitution.
- 10th. The memory of those heroes who have fallen in defence of American liberty.
- 11th. Success to agriculture, manufactures, and the sciences.
- 12th. May trade and navigation flourish.
- 13th. The day; may the union of the states be perpetual.

After each of which, ten cannon were fired; and in order to diffuse the joy to all classes of citizens, an ample proportion of the entertainment was detached to the prisoners in jail.

The repast ended, the procession returned in the same manner to its place of setting out; and the citizens were dismissed by half past five o'clock.

In the transactions of this day, a variety of circumstances might be noted, upon which the reflections of the patriot, the politician, or the philosopher, might dwell with pleasure. A procession inexpressibly magnificent, formed not to gratify the pride or ambition of an individual, but to manifest to the world the attachment of a people to a government calculated to secure and perpetuate their civil and religious liberties; the mutual confidence and joy of the various orders of the community; all narrow and bigoted distinctions lost, and absorbed in that noblest of passions, the love of country; the glorious hope, the emulous and patriotic zeal; the dignified and unsullied harmony of the day; and, it may be added, the uninstructed ingenuity of the American mechanic, unfolding itself in the invention of his emblems and motto.

But what most excited surprise in persons unacquainted with the character of American yeomanry, was to see a numberless multitude, in view of a tempting collation, not only adhering to every rule of decorum, unawed by a single bayonet or espontoon; but, though under the influence of public passions, verging to enthusiasm, peaceably, at an early hour, retiring without a single instance of rudeness or impertinence.

To conclude this account of a transaction which will long be remembered, and which reflects infinite honor upon the mild genius of our government, and the inhabitants of this city. Instead of the trophies of war, and of captives in chains, which graced the triumphs of antiquity, we here behold the plough, the ship, and all the implements of useful arts. The wreath of martial glory was exchanged for the garland of peace; and instead of the painful sensations, which in a humane and liberal mind would be excited by the triumphal entry of a conqueror, reeking from the blood and slaughter of thousands of his fellow men, the hearts of all the spectators anticipated with rapture the return of concord, of public and private justice, of individual happiness, and national glory, the constant attendants of a wise, free and efficient system of government.

OF THE

COMMON COUNCIL OF NEW YORK FOR A NEW CHARTER.

[LAND PAPERS X., 130.]

To his Excellency John Montgomerie Esqr., Captain General and Governor in chief of the provinces of New York, New Jersey and Territories depending thereon in America, and Vice Admirall of the same, &c. In Council.

The Humble petition of the Mayor Aldermen and Comonalty of the City of New York,

SH EW E T H :

That the City of New York is an antient City and the Citizens thereof have antiently held and used and still do hold and use divers and sundry rights, libertyes, priviledges, franchises, freecustomes, preheminencyes, advantages, jurisdictions, emoluments, immunityes, lands, tenements, publick buildings and hereditaments, as well by the name of the Mayor, Aldermen and Comonality of the City of New York as otherwise, as well to the great improvement of his Majesties Revenue and the sensible encrease of navigation, trade and comerce as to the advancement of the said City in its number of buildings and inhabitants, whereby the said City is become a considerable seaport and exceedingly necessary and usefull to Great Brittain in supplying his Majesties Governments in the Westindies with bread, flower and other provisions.

That the said Corporation and Citizens have ever been strenuous assertors of the Protestant Religion, and upon all occasions shew'd an hearty and earnest zeal for the protestant succession in his Majesties illustrious house, and have ever demonstrated their sincere loyalty and affection to the Crown of Great Brittain by an unfeigned readiness and alacrity in paying all due regard to the support of the honour and dignity of this his Majesties Government, and in the chearfull payment of those dutyes and taxes for that purpose levyed and raised and in which they bear a voluntary though very great part. And as this City under the influence of his Majesties just, mild and gracious Government as well as that of his royall predecessors, is grown large and populous, and under your Excellencyes wise and prudent administration hath a fair prospect of a numerous accession of inhabitants, the same grows dayly sensible of its want of sufficient power and authority so to regulate and improve these great advantages as might render it of farther use and service to the Crown, to the advancement of morality and true religion, to their trade and navigation, to the better order, rule and government thereof, and to the generall good of the whole body of people in this his Maties Collony of New York. Wherefore your Excellencies petitioners most humbly pray that your Excellency and the Honble. Councill of this Collony will be favourably pleased to direct and order his Majesties letters patent under the great seal of this Collony to pass in the royall style for confirming and granting to this City and Corporation by the name, style and title of the Mayor, Aldermen and (Clause the Ist.) 2d. That the Corporation aforesaid may have the sole power and authority of appointing ferryes round this Island, with the profitts, benefitts and advantages arising therefrom with such fees as shall be regulated by act of Assembly.

3d. That they have the grant of all the markett houses, docks, slips and wharfs with craneage and wharfage and all other profitts which may accrue thereby.

4th. That they have power to appoint Serjeants at Mace, Marshalls, Goalers, Surveyors of flower and other provisions, Measurers, Porters, Carmen, Guagers, Packers and Cullers, Beadles, Bellmen, Sealors of weights and measures, Scavengers and other necessary officers, and that such officers be appointed by the Mayor by and with the advice and consent of the Comon Councill.

5th. That the Mayor have power to depnte one of the Aldermen his Deputy to act as he himself might do, and that the Mayor or in case of his death, sickness or absence, the Deputy Mayor or Recorder with any two or more of the Aldermen may hold a Court of comon pleas on every Tuesday in the year and that they have power to adjourn the same to any day not exceeding twenty-eight from the sitting from which such adjournment is made.

6th. That the Mayor and Recorder or either of them with the Major part of [the] Alderman and Assistants may hold comon Councils and make or repeal their by Laws and Ordinances as in their discretion shall seem meet, which By Laws or Ordinances shall continue of force for twelve months unless they shall repeal the same.

7th. That the City be divided into Seven wards, which wards may be hereafter sett out at the discretion of the comon Council, and that each ward have the accustom'd officers to be chosen annually as usuall, with such a number of constables in each ward as the comon Council shall judge necessary, and that they be the sole Judges of the Elections and Qualifications of their members and officers.

8th. That the Mayor, Recorder and Aldermen shall be at all times Justices of the peace for the City and County, and each of them have power severally to hear and determine all pleas of fourty shillings and under, and that the said Mayor, Recorder and Aldermen have power to nominate and appoint proper Officers for that Court.

9th. That the Mayor, Recorder or Deputy Mayor, with any three or more of the Aldermen, have power to administer proper and lawful Oaths to the freemen and Officers of this Corporation, and that they have power in the Mayors Court to make such and so many freemen as they shall think fitt, and to restrain all unfreemen from exercising any trade or occupation within the same.

10th. That if the day of the Election to be made by Charter, or if the day of the Oath to be administered or taken by any Officer should happen on a Sunday, such election to be made and oath administered the day following.

11th. That the Corporation aforesaid have power to build an house of Correction or other public buildings and appoint proper officers.

12th. That they may sue for their dues and lawful demands in the name of their Chamberlain in their Mayors Court.

13th. That the Mayor, Recorder and Aldermen, or any three or more of them, have power to hold general quarter Sessions of the peace for the City and County, and that the Mayor, Recorder and oldest Alderman be of the quorum.

14th. That the Corporation aforesaid have a Confirmation and Grant of the Lands they hold on Nassau Island, the fferry, fferry-houses and appurtenances thereunto belonging and appertaining.

15th. That the Mayor, Recorder, Sheriff, Coroner and (after the dease of Mr. William Sharpas) Town Clerk be elective.

16th. That no Attorney be admitted to practice in the Mayors Court but such as shall be chosea, elected and sworn by the Mayor, Recorder and Aldermen, and approved of by the Governour, and that the number of Attorneys to be admitted be limited and appointed by the Governour and nominated in the Charter.

17th. That Mr. William Sharpas may be appointed Town Clerk in the Charter for life, and that 18th. Your Excellency be pleased to grant to the Corporation aforesaid such other powers, libertyes, franchises, rights, freecustomes, jurisdictions, priviledges, imunities and things as may be needfull for the good rule and Government thereof. And your Excies. Petitioners as in Duty bound shall ever pray, &c.

Pursuant to his Excellency's Warrant dated the 13th day of August 1730, To me directed.

I have survey'd for the Mayor, Aldermen and Commonalty of the City of New York the Soil of Hudson's River, extending from a small run of Water called Bestaver's Killitie to the South side of the Street which runs from the Parade before the Fort to Hudson's River, which run of water was shown to me by Leonard Du Grave aged Seventy three years, Johannes Van Guilder aged sixty-six years, Cornelius Clopper aged fifty-eight years, William Hyer aged sixty-one years and Jacob Bloom aged fifty-four years, who all voluntary made oath that they had severally known the said small run of water by the name of Bestaver's Killitie ever since they can remember and that none of them ever heard it called by any other name and in the presence of the above named Persons and of John Chambers, James Levingston, George Lurting, Oliver Rosevelt and Alexander Colden, I began at a Certain place near High Water Mark on the South end of a piece of Upland which lyes between the said River and a piece of Meadow Ground or Marsh being the first piece of Meadow Ground or Marsh near Hudson's River to the Southward of Greenwich and from whence the said Bestavers Killitie runs into Hudson's River. From which place of Beginning to the South side of the said Street from before the Fort running South eighteen degrees thirty minutes west on a Streight line the Distance is One hundred and twenty five Chains which line with the perpendicular breadth of four hundred foot from Low Water Mark into the River contains eighty two acres and one half acre. I likewise survey'd for the Mayor Aldermen and Commonalty aforesaid The soil of the East River, from the North side of Corlaer's Hook to White Hall. Beginning at two large Stones set on the South side of a small Creek or a Marsh on the North side of Corlaer's Hook from thence to the Eastermost point of Corlaer's Hook the Distance on a straight line running South fifteen Degrees thirty minutes East is forty Chains and two rods, and from thence to Whitehall on a streight line running South seventy eight degrees thirty minutes west the distance is one hundred and fifty two Chains, which two lines with the perpendicular breadth of four hundred foot from Low Water Mark contain One hundred and twenty seven acres.

Given under my hand this 2d of Sept. 1730.
